HARBOR LINE HAS JOG IN IT; IT MAY BE STRAIGHTENED

Commission of Public Docks Asks Permission From War Department to Make Regular Line.

In view of the fact that a jog in the harbor line on the proposed site of the west side dock would make it necessary to follow this irregular line in construction, the commission of public dokes at their regular meeting decided yesterday afternoon to ask for permission to straighten it out.

Should the consent of the war department, through Major McIndoe, and the Port of Portland, be obtained, the line will be straightened hetween a point on the north line of the S. P. & S. dock property and another point on the north line of the Martin dock property. This would bring the harbor line out 111/2 feet at the jog at the north line of the American Can dock property.

At the suggestion of City Attorney Grant, who spent some time at the meeting it was decided to drop the condemnation proceedings against the American Can dock people temporarily, as it is desired to look further into facts in the case which may make the proceedings unnecessary.

In connection with a suggestion of Consulting Engineer Charles W: Staniford of New York, that the sheds be left off the tracks on the upper east and west side docks, in order to facilitate loading, some discussion was carried on by the commission, as that would cut down about one tenth of the warehouse space. It would mean 60 feet off each end of the west side dock and the same off the north end of the east side dock. It was finally decided to eliminate the sheds, but provision to be made for their construction later if necessary.

The resignation of E. C. Giltner, secretary of the chamber of commerce, as temporary secretary of the commission was accepted and placed on file, and a letter of appreciation for services rendered the commission ordered written. Chief Engineer Hegardt was then elected temporary secretary by Com-missioners Mulkey, Cornwall and Kellaher, these being the only members present. Commissioners Kellaher and Cornwall were designated as a committee to report on, a secretary at the next meeting to work in conjunction with Chairman Mulkey, because of the increase in the business of the commission that is taking place.

It was also voted that Harbormaster Speier be allowed a temporary assistant in his office at $75 a month because of the approaching export season when the harbormaster will have to devote more of his time to the shipping in the har-

the Columbia river jetty construction is to be resumed. This will mean the reemployment of nearly three hundred men and the increase in the local pay-rolls of about $30,000 a month. At the start it is expected the work will be somewhat handicapped by the present shortage of labor. Also new men will have to be trained, since many that were laid off a month ago have obtained positions in other places, particularly British Columbia. It is stated that over a half hundred have accepted positions in that province on railroad construction. At present the south jetty extends six and one-half miles into the ocean, its total length exceeding seven miles. The depth of water at its extremity is increasing so rapidly that the cost of construction has jumped to $7.50 a lin-Ten locomotives hauling 250 flat cars

DREDGE TO RESUME

Work on Upper Willamette and Yamhill to Start Next Week.

Snagging and dredging operations on the upper Willamette and the Yamhili rivers, interrupted some time ago by lack of funds, will be resumed next week by the United States engineers, and the snagboat Mathloma with the dredge Champoeg in tow, will leave the government moorings for the upper river Monday morning. The Mathloma will do the annual snagging on the Yamhill river and the Champoeg will proceed to Jennings bar, where she will start work on the six-foot channel project from Portland to Oregon City.

The local board of United States inspectors of steam vessels will go to Astoria and Fort Stevens Tuesday to begin the annual inspection of boilers and hulls of the United States engineer and quartermaster departments. quartermaster department tended Major Guy Howard and the artillery tender Major James Fornance and all engineer and quartermaster bollers at Fort Stevens will be inspected. The task will ,occupy about two days.
