

PEOPLE QUESTION EVERYTHING NOW, AVERS DR. YOUNG

Striking Sermon Which Has for Its Text, "The Lord Is My Rock and My Fortress"; Nothing Sacred Now.

Dr. Benjamin Young had as the text for his sermon at the Taylor Street Methodist church last night, Psalm 18, "The Lord is my rock and my fortress." His subject was "The Rock of Ages."

Dr. Young said: "We live in the most wonderful period of history. At the close of the last century volumes were written summing up the achievements of the years. The first decade of the new century, however, has outdone any 20 years of the last century. The world has never known such an onrush of the forces of life."

"We live in an age of culture and refinement. It is worth something to live. Civilization has reached a lofty summit. Of course there are things which are dark and ugly in its fabric. For our own sakes and for the sake of the future, we must give attention to some of these darker things. Every parasite must be destroyed. Every citizen ought to hate the devil and fight for that which is good."

Days of Criticism. "It is an age of progress. We are moving forward with giant strides. Improvement is the order of the age. The other day on a steamship, out from the port of Vancouver, I wanted to communicate with a member of my official staff. I went to a box on the deck of the vessel and sent an aerogram. A century ago and less, the best method of communication by land was by an intricate system of semaphore signalling which was awkward and slow. The heliograph and the wireless station are indices of this wizard age."

"These are days of analysis and criticism. Men count nothing sacred. The aureole of tradition has long since been pierced. The dissecting knife and table lamp part of every scientific system. The radical doubt of the Cartesian era has come back to us. Men question everything. Van Dyke has said: 'Its coat of arms is an interrogation point rampant, above three bishops dormant, and its motto is Query.'"

"Our literature, in places, reveals a spirit of cynicism. This is due perhaps to the spirit of restlessness which is abroad, or possibly it has been copied from Carlyle or Emerson, Morely or Froide. It is seen in Thomas Hardy and in Mrs. Ward and even in some of the soul paralyzing lines of Omar. 'What about faith? Will it have a place? Have we outgrown religion? Is the 'rock of ages' just a mere sandbar? Does the Christian religion have a message for the age? It does, and its message comes with ringing emphasis. 'Men must have an adequate doctrine of God. The conceptions of the ancients have perished because they were inadequate to serve the heart of man. There is no doctrine that so fits into human life as that which was taught by the Gospels. An attenuated idea of deity which robs us of personality is wholly unsatisfactory to us to carry the burdens and face the trials of life. Jesus Christ is the moral ministrant of the ages. He has given us that which fits against the heart. He taught the truth of a Divine personality, thinking and working and loving for men. That is needed and that will stand. In this materialistic age men need that. Civilization must have that at its soul. Without it a crass and icy materialism will seal up the fountains of moral and spiritual life. That would mean death to all that is holy and good."

Religion of Fellowship Needed. "A religion of fellowship is needed for today. Man desires to commune with God. It is important that God come in contact with men. There is trouble here and perplexity, sorrow and trial and temptation and death. Out of that scheme which makes divine fellowship possible there comes the solution for the harsh problems of life. In no other scheme can it be found. Every plan which has no provision for man on his heart side is unable to serve the highest interests of the race."

"There are lots of interrogation points around us. They face us like the spears of the Swiss guard. Do men get comfort out of question marks? An interrogation point is not a good pillow for an aching heart. I grant you that it has its uses. Pessimism has in it no secret tonic, and gives no inspiring vision. If the logic of life is based on misery, despair will be its conclusion. There is no hope for men in the philosophy of unbelief. Across the valley of the shadow, faith throws its arch twisted out of the promises of the great God. Unbelief has no use for the rainbow. If a man tries to get the earth, he loses his God. If he loses God, he loses all. A civilization cannot be built upon a coarse and dull materialism. History has demonstrated this. The permanent values for the race of moral beings come from the moral and spiritual realm. The Christian faith offers to men the best things for heart and life. By virtue of its inherent values it lays its claims across the human soul. It has a sufficient moral imperative for the time. There is no future for the race without it. It has the promise of this life and of that which is to come. There is no loftier ideal than Jesus Christ. The beauty and the strength and the glory of the hero of the cross constitutes the mightiest appeal to all men. The Rock of Ages is the strength and the fortress of modern civilization and of all history."

