321 PASSENGERS LEAVE ON BEAVER FOR CALIFORNIA

Every First Class Accommodation Taken When Steamer Sails Today; All Vessels Show Traffic Increase.

People going in a rush like an stream aboard the steamer Beaver, Captain Mason, attracted the large crowd that would gather on the levee on the day when she sailed at 5 o'clock for San Francisco and Los Angeles, really one of her first class accommodations was taken. She steamed down the river with 321 first class and 50 steerage passengers, in addition to which are had 150 tons of general freight.

All steamships going out of this steamschooner and regular, report a decided increase in their passenger traffic now and it is expected that every steamer going out of here from now on during the summer will have mainly tourists in the first cabins. Tourists coming in from the east are responsible to a large extent for the increase in the steamer travel, although the beginning of the vacation season here is causing large numbers of local people to take an ocean voyage.

Northbound travel is also large and the steamer Bear, Captain Sopander, which will be due to arrive from Los Angeles and San Francisco this afternoon, has a large list. She is reported to have 389 passengers aboard.

An unusual amount of freight went out on the Beaver for Los Angeles this morning, there being 1500 tons for that port in her cargo. Of this, 700 tons was grain and the remainder general merchandise. The remaining 1000 tons was billed for San Francisco and consisted of the usual general freight shipped to that port every trip.

RIVER FALLS SLOWLY

Lower Ainsworth Dock to Receive Freight; River to Rise Again.

It is expected that freight will again be placed on the lower Ainsworth dock, at the end where the steamer Breakwater lands, this afternoon, as the water has receded from that end of the structure. Other parts of the lower dock are still too wet, however, to receive freight.

While the river has been falling slowly for the past week it is predicted by the weather bureau that it will rise again tonight and Saturday as a result of the heavy rain yesterday and the night before. It is expected to come to a standstill Sunday and probably fall slightly Monday. The stage here was 17.6 feet this morning.

DURSYRE IN RIVER

British Steamer to Take Cargo of Lumber for Australia.

In tow of the steamer George W. Fenwick the British ship Dunsyre, Captain Smith, arrived in the Columbia river this morning, after a voyage up the coast from San Francisco of four days. The Dunsyre is under charter to J. J. Moore & Co., for a cargo of lumber to Australia, and she will probably take on her cargo at Tongue Point, where she loaded the last time she was here, about a year ago. On that voyage outward Captain Smith was taken ill and the ship had to put into New Caledonia and proceed without him. He went to a hospital there.

ALONG THE WATERFRONT

Arriving at 6:45 o'clock last night the steamer Breakwater, Captain Macgenn, brought 67 passengers from Coos Bay points and in addition to this she had 150 tons of general freight.

The steamer Johan Poulsen will leave down from Rainier for Westport tonight and it is expected to go to sea with lumber for San Pedro tomorrow.

Laden with 1,500,000 feet of lumber the steamer Riverside, Captain Dahlquist, has cleared at the custom house for San Pedro.

With passengers and general freight the steamer Klamath is scheduled to arrive tomorrow from San Francisco. She will sail again for San Pedro on Monday.

United States General Appraiser W. B. Howell and Leland N. Wood, special United States customs attorney, department of justice, are here today from New York to hear what cases are now on the docket at the custom house. There are 21 classification cases and one reappraisement case, the latter being in connection with the importation of isinglass. It was expected to finish the cases this forenoon.

CONVENTION WILL ACECPT RULINGS OF CREDENTIALS BODY

hampering the work of the committee. There is in the 10th Alabama, he said, was in favor of 13 and the Wisconsin and Idaho members voted with the majority. He said that the resolutions under which the Credentials committee acted were tampered with and then he read a statement by an Idaho member of the committee which held that the majority report was the only conclusion that could be arrived at under the evidence in the case.

Root then stated that Delegate Robert J. Walker of Virginia had withdrawn his motion to table the minority report in order that Governor Hadley could address the convention on the minority report.

Root Ignores Heney.

Francis J. Heney tried to get recognition by climbing on his chair but Root ignored him and invited Hadley to the platform.

Governor Hadley was cheered and applauded by the floor and galleries as he began to read the typewritten document.

It was a resolution that the contested delegates should not be permitted to vote on the report of the committee until after their cases had been voted on and decided. The resolution included the 72 delegates whose credentials have always been a matter of controversy ever since the convention first met.

Raises Point of Order.

James W. Wadsworth of New York raised the point of order that the chair had already ruled on this question and that the motion was an "attempt to reverse the chair by an indirect method."

Root said:

"It seems so plainly for the general interest of the Republican party that this question should be passed on by the delegates, that the chair will entertain the motion and rule the point of order not well taken."

This plan had been adopted so that a vote on the question could be had, as Root immediately recognized former Congressman Watson, who moved to table the Hadley motion. A roll call was ordered.

Heney Gets Recognition.

Before the result in the Alabama delegation, the first on the list, could be announced, Heney got recognition to demand whether the 72 delegates whose seats were in question were to be permitted to vote. Root declared that only the sitting members of the Ninth Alabama district would be barred from voting, but that all others on the temporary roll could vote. The roll then proceeded and it was then stated that the vote was 20 ayes, 2 noes, 3 contested not voting.

Heney then raised a point of order that the resolution affected the 72 delegates, but Root ruled him out of order. Heney then sat down and the roll call proceeded.

Heney got up again when the California vote was called, declaring that the state only cast 24 votes, and there were two seats from that state contested. The confusion was so great that the secretary could not catch the result when the chairman ordered an individual roll call on the question of California.

Vote Finally Proceeds.

Root finally secured some semblance of order and the vote proceeded.

When the Fourth district Taft delegates were called, Governor Johnson jumped to his chair and yelled: "I challenge the right of these two delegates to vote, and California protests against it."

Root ruled him out of order and continued pounding with his gavel on the table. A California delegate got up and began shouting through a megaphone: "Mr. Chairman, I rise to a question of personal privilege!"

Root ruled him out of order, but he insisted. Finally the California delegate managed to make himself heard, saying:

"My name was not called."

"What is your name?" demanded Root.

Turmoil Subsides.

"Meyer Lissner," was the reply, and Root directed that the name be called again, which was done, and the California turmoil subsided for the moment.

When the vote of Washington state was reached and the required majority of 540 had been passed, the Taft men cheered wildly.

The Hadley motion was finally tabled by a vote of 559 ayes and 439 noes, not voting 16. There was renewed cheering when the result was announced, the New York men waving their state banner and standing on chairs.

Root then announced that the motion of Delegate Walker to table the Hadley motion that would substitute the minority report for the majority report in the Ninth Alabama district, was in order. This, he said, would not carry adoption of the majority report.

Hadley demanded a record roll call, and Pennsylvania and New Jersey seconded, thus assuring a second lengthy roll call.

The Taft men characterized the Hadley move as filibustering.

Result of Roll Call.

The roll call to table the Hadley motion, to permit a vote on whether contested delegates should vote on their own contests, resulted as follows:
