

OREGON AIDED IN THE STAMPEDE TO WOODROW WILSON

Chairman of Delegation Tells How State Swung Into Line at Psychological Moment—Victory for People.

"When the friends of Champ Clark were working night and main to snatch the Democratic presidential nomination for him, the voice of the Oregon delegation boomed out for Woodrow Wilson. The balance of favor for Clark swung toward the New Jersey governor. There was a sudden accession of enthusiasm. Men leaped to their chairs and cheered madly. It was after William Jennings Bryan had stood still handed before 50,000 and with the strength of being right had won the greatest powers of the nation."

"This is the way Judge Thomas C. Burke of Baker, chairman of the Oregon committee to the national Democratic convention, describes what he calls the "psychology" of the epochal gathering. He tells about it in a letter to a Portland friend. He has returned to Baker tremendously pleased with the result and he predicts in his letter that Woodrow Wilson will sweep Oregon in November, that "a very few people will be needed to count Taft and Roosevelt votes."

In his admiration for Wilson, Judge Burke does not forget Bryan, nor Bryan's influence in the nomination. He says:

"For a party which goes before the country independent of and free from obligation to the great money interests, and for a standard bearer who is a student of political science rather than a politician, and who has proved himself to be a practical statesman with only the welfare of the public at heart, the country is indebted to its foremost citizen, and the greatest single force morally and intellectually in the world today—William Jennings Bryan."

Judge Burke says that for three days he watched the Chicago convention, that he found it a fight between individuals, placing personal differences above national issues, but that at Baltimore was the fight of the people against Wall street, and the people won. Writing about what he calls the "turning point," Judge Burke says:

Oregon Follows Suit.
"Small things sometimes lead to important results and the Oregon delegation may have been the 'monkey wrench' in the machinery that stopped the Clark boom, when the stampe was at its height. Chairman James had announced at the conclusion of the previous ballot that Clark has a majority but not two thirds, and a tumult was raging on the floor in an effort to rush the convention to him. Delegates were breaking away and there was no question but that the Clark 'band wagon' had started."

"Oklahoma was reached on the roll call by megaphone and 'Alfalfa Bill'

700 Members of O. N. G., Composing Third Regiment of Infantry, Now Encamped at Montesano Where Ten Days Maneuvers Will Be Held

Last goodbye as they leave for "seat of war."

Off for a ten days' encampment and field of maneuver, 700 enlisted men of the Oregon National Guard composing the Third Regiment of Infantry pulled out of the Union depot yesterday morning in ten sections bound for the Grays Harbor country. Montesano was the objective point of the guardsmen and at Murray from that state mounted a chair and his fog horn voice was raised above the tumult as he roared a defiance with ten votes for Wilson. Oregon sat immediately behind Oklahoma and was next on the roll, and with all the lung power that I could muster, I slammed the Wilson vote from Oregon hard on the heels of 'Alfalfa Bill.' Simultaneously Bennett, King, Holmes, Maloney—that wild Irishman from the Wallowa mountains, Wise, Moss and the whole bunch of us went crazy, standing on chairs and screaming 'Wilson' like maniacs, and this started a counter demonstration that lasted until the combatants on both sides were mauling."

"Whether hurling the Oklahoma and Oregon Wilson men into the Clark machinery at the psychological moment, was the thing that did it or not, it was a distinct jar to the Clark managers and sent 'Gum Shoe' Stone, Judge Wade, Senator Reed and ex-Governor Francis scurrying around among the delegates in an effort to stop the insanity that was breaking loose for a hopeless candidate. Certain it is that the Clark band wagon never again got under way. The stampe was broken and the 'wagon wrecked.'"

"When the country at large learned how the friends of the people with that point they pitched camp last night, and when not on long marches there they will do their sleeping and eating and light drills."

The regiment is in command of Adjutant General Finzer, though the regimental colonel will have immediate command of his men. At Montesano, the

Y. M. C. A. BOYS WILL TAKE SUMMER OUTING

Beginning the most important of their summer outings, members of the boys' department of the Portland Young Men's Christian Association will leave tomorrow morning for Spirit Lake, near Mount St. Helena, Washington. Fully a score of boys will go in the initial party, and a second group will go to the camp on August 12, five weeks having been set aside for the outing. For several years the Y. M. C. A. boys' department has maintained summer camps at Spirit Lake. It is regarded as an ideal place for such outings as there is opportunity for all Oregon soldiers will be joined by the national guardsmen of Washington and Idaho and all of the regular army troops in the northwest. Before their return to the peaceful pursuits of civil life, the troops will have had a strenuous time in long cross-country marches, difficult tactical maneuvers, battalion and regimental drills, sham battles and other interesting features of real and military warfare.

When the troops left Portland they were out for both a good time and plenty of hard work, and expected to return to Portland well seasoned from their visit to it necessitates. Every precaution will be taken to provide for the safety of the boys who take the trip. On the hike in they will be divided into small groups and each group will be under the supervision of a competent leader. During the last few years the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. has conducted trips to many points of interest in the northwest and no member of its parties have had a serious accident. The Spirit Lake trip and the hike to the coast, which will follow later in the summer, are open to all boys, whether members of the Y. M. C. A. or not.