DARROW WINCES WHEN FORD CALLS HIS SECOND JUDAS
(Continued From Page One.)
Many criminal lawyers have abused their privileges. They have taught the criminals that there is a war between them and society. They have told the criminal all they need is a smart lawyer, like Clarence Darrow."

"I object," fairly screamed Horace Appel, Darrow's counsel. "I object to him telling the jury anything like that. I assign it as an error."

Judge George H. Hutton instructed the jury to take the assistant district attorney's statements as an argument only, and in no wise as evidence, and Ford was allowed to continue.

"Poor little Jim McNamara, the miserable wretch!" continued Ford. "When he blew up the Los Angeles Times, he profited by the example of men like Darrow."

"I object!" shouted Appel, leaping to his feet. "I assign that as an error."

Ford stood with arms folded glaring fiercely at the defendant. "Imagine the distressed women and children standing at the fire lines on the morning of the disaster, while their husbands and fathers burned! Imagine them stretching out their hands to this defendant, who says there is no such thing as crime as the word is generally understood, and praying him give. Oh give us back our protectors!"

Ford advanced pleadingly toward Darrow, stretching out his arms appealingly. Darrow leaped to his feet.

"Can Ford say anything he likes here, your honor?" he demanded. "What have I to do with the Times dynamiting?"

Ford went on:

"Shortly after the McNamara was arrested Darrow knew that the case against them was hopeless, and—"

"There is no such evidence," coolly interrupted Darrow. "I take an exception."

Hoped to Save Reputation.

The prosecutor then assigned bribery as Darrow's motive, declaring that the defendant had a great reputation to preserve, and that he was determined to preserve it by any means at his disposal.

"He knew that Orlie McNamara had testified against the McNamaras before the grand jury, so he brought Mrs. McNamara to California to commit crime, to make her persuade her husband to change his testimony. George Hutton was brought out here for the same purpose."

Ford then went into the collateral matters against Darrow, endeavoring to bolster up the charges of "wholesale bribery and corruption" in the McNamara trial, which the state has built up.

Making a personal appeal to Juror F. E. Golding, Ford today attempted to lead Golding out of the belief that the case against Darrow was a frame-up. When examined for jury duty, Golding admitted a suspicion that the case might be a frame-up.

STENOGRAPHERS' LEAGUE WILL MEET TONIGHT

The first meeting of the Stenographers' league since its organization a few weeks ago will be held at the offices of the Oregon State Equal Suffrage association, 516 Bell building, this evening at 8 o'clock. Both men and women are eligible to membership in the club, and all who are interested in raising the standard of the profession and in mutual advancement are invited. The club was organized as a permanent organization. During the present political campaign equal suffrage will receive the support of the league. The officers are: Mrs. E. O. Gardner, president; Mrs. A. Taylor, first vice president; Miss Mattie O'Brien, second vice president; Miss Eva Frances, third vice president; Miss Marie O'Brien, secretary; Miss Agnes Lane, treasurer.

You Can Pin Your Faith
—on our Optical work.
—Go into the eyeglass question carefully before you buy glasses.
—It is as dangerous to wear glasses prescribed by any one but a skilled specialist, as it is to wear glasses fitted to some one else's eyes.
—Twenty years' experience goes into every pair of glasses we fit.
—Our lens grinding plant is the most modern on the coast. Broken lenses replaced while you wait.

THOMPSON OPTICAL INSTITUTE
209-10-11 Corbett Bldg.
FIFTH AND MORRISON STS.

Excavation and grading work begun on street to connect car lines.

Excavation and grading work was started today by the Portland Railway, Light & Power company on Adams street, preparatory to laying a double line of streetcar tracks connecting the east approach of the new O.-W. R. & N. steel bridge with the company's lines on Holladay avenue. The company will rush the work to completion and hope to have streetcars crossing the structure within 30 days.

Tracks have already been laid across the bridge, trolley poles have been erected and all that remains to be done is to stretch trolley wires.

While tracklaying is progressing on Adams street, a double line of tracks and switches will be built connecting the west end of the bridge with the Gilman and Third street car lines.

officer, who will make 12 trips per year and make a thorough report on road conditions over this line. He will be a man versed in the art of road building. I know of no better way to advertise this wonderful country and this wonderful scenery than to let road conditions be known in the east, and let the tourist know where he can go, how he can go, and what the expense would be.

