Man Must Stop Spending Coin.-Ar order restraining J. Forslof from spending his money was issued this morning from the circuit court. Mrs. Forslof asked for this order, setting forth that her husband has deserted her, and is spending his money in riotous living. The wife was deserted with a babe of one month, and two other small children. In signing the order, Judge Mc-Ginn said that if the money belonged to the man, he had a right to do whatever he chose with it, but the court would grant a temporary order for the protection of the woman. Forslof was given a judgment of $2200 against the street railway company for an injury. on a trip to Sweden, while the wife was practically penniless. She has started suit for a divorce, and asks that the money be conserved until the decree is

Motel Clerks Mike .- In order to talk intelligently to guests concerning the trip to Mount Hood from Portland, several clerks of the leading hotels of this city recently made the journey to Mount Hood, and acquainted themselves with the route, and the principal points en route. This is the first of a series of trips that will be made from this point. Leaving Portland on the O-W. R. & N. line they reached Hood River, where an automobile took them to Cloud Cap Inn. The rest of the journey was made on foot. The little party climbed to the summit where several hours were spent. Among those who made the trip were Ross Finnegan, of the Multnomah; P. A. Layman, of the Seward; L. M. Rodby, of the Imperial, and William West, of the Cleeton on Vacation.-County Judge dentists, Third and Washington. Cleeton is on vacation. He was gone last week, and will be away until next Saturday. All county probate business is handled by the circuit court. The law allows this court to handle probate matters in the absence of the county judge. Before leaving, Judge Cleeton made no arrangements with the presiding judge to handle this work. When a probate matter was brought before Judge Mc-Ginn this morning he said he had no objection to taking care of it, but he thought the county judge should have left some word with the circuit court to this effect.

15-YEAR-OLD BOY SHOOTS AT INTRUDER IN PARENTS' HOME

Leon Allen, a 15-year-old boy who is taking care of his parents' home at 445 East Seventystreet, awakened by a sixth prowler who was flashing his light into the home, at 2 o'clock this morning, fired several shots at the intruder, and routed him, but on account of the darkness and lack of skill in the use of a weapon was unable to hit the man nor to secure a description of him. Patrolman Hunt, who was sent to investigate shooting that had aroused the neighbors, learned from the boy that the home has been disturbed on several occasions and later making an investigation learned from a Japanese that a man had encountered him on the and demanded to know where he was from and then ran on. The affair has created considerable excitement in the neighborhood, as prowlers have annoyed the residents to a considerable extent recently.

In advertising the counsel of so-called experts is not required by men who have well-defined ideas of their own and who are consumed by an intense yearning to go before the public with the story of their wares. There is a certain fine frenzy that the naturally enterprising posseses man, and this frenzy finds expresssion in a warm enthusiasm that no expert can supply. So, to sum it all up: No physician can look out for your health so well as you can yourself, no advertising expert can plan and evecute your advertising so well as you. This truth will be recognized and to go about the promotion of a product, admitted by every man who believes and their replies will vary as much as in himself, and will be disputed only the prescriptions of the mysicians.

The general was not there in person. ington Memorial association, an organ ization of persons who desire to erect a monument to the man revered by school children because of the holiday crop of edible beans, specimens of pods that comes every February 22, and by laboring men because on that day they get "holiday overtime" for the sweat of their brows.

The committee had pondered the matter long and eloquently. They had the money and liked the general, despite the fact that they never had found out whether he carried a union card or not when he laid the corner stone of the republic. But the committee could not agree as to whether or not they could not put their money to better use than spending it on a man who, they had been reliably informed, was as dead as monuments to keep him in the ground. Anyway, said the chairman of the com-"the gentleman isn't buried in San Francisco so far as I know of, and daily 7:30 a. m.; returns 4:30 p. m. Broulett referred to the country's parent as being a laboring man while he lived and therefore entitled to some recognition and contri butions to his monument. Others differed, however, with this view and the debate waxed wrathful.

There were those who referred to th general as a slave driver. Another delegate to the council said that as he Dr. J. D. Sternberg has moved to had been dead those 400 years why not let his memory rest in peace. A. Gallagher said that "time and a half" for labor on the old man's birthday deserved some recognition from all union men, but Selig Schulberg, another dece gate, told Gallagher to shut up his mouth, and Gallagher did." Finally the matter was referred to a
