

PORTLAND, OREGON, SUNDAY MORNING, JULY 7, 1912.

DALLAS POINTS TO PROGRESS; VERDICT OF ALBERT CLARK

President of Portland Ad Club Returns From Texas City Enthusiastic With Manner of Boosting She Employs.

Not so busy advertising Oregon but that he had time to study leading ideas in city building, President Albert G. Clark, of the Portland Ad club, brought from Dallas, Tex., where the annual meeting of the National Advertising association was held, some very definite comparisons between the plans of Dallas and Portland.

"Although less than half the size of Portland, Dallas can point the way in many matters that tend to public good and the welfare of the city," said Mr. Clark yesterday.

"For a period of nearly three years Dallas employed an expert in city practical plans, the money coming out of the city's funds. There was also employed another expert on underground plans—water filtration, artesian wells, reservoirs and the like.

"This spirit certainly shows an advance over the Portland method which required a few citizens to put up the funds for the general good of a city. Dallas boasts the largest viaduct in the world, 400 feet, including approaches, extending from the business district across low flats to what is called locally Oak Cliffs, a residence district. The viaduct stimulated the building up of that district and it is now peopled with 10,000 citizens. The improvement is high and slightly and growing rapidly with beautiful homes.

Property Owners Public Spirit.

"Many improvements are under way and money is paid by bonding—the city assuming one-third and the property interests two-thirds.

"Enterprising citizens donated something like five miles of boulevards which extend through the city to Highland park. Whenever any improvement is contemplated property owners come forward with donations that encourage and further the improvement spirit.

"Dallas can truthfully boast of more good roads tributary to the city than any other city of 100,000 in the country—something like 400 miles of good roads are the net results to date of the enterprise of its people. This accounts for Dallas enjoying the largest retail trade among the cities of Texas, and is also the reason the city supports the finest retail stores to be found in the Southwest.

"Wares displayed in the shop windows indicate a development of trade that is astonishing and if you cannot find an article in the Dallas stores it is only because the world's markets do not supply that article. Good roads make a city prosperous and it is down here to Dallas from the homes of nearly 1,500,000 people.

Brings Plans With Him.

"The Southwestern university had been located at Georgetown for a quarter of a century. Talk of moving caused Dallas to come to bat with an offer of $400,000 which amount was considered the invested present value of the university holdings. Other cities got very busy also but Dallas was on the job and immediately made an offer of $1,000,000 worth of land and the result is that the Southwestern university moved to Dallas. Dallas enterprises is of a kind to learn lessons from in the Northwest.

"There is an old saying that comparisons are odious. I do not believe it. I think that we should profit by such examples of enterprise. If we find that a certain enterprise it is my opinion that we should compare it with our methods and take the best of the two for our own and put it to work. I am still of the belief that Oregon can't be beaten, but we can go ahead faster with a broader gauge spirit of enterprise put into practice."

Mr. Clark brought back from Dallas several copies of the Dallas plan—an elaborate volume of pictures and maps that indicate the possibilities of growth that may be realized from the stirring Texas town.

REBELS ESTABLISH CAPITAL AT JUAREZ

(United Press Leased Wire.)

El Paso, Texas, July 6.—Converting the Juarez customs house into the provisional state capital, Governor Felix Gutierrez today reestablished the rebel government of Chihuahua in Juarez.

In the city of Chihuahua the Matamoros state government was reestablished by Governor Abram Gonzalez, who had been a refugee from that city during rebel occupation.

Additional troops reaching Juarez today increased the rebel force to nearly 4000. Orozco, with a portion of his troops, remained at Sauc to gather up and drive out all the cattle on the Terrazas ranches in that city.

FINAL LIST OF DEAD IN RAILROAD WRECK, 39

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Cornning, N. Y., July 6.—Careful verification of the list of dead by the coroner and his assistants shows that the number of victims of Thursday's disaster on the Lackawanna railway was 39 instead of 43 as reported at first. There are still five unidentified bodies in the morgues, two men, two women and a girl of about 2. The doctors say they believe all of the injured will recover.