"The two great factors which will build up eastern Oregon are the Open River Navigation company on the Columbia river and the improvement of its highways by means of convict labor. At comparatively little expense the highways of eastern Oregon can be improved and made passable every day in the year."

"If possible, it is desirable the children in the public schools be taught that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points. Many of the farmers in eastern Oregon and western California have fenced up the old road, necessitating a square turn. You must run two sides of a triangle in place of a diagonal, and while that only affects the casual traveler but once, it necessitates the farmer and all his neighbors making this detour every time they drive into town. The expense of fencing the diagonal, of course, would be something, but nothing compared to the saving in hauling the loads."

Should Be Punished.
"If some form of corporal punishment could be devised and properly applied to those so-called roadbuilders who insist either in lowering or elevating the grade of a road every time it approaches a bridge or a culvert, it would be desirable. Why they always take pleasure in giving the wagon a jolt and breaking a spring when it approaches a bridge, is inconceivable. What would you think if every time a railroad train approached a bridge or culvert, it jerked every passenger from his seat and landed him abruptly on the end of his spine?"

"From a local business standpoint we must realize that whatever helps the state also helps its chief city, and anything that helps Portland will help build up the business of the Home Telephone & Telegraph company. Portland and no other city can grow unless the surrounding territory is developed."

While in California, Mr. Hill conferred with H. B. Fletcher, California state highway commissioner. Mr. Hill urged the importance of making a double connection with Oregon lines at Cole on the west side of the mountains on the California boundary, and at Pine Creek, just south of Lakeview on the eastern boundary.

WILSON NOT READY TO TALK ON SINGLE TERM
(United Press Special Wire.)
Sea Girt, N. J., Aug. 12.—"I do not want to give a horseback opinion," was the answer given here today by Governor Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic presidential nominee, when asked why it was that his speech of acceptance failed to comment on the plank for a single presidential term.

"I do not care to say anything on this topic now," added Wilson, "but later I shall make my position perfectly clear on all planks in the platform. A speech of acceptance need not necessarily embrace all platform subjects. I took for my initial tolerance the topics I believed were the most pressing."

In referring to the size of the fund to be raised for his campaign, Governor Wilson said:

"I have received many letters regarding this fund. I have never said a word about its size, as the amount depends entirely upon how big a campaign is planned. Personally I hope to get along on the smallest amount that will meet necessary and legitimate demands."

PIONEER OF LANE COUNTY SUCCEUMS TO OPERATION
Eugene, Or., Aug. 12.—J. T. Rowland, a prominent pioneer of Eugene, died at the Eugene hospital Saturday night at the age of 74 years, after an operation. He was born at Carthage, Ill., and came to Oregon in the early sixties. He was a veteran of the Civil war and a member of the M. E. church. He leaves a widow, two sons, Virgil and Otto, and a daughter, Miss Mary Rowland, all of Eugene.

Best Way to Advertise.
"The Pacific Highway association in San Francisco resolved to make a permanent organization for the benefit of highways through British Columbia, Washington, Oregon, California and on through Mexico. Anyone who desires can join this association by paying the annual fee of $5 and will get the benefits of all the data which this association will collect through its executive."

Toasties served for supper, almost every night. How "The Memory Lingers," dreams are always bright. Wake up in the morning feeling fine and gay. Breakfast on Post Toasties, happy all the day.

Written by MRS. G. E. FEAMSTER, Wapping St., Frankfort, Ky.
One of the 50 singles for which Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich., paid $1000 in June.

P. R., L. & P. Co. to Start Laying Tracks on Adams Street
Cars May Be Running Over New Bridge Within 30 Days

POLICE SHOOT TWO MEXICANS IN RIOT
Los Angeles Officers Attacked While Arresting Man for Theft of Watch.

(United Press Special Wire.)
Los Angeles, Aug. 12.—Leo Gutierrez, Mexican, is dead, another Mexican is in jail, and Patrolmen Perry and Harris are suffering from severe wounds today, the result of a riot in the plaza, during which the officers were stoned by a mob of infuriated Mexicans.

Attempting to arrest Ed Moreno, whom they believed had stolen a watch, the officers rushed a Mexican restaurant in the old General Fremont house, the oldest house in Los Angeles. It was while leaving this place that they were attacked by the mob.

