CHARTER BOARD WILL MEET MONDAY NIGHT

It is likely that there will be a meeting of the official commission plan charter board next Monday evening to consider the completed draft of the charter, which will thereupon be given 30 days' publicity before being filed with the city auditor. During the period of publicity it is desired that the people of Portland study the new plan of municipal government and submit suggestions or amendments.

The committee on revision—R. W. Montague, P. L. Willis and S. Grutze—has completed its work and typewritten copies of the completed charter draft are being sent to each of the members of the committee. No material changes have been made, the revision committee simply following directions given at meetings of the charter board. The people's charter, the Simon charter, the Benbow and Wood short charters, have all contributed to the new draft, which proposes the election only of the fire commissioners and the city auditor and provides for the appointing of other city officials by the commission of five. It is thought likely that after full consideration has been given the charter draft and it is filed in its final approved form, the special commission plan election may be held some time during next October or November.

One consideration has served as an urgent reason for an earlier commission plan election, and this the disposition of the auditorium commission not to attempt to do anything in the securing of a site or the constructing of the public auditorium until the people have been given opportunity to vote the issuance of $200,000 additional bonds with which to aid in purchasing the site. The auditorium commission says all of the $600,000 voted is needed in constructing and furnishing the auditorium. The building will be too great to be placed on a single 200 by 200 block, and if the market block is used space immediately to the south must be acquired. In this event an amendment to the Ziegler amendment, which prohibits vacation of streets within 2000 feet of the river, must be secured.