PENDLETON WATER BILL SIGNED BY PRESIDENT

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.)

Washington, July 6.—The president sent word to congress that he has signed the bill providing for Pendleton's water supply; also the bill for reimbursing the officers and crew of the Mansanito for effects lost in a wreck.

WHEAT GROWERS TO COMPETE FOR A PRIZE OF $5000

Money Will Be Given for Best Five Bushels of Grain Harvested This Season; Points in Judging.

A certain five bushels of wheat grown in the Pacific northwest seems likely to become very famous after the big crop promised for this year is harvested. It will be known as "the champion five bushels of the northwest," and Oregon wheat growers are planning to compete vigorously for the sake of winning the prize. A letter has been received from Will A. Campbell, secretary of the Northwest Development league, by the Commercial club, which describes the requirements of the contest, in part, as follows:

"How the judges will find the best five bushels of wheat grown in the American northwest and determine who is entitled to the $5000 prize offered for five bushels of wheat by the Northwest Development league is told by President Lewis Penwell of the league, who has given much time to working out the details.

"Many people will pick over five bushels of wheat in order to get the kernels uniform, remove weed seed, have only plump, bright, sweet seeds in the sample and thus get the grain a little nearer perfect.

"Four hundred farmers have written the secretary and declared their intention of entering this contest," said Mr. Penwell. "With prospects for the best grain crops the American northwest has ever known, there will be plenty of competition for the prize offered at the Northwestern Products exposition in November.

Three Judges to Act.

"Three judges will be selected by the president and the agronomists of the agricultural colleges of the seven states competing—Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon. The judges must come from without the American northwest. It is not expected that these judges will all be agricultural college people. Some of them will probably be from one of the grain exchanges of the country—a judge of commercial grains.

"Judging will be in three ways: First, according to the accepted score card; second, by a milling and baking test, and third, by the yield per acre. One hundred points will be allowed for each of the three ways and the sum of the points gained divided by three, thus arriving at the average score.

"Fifteen points will be allowed on variety characters, three of these points being on the color, 10 on purity, which means the kernels must be allowed to type of breed represented; two points are allowed for the kernel shape, which varies with the breed.

"Thirty points are allowed for vitality, five being for luster, as a dull, dead color is objectionable; 15 points will be allowed for plumpness, as all wheat kernels should be plump, well filled and well rounded, having no sharp angles and with the creases well closed. Seven points are for odor, the samples should be sweet and free from all foul smell, mustiness, etc.

Points Considered.

"Twenty-five points are allowed for market condition, 10 points being to cover weed seed; three points for dirt and dust, two points for injured kernels, five points for smut and five points for the condition of the bran. This means the samples to stand any chance of securing the prize, must be free from weed seed, especially wild oats, darnel, quack grass, cheat and mustard. No dust must be present. All broken, light and scabby kernels will count against the wheat, while the bran or seed coat must be smooth, bright and free from dirt and weathering.

"The rules for judging take away one point for each pound for less than standard weight of 60 pounds. The judges will count out 100 seeds as a sample. They will cut the score in proportion to the weed seed found. Color, purity, kernel shape, luster, plumpness, germ, odor, dirt, dust, smut and condition of bran are all of a matter of judgment. The judges will consider carefully the desirable features in these regards and cut the score in each case accordingly."

Cancamah Wall Issue Up Today.

(Special to The Journal.)

Oregon City, Or., July 6.—A committee of the city council appointed to confer with the management of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company is reporting to the council at a meeting this afternoon. The consultation is over a proposed wall and raising of the tracks at Cancamah. The company asks the city to pay half the costs, and the committee was appointed to investigate the proposition. The proposed wall would be five feet higher than the present one and would protect the city from high water.