According to the officers, Gutierrez was shot by Perry when the Mexican attempted to use his own revolver. Police reserves dispersed the thousands of Mexicans and Chinese who swarmed the plaza for an hour after the riot.

MOTHER BEAR RECLAIMS CUB FROM YOUNG TAFT
(Special to The Journal.)
Glacier Park, Mont., Aug. 12.—An old mother Bruin stole into the Taft party's camp on the side of Red Eagle mountain last night and thereby hangs a tale of how President Taft is to be spared the political embarrassment of having to receive a Teddy bear cub into his household when his son Robert returns from his outing in Glacier National Park.

The cub was presented to young Taft by Big Top, Blackfoot Indian chief. On the arrival of the Taft expedition August 6, "Scotty," the guide, got a dog collar for the cub and the mascot waited in camp as a pet. The young animal cried nearly all last night until rescued and adopted by the old she bear, which bravely descended the mountain side, gnawed the rope in two parts and defiantly marched back up the mountain growling her feeling at two of the guides who started to follow the bold "cubnapper."

RAGER SWAMPED WHILE GOING 35 MILES HOUR
(United Press Special Wire.)
Chicago, Aug. 12.—"Reliance III," the power boat representing Michigan in the International Championship Power Boat regatta, being held here, sank off the Chicago Yacht club on Lake Michigan today.

The Reliance was running at the rate of 35 miles an hour when the wash from a hydroplane swamped her. The hydroplane rescued the Reliance's crew.

Butterick Patterns and Publications—American Lady Corsets
Sahlin Waists MARSHALL 4900—A-6665
Ice Cream Soda 5c
Candies Bakery Pure Foods

Economy Tuesday!
A Series of Special Values That Will Appeal to Those Women Who Couldn't Find It Convenient to Visit This Store Monday. Savings That Are Worth Your While.

A Very Great Sale of Sample Night Dresses
A Continuation of the sale that began here today, reinforced with additions brought forward from reserve stocks. Absolutely the greatest bargain opportunity of the year for procuring the world's best in Women's Night Dresses. On sale at about the cost of materials.

Made of fine dimities, nainsooks, longcloths and cambrics. Beautifully made and finished. Elaborately trimmed with fine embroideries, Val. and Cluny laces and ribbons. Slip-over and front-buttoning kinds, long or short sleeves. They're priced at these special figures:

Real $1.50 Night Dresses at only 69c
Real $2.00 Night Dresses at only 89c
Real $2.50 Night Dresses only $1.18

20c Candy, 10c
A bunch of Candies—Run your eye over this list of pure, fresh, delicious Candies and see if it doesn't seem that sweet tooth jumping: Coconut Bon Bons... 10c
Italian Creams... 10c
Ass'ted Cream Wafers... 10c
Princess Strawberries... 10c
Cream Kisses... 10c
Imitation Apricots... 10c
Chocolate Chews... 10c
Harlequin Jellies... 10c
Peerless Squares... 10c
Cream Covered Dates... 10c
Imitation Almonds... 10c
Boston Baked Beans... 10c

$1.25 16-Button Silk Gloves, Reduced, Only 79c
Exactly of the same quality that you're asked to pay $1.25 for, no matter where you go, are these Gloves. Made of pure Milanese Silk in 16-button length, and the fingers are double tipped! They come in black, white, tan and gray. We guarantee satisfaction. Genuine $1.25 quality, at 79c

$1.25 Silk Hose Now for 79c
Couldn't begin to give such a value if the manufacturer hadn't made a miscalculation as to delivery. But he did, and had to make a most liberal reduction to have us take them. These stockings are made of hard-twisted pure thread silk, extremely durable yet sheer. The deep elastic garter top, high spliced heels and double soles are of finest French lisle. The maker is so sure of their goodness that he guarantees them. 79c
Real $1.25 values specially priced tomorrow at 79c

Women's 3.50 White Shoes, Only $1.00
Women's White Canvas and Sea Island Duck Shoes are to be closed out in a hurry—and prices have been reduced to it! Choice of all our women's White Canvas and White Sea Island Duck Shoes—high button and 3-button Oxfords that sold up to $3.50, priced $1.00 for this sale at $1.00

