Lawyer R. B. Brown Says Accused Judge Was "Dead to the World" During Personal Injury Case.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Seattle, Wash., July 1.—The department of Judge C. H. Hanford on the bench was directly attacked by R. B. Brown, a lawyer, this morning in the impeachment investigation. Brown testified that the judge was "dead to the world" during a trial in which a boy used the Puget Mill company for $15,000 damages and which was subsequently dismissed by the judge. The corporation of Hughes, McKicken and Ramsey, of which E. C. Hughes, one of Hanford's attorneys, is at the head.

Proceeding Brown, Councilman Erickson testified that he frequently saw Judge Hanford in streets in such a condition as indicated by intoxication. He got the odor of whiskey from Judge Hanford on one of these occasions, and there was a good deal of joking going on in the car about it at the time. On another occasion, Judge Hanford, according to Erickson, got off at an unusual corner and seemed "unsteady" on his feet. Erickson refused to admit in cross-examination, conducted by Harold Preston today, that Judge Hanford's condition may have been produced by "insomnia" or "spells of drowsiness." Brown, who has been practicing law in Washington for 19 years, said that Judge Hanford's condition on the occasion he referred to was also apparent to the boy plaintiff, who remarked after the dismissal: "You couldn't expect anything else. The judge was going to sleep half of the time."

SWEPT AROUND WILD HALF MILE WHIRLPOOL 25 TIMES, YOUTH LIVES

Homer Geer Makes the Shore Naked After 4-1-2 Hours of Struggle in the Columbia.

(Special to The Journal.) Goldendale, Wash., July 1.—Had not Homer Geer of Fall Bridge, Wash., the North Bank road, been an expert swimmer and possessed of an extraordinary amount of strength, he would have fallen in a remarkable battle on Thursday last.

Leaving Fall Bridge at 8 o'clock in the morning in a gasoline launch, headed for Maryhill, he ran into the large whirlpool formed by the junction of the Deschutes with the Columbia. The launch was sucked down and he with it to a great depth. Fearing himself he rose to the surface and then began a tremendous battle for life.

Geer is but 21 years old and in the best of physical condition, but the last ounce of endurance was needed ere he won the shore. Accomplishing the difficult feat of taking off all his clothing, including shoes and stockings, he struck out for safety. At least 25 times he was swept around the whirlpool, over a half mile in circumference, at times being within a stone's throw of the shore, then swept past and on out into the river.

"At times I must have been submerged for five minutes," said he. "I would swim only when nearing the shore, putting forth all my strength, and when swept by would turn on my back to save myself."

For four and one-half hours this battle with death continued, when he finally reached the shore and "fell like a log" utterly exhausted.

The boat was found later on with the engine torn out.

INSURANCE TAX TEST CASE IS UP

State Said to Lose Thousands of Dollars by Failure to Pay.

State Insurance Commissioner John W. Ferguson, who is in the city today, says he believes thousands of dollars are lost to the state in taxes on insurance premiums through the policy of certain companies in having policies written outside the state, and merely countersigned by resident agents.

In the case of the United States Fire Insurance company of San Francisco, which recently applied for a license to do business in Oregon, the question has come to a decisive test, and as a result an attempt is being made to force the commissioner to issue a license without any assurance being given that the company will issue policies through agents residing in Oregon.

Ferguson is cited to appear in the circuit court of Marion county tomorrow to show cause why an order of mandamus should be issued.

When the company in question applied it offered a bond of the Maryland Casualty company of Baltimore, Md., in return that the company agree that policies connected with Oregon persons or property shall be issued through resident agents. Then a bond was offered from the American Surety company, and Ferguson refused to issue the license except on conditions named. The mandamus suit resulted.

June 12 Mr. Ferguson issued a ruling constraining the insurance act, which has direct application. It says: "The intent of this bill is to require that all policies or contracts of indemnity issued by companies licensed to transact the classes of insurance mentioned above and covering on property or undertakings or operations of persons or concerns in the state of Oregon, shall be issued through their resident agents only."

WILD SCENES WHEN MISSOURI RAISES A "BRYAN" BANNER

Lamb refused to let Bryan talk and he came down demanding that James be sent for. Police got on either side of Bryan as he stepped before the Missouri delegation. The Nebraska's face was bright red and as he called for David R. Francis or the chairman of the Missouri delegation, a dozen fists were shaken in his face, and members of the Missouri delegation, who were ordered to back up, yelled: "Clark, Clark!" Directly in his face and ears. A free for all fight started over a banner directly in front of the press stand. A dozen Missourians, protected by the sergeant at arms, raised the banner on the press section. The banner was ordered to be taken down. A dozen men were fighting on the floor while the Baltimore police made childishly feeble efforts to stop the near riot.

Reporter Knocks Down Delegate. A Missourian tried to rush the press stands and was knocked to the floor by one of the New York reporters over whom he tried to walk. By this time the entire front of the delegate section just below the platform was a howling mob. Chairman Ollie James rushed to the platform. The Wilson men started to bring their banners down, but they were ordered to back up by William F. McCombs, the Wilson manager, to prevent further fighting. After ten minutes, order was restored and the offending banner was removed.

Meanwhile, Bryan was sitting on the floor of the speaker's platform, waiting for his chance. Chairman James, when order was restored, tried to place the blame for the disorder on the visitors despite the fact that at least two thirds of the Missouri delegation had not only precipitated but had participated in the riot. James ordered the result of the ballot and ordered the clerk to proceed with the roll call.

Bryan demanded the right to speak. The Missouri delegation shouted: "No, no, no, he cannot talk!" James finally declared that Bryan had a right to a question, but he was ordered to leave and that he could state his question. "Mr. Chair: I was seated— This was as far as Bryan got, when Mayor Fitzgerald made the point of order that on Saturday night he (Fitzgerald) was refused permission to talk. James said that if he had heard to a question of personal privilege he would have been heard.

Fitzgerald on Floor. Fitzgerald insisted that he was not permitted to speak to a question of personal privilege and that as he was denied the right to speak, he would have to object to Bryan's recognition. Bryan resumed: "Mr. Chairman, I was seated with my delegation when a banner was placed in front of us. I asked that it be removed from that place. Being refused I went to the Missouri delegation to find out if the banner had been taken to the Nebraska delegation by its authority. If that was the unauthorized act of those who brought it, I have nothing further to say. If it was the official act of the Missouri delegation, then I demand to answer the question on the banner." Chairman James said: "The chair regrets to have to rule that the gentleman from Nebraska has not stated a question of personal privilege and he cannot talk on the subject."

Bryan bowed to James' ruling, smiled grimly and returned to his seat in the Nebraska delegation. When he got there he said: "If the Missouri delegation is not responsible for this banner then I cannot say anything." James started to restore order again when a new fight started in the Connecticut delegation which defied the efforts of the police to stop. Gives Order to Arrest. While they were doing this James issued an order to the police to arrest any person who came into the hall with the official act of any delegation. Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston then broke into the game, and while announcing that he would not take advantage of the offer of the chairman to arise to a

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless; Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food; Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory." Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place." Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent." Dr. Wm. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's." Dr. Wm. J. McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home." Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy." Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."