Fugitive Convict Is Captured.
(United Press Leased Wire.) Berkeley, Cal., July 20.—Charles Shrode, a convict who escaped from the Colorado state penitentiary five years ago, was arrested here today, booked as a vagrant, and later identified by the Bertillon system. Shrode slipped past the Colorado prison guards on the night of August 16, 1907, and stole a horse, upon which he escaped. He was serving a term for larceny. Suspicion was first directed to him here through a picture in the prison catalogue.

GOLDEN WEDDING IS CELEBRATED

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew C. Ripley Surrounded by Relatives and Friends.

Surrounded by their sons and daughter, grand children, relatives and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew C. Ripley of 626 South Fifth street, celebrated their golden wedding at their home last Sunday. The fiftieth anniversary of wedded life was made the event of a family reunion, and members of the family journeyed from various parts of the Pacific northwest to attend. A number of beautiful presents were given Mr. and Mrs. Ripley, including seven gold spoons, one from each of their children.

Among those present were their six sons and their wives, the couple's daughter and her husband, and 12 of 17 grand children.

The couple were married at Berlin, Iowa, three years ago, because they desired to reside near their children, all of whom had journeyed west previously.

Mr. Ripley, who is almost 70 years of age, was born at Harper's Ferry, Va., August 11, 1840. He accompanied his family first to Ohio, then to Iowa, where he met Jennie Wyatt, whom he married when he was 22 years of age. The honeymoon was short. Twenty-four hours Ripley was on his way to the front to participate in the great civil strife, then raging between the north and south. At that time he was third sergeant in Company A, Thirty-second Iowa Infantry.

For the next three years he fought, and was twice wounded, seriously each time. He was taken prisoner and twice changed. The last time he was exchanged he was so ill and feeble on account of his wounds that he was sent home to his wife, who had supported herself during his absence by teaching school. After a year's rest the couple took up farming, which they followed until they came to Portland.

Mrs. Ripley was born in Marion county, Ohio, November 26, 1842. Among those who attended the reunion, were: Fred C. Ripley, his wife, two sons and two daughters, of 644 Fourth street, Portland; Melvin C. Ripley, his wife and five daughters, of Twin Falls, Idaho; Edwin B. Ripley, and his wife, of Ellers, Idaho; Ernest Ripley, his wife and son, of 626 Fourth street; Clova B. Hughes, the only daughter, her husband and two sons, of 629 East Forty-third street, Portland; Orin J. Ripley, his wife and daughter, of 429 Salmon street, and Frank M. Ripley and wife, of Buhl, Idaho.

M. W. Howland and his wife of Lyle, Wash., also attended. Mrs. Howland, a sister of Mrs. Andrew Ripley, was a witness of the old couple's wedding, 50 years ago.

MANY CASES OF RABIES DISCLOSED

Dr. Brown Says: Do Not Kill Dog That Bites You, at Once; Remedy Offered.

No less than five cases of rabies in cats and dogs have been discovered during the past week, according to Dr. Charles E. Brown, veterinary surgeon. Mrs. Loretta Povey, daughter of Dr. Brown, was bitten by a rabid infected dog Friday morning. Dr. Brown says, "The animal will submit to the Pasteur treatment to ward off probable hydrophobia. Dr. Brown says that Mrs. Povey may go to Washington, D. C., for the treatment, or the treatment may be brought to Portland, and administered here."

Dr. Brown, who has become more or less familiar with rabies and hydrophobia in the course of his practice in Chicago and in Grand Rapids, offers the following suggestions on the mad dog question:

"If dog afflicted with rabies bites you or members of your family or your friends, do not kill the dog. The dog will die in a day or two, anyway, if it has genuine rabies. Then the animal brain can be examined and, if rabid, actually afflicted the dog, the brain will show it conclusively. Then you will be able to proceed with the treatment of the person who has been bitten. If the dog is killed right away there will be no certain method of determining whether or not the victim is in danger."

"Don't kill every dog that acts queerly. Mad dogs do not always froth at the mouth. Every dog that bites at rabies has a peculiar look in its eyes. Its voice is changed, and it will invariably stagger as if intoxicated. Such a dog can easily be avoided. It will not run after you to bite you, but will snap at anyone who approaches it."

"Mad cats are worse than mad dogs. A cat infected with rabies may jump through a window into your home and attack you. A dog will not do that. The symptoms are much the same in cats as in dogs."

"Hot weather is not the reason for rabies in dogs. Hot weather affects dogs and tends to make them mean and vicious, but if an animal develops a case of rabies it is because it has been bitten by an infected dog or other animal. If your dog has been bitten by an infected dog and shows symptoms of the disease, keep it muzzled, so that it will not be possible for it to bite and so spread the disease among other dogs and probably among human beings."

"Hydrophobia in a human being does not develop for at least two weeks after the infection. Sometimes the disease lingers in the system for a year before it develops fully. Hydrophobia is a terrible disease, but advancing science has lessened the danger somewhat, so that a person should not become unduly excited and worry himself into madness if he should have reason to believe himself infected with the germs."