$1.50 Wilton Velour Rugs, Reduced, 85c
Here's a Rug Special every economical housekeeper ought to take advantage of! They are high quality Wilton Velvet Rugs—measure 27x54 inches, and come in a very extensive assortment of beautiful Oriental floral and conventional designs. Best $1.50 sellers, on sale tomorrow only 85c

65c to $1 Dress Silks 29c
A final closing-out sale of all that is left of our Summer Dress Silks, comprising foulards, messalines, taffetas and other soft Summer silks. All of them in choice colorings suitable for street and evening wear. Sold regularly 65c to $1. On Balcony tomorrow at 29c

24-27 Inch Embroidered Flouncing 29c
24 and 27-inch Embroidered Swiss Flouncing, scalloped and hemstitched edges. New ideas in openwork and eyelet patterns—all of them are genuine 75c values, on sale tomorrow at 29c

To $3.00 Lingerie Waists, Only $1.39
These are of the sheerest, daintiest fabrics to be had. Embellish'd elaborately with laces, embroideries and fine tucks, high collar or square neck; vals. to $3 $1.39

Pure Food Specials
Milwaukee Frankfurters on special sale, per pound 20c
Kosher Beef Sausage on sale at this low price, pound 20c
Imported Summer Sausage on special sale, a pound 38c
Imported Swiss Cheese on sale for this day, a pound 36c
Fancy Mackerel, regular 25c value, special at only 19c
Smoked Bloaters special for this sale, seven for only 25c
Fancy California Lemons on special sale, per dozen 22c
Postum Cereal specially priced at, per package only 20c

Prices Interesting and it is now up to you to save money and get
TWO PAIRS OF SHOES FOR THE PRICE OF ONE

REMEMBER:
We only handle the BEST STANDARD MAKES, and every pair is reduced in price.

THIS INCLUDES HANAN'S CELEBRATED

Best on Earth SHOES
See our windows and bring the family.

Rosenthal's
SEVENTH & WASHINGTON

Every Pair of Summer Shoes
Must leave our store before September 1, so have made the Excavation and grading work begun on street to connect car lines.

GREATEST NEED IS STANDARD SYSTEM OF ROAD BUILDING

Such, Says Samuel Hill, Is the Most Important Question Before Oregon; Back From Auto Trip to Bay City.

The most important question Oregon has before it is the matter of the standardization of its system of road building. The future prosperity of the state depends upon this," says Samuel Hill, president of the Home Telephone and Telegraph company, who arrived home yesterday in his automobile after a trip to Los Angeles and return, which took him 16 days. Going down Mr. Hill shipped his car to The Dalles and continued overland from there without further delay than that occasioned by one blowout. Mr. Hill says the roads over which he traveled will stand some improvement, though they are passable every day in the year.

Telling of his trip yesterday Mr. Hill said: "I never saw so many different kinds of wasteful and extravagant methods of road building in the same distance as I saw in western Oregon. The trip was positively dangerous and I would not advise anyone to attempt it. I agree fully with S. Benson, who advised me to go and return through eastern Oregon."

Medford Model City.
"However, after traveling over some vile and unspeakable roads, we suddenly entered the beautiful city of Ashland, well paved, well lighted and clean in every way. Twelve miles farther on we entered Medford, which might almost be termed a model city, and then on to Grants Pass, which boasts streets which they think as good as Medford streets, and lights and water equals Medford."

Between these towns and all the other towns of the valley, whether Eugene, Albany or Salem, there is food for reflection as you pass along the improperly located trails dignified by the name of 'roads,' and frequently see unoccupied farm houses and evidences that these attractive towns have drawn on the surrounding country for their population. Unless something is done for the farmer the cities of Oregon will wake up some day to the fact that the source of their prosperity is gone."

"I am not a pessimist, but I foresee great danger unless organized effort be made to better conditions on the farm. The improvement of country roads should be the business of every city dweller, as well as every farmer, and when I saw how much money had been spent in Josephine county in building roads on a 9 per cent grade, and looked down in the valleys and saw the beautiful Southern Pacific track passing on a low grade it occurred to me that a chair of road building is needed in every college in the state of Oregon. No roads were laid out in the state of Washington during the time I was chairman of the board on a grade exceeding 5 per cent. The mountains were crossed on that grade and the mountains there are just as high as they are in Oregon."

It is not a nice thing to be always scolding, but in the long run the man who tells the truth will gain the confidence of his neighbors, and if anyone doubts that these things are possible and that the farmer will endorse good roads, let him get in touch with any farmer in Klickitat county, Washington.

Best Way to Advertise.
"The Pacific Highway association in San Francisco resolved to make a permanent organization for the benefit of highways through British Columbia, Washington, Oregon, California and on through Mexico. Anyone who desires can join this association by paying the annual fee of $5 and will get the benefits of all the data which this association will collect through its executive."

Excavation and grading work begun on street to connect car lines.

GREATEST NEED IS STANDARD SYSTEM OF ROAD BUILDING

Such, Says Samuel Hill, Is the Most Important Question Before Oregon; Back From Auto Trip to Bay City.

The most important question Oregon has before it is the matter of the standardization of its system of road building. The future prosperity of the state depends upon this," says Samuel Hill, president of the Home Telephone and Telegraph company, who arrived home yesterday in his automobile after a trip to Los Angeles and return, which took him 16 days. Going down Mr. Hill shipped his car to The Dalles and continued overland from there without further delay than that occasioned by one blowout. Mr. Hill says the roads over which he traveled will stand some improvement, though they are passable every day in the year.

Telling of his trip yesterday Mr. Hill said: "I never saw so many different kinds of wasteful and extravagant methods of road building in the same distance as I saw in western Oregon. The trip was positively dangerous and I would not advise anyone to attempt it. I agree fully with S. Benson, who advised me to go and return through eastern Oregon."

Medford Model City.
"However, after traveling over some vile and unspeakable roads, we suddenly entered the beautiful city of Ashland, well paved, well lighted and clean in every way. Twelve miles farther on we entered Medford, which might almost be termed a model city, and then on to Grants Pass, which boasts streets which they think as good as Medford streets, and lights and water equals Medford."

Between these towns and all the other towns of the valley, whether Eugene, Albany or Salem, there is food for reflection as you pass along the improperly located trails dignified by the name of 'roads,' and frequently see unoccupied farm houses and evidences that these attractive towns have drawn on the surrounding country for their population. Unless something is done for the farmer the cities of Oregon will wake up some day to the fact that the source of their prosperity is gone."

"I am not a pessimist, but I foresee great danger unless organized effort be made to better conditions on the farm. The improvement of country roads should be the business of every city dweller, as well as every farmer, and when I saw how much money had been spent in Josephine county in building roads on a 9 per cent grade, and looked down in the valleys and saw the beautiful Southern Pacific track passing on a low grade it occurred to me that a chair of road building is needed in every college in the state of Oregon. No roads were laid out in the state of Washington during the time I was chairman of the board on a grade exceeding 5 per cent. The mountains were crossed on that grade and the mountains there are just as high as they are in Oregon."

It is not a nice thing to be always scolding, but in the long run the man who tells the truth will gain the confidence of his neighbors, and if anyone doubts that these things are possible and that the farmer will endorse good roads, let him get in touch with any farmer in Klickitat county, Washington.

Best Way to Advertise.
"The Pacific Highway association in San Francisco resolved to make a permanent organization for the benefit of highways through British Columbia, Washington, Oregon, California and on through Mexico. Anyone who desires can join this association by paying the annual fee of $5 and will get the benefits of all the data which this association will collect through its executive."

Excavation and grading work begun on street to connect car lines.

GREATEST NEED IS STANDARD SYSTEM OF ROAD BUILDING

Such, Says Samuel Hill, Is the Most Important Question Before Oregon; Back From Auto Trip to Bay City.

The most important question Oregon has before it is the matter of the standardization of its system of road building. The future prosperity of the state depends upon this," says Samuel Hill, president of the Home Telephone and Telegraph company, who arrived home yesterday in his automobile after a trip to Los Angeles and return, which took him 16 days. Going down Mr. Hill shipped his car to The Dalles and continued overland from there without further delay than that occasioned by one blowout. Mr. Hill says the roads over which he traveled will stand some improvement, though they are passable every day in the year.

Telling of his trip yesterday Mr. Hill said: "I never saw so many different kinds of wasteful and extravagant methods of road building in the same distance as I saw in western Oregon. The trip was positively dangerous and I would not advise anyone to attempt it. I agree fully with S. Benson, who advised me to go and return through eastern Oregon."

Medford Model City.
"However, after traveling over some vile and unspeakable roads, we suddenly entered the beautiful city of Ashland, well paved, well lighted and clean in every way. Twelve miles farther on we entered Medford, which might almost be termed a model city, and then on to Grants Pass, which boasts streets which they think as good as Medford streets, and lights and water equals Medford."

Between these towns and all the other towns of the valley, whether Eugene, Albany or Salem, there is food for reflection as you pass along the improperly located trails dignified by the name of 'roads,' and frequently see unoccupied farm houses and evidences that these attractive towns have drawn on the surrounding country for their population. Unless something is done for the farmer the cities of Oregon will wake up some day to the fact that the source of their prosperity is gone."

"I am not a pessimist, but I foresee great danger unless organized effort be made to better conditions on the farm. The improvement of country roads should be the business of every city dweller, as well as every farmer, and when I saw how much money had been spent in Josephine county in building roads on a 9 per cent grade, and looked down in the valleys and saw the beautiful Southern Pacific track passing on a low grade it occurred to me that a chair of road building is needed in every college in the state of Oregon. No roads were laid out in the state of Washington during the time I was chairman of the board on a grade exceeding 5 per cent. The mountains were crossed on that grade and the mountains there are just as high as they are in Oregon."

It is not a nice thing to be always scolding, but in the long run the man who tells the truth will gain the confidence of his neighbors, and if anyone doubts that these things are possible and that the farmer will endorse good roads, let him get in touch with any farmer in Klickitat county, Washington.

Best Way to Advertise.
"The Pacific Highway association in San Francisco resolved to make a permanent organization for the benefit of highways through British Columbia, Washington, Oregon, California and on through Mexico. Anyone who desires can join this association by paying the annual fee of $5 and will get the benefits of all the data which this association will collect through its executive."

Excavation and grading work begun on street to connect car lines.

GREATEST NEED IS STANDARD SYSTEM OF ROAD BUILDING

Such, Says Samuel Hill, Is the Most Important Question Before Oregon; Back From Auto Trip to Bay City.

The most important question Oregon has before it is the matter of the standardization of its system of road building. The future prosperity of the state depends upon this," says Samuel Hill, president of the Home Telephone and Telegraph company, who arrived home yesterday in his automobile after a trip to Los Angeles and return, which took him 16 days. Going down Mr. Hill shipped his car to The Dalles and continued overland from there without further delay than that occasioned by one blowout. Mr. Hill says the roads over which he traveled will stand some improvement, though they are passable every day in the year.

Telling of his trip yesterday Mr. Hill said: "I never saw so many different kinds of wasteful and extravagant methods of road building in the same distance as I saw in western Oregon. The trip was positively dangerous and I would not advise anyone to attempt it. I agree fully with S. Benson, who advised me to go and return through eastern Oregon."

Medford Model City.
"However, after traveling over some vile and unspeakable roads, we suddenly entered the beautiful city of Ashland, well paved, well lighted and clean in every way. Twelve miles farther on we entered Medford, which might almost be termed a model city, and then on to Grants Pass, which boasts streets which they think as good as Medford streets, and lights and water equals Medford."

Between these towns and all the other towns of the valley, whether Eugene, Albany or Salem, there is food for reflection as you pass along the improperly located trails dignified by the name of 'roads,' and frequently see unoccupied farm houses and evidences that these attractive towns have drawn on the surrounding country for their population. Unless something is done for the farmer the cities of Oregon will wake up some day to the fact that the source of their prosperity is gone."

"I am not a pessimist, but I foresee great danger unless organized effort be made to better conditions on the farm. The improvement of country roads should be the business of every city dweller, as well as every farmer, and when I saw how much money had been spent in Josephine county in building roads on a 9 per cent grade, and looked down in the valleys and saw the beautiful Southern Pacific track passing on a low grade it occurred to me that a chair of road building is needed in every college in the state of Oregon. No roads were laid out in the state of Washington during the time I was chairman of the board on a grade exceeding 5 per cent. The mountains were crossed on that grade and the mountains there are just as high as they are in Oregon."

It is not a nice thing to be always scolding, but in the long run the man who tells the truth will gain the confidence of his neighbors, and if anyone doubts that these things are possible and that the farmer will endorse good roads, let him get in touch with any farmer in Klickitat county, Washington.