one of the character witnesses who tes tified in favor of Judge Hanford in the recent impeachment hearing by the congressional committee in Scattle. Howard was also president of the State Bar association a year ago. In his work for the corporations, Howard has not only been their legal counsel in courts, but also has been their chief lobbyist before the legislature and the city council of Bellingham.

William J. Biggar of Bellingham, candidate for congress on the Progressive party ticket, this morning wired to Sen, ator Poindexter of this state to the effect that Howard's appointment is an "outrageous insult" to the people, and that it ought not to be confirmed by the senate under any circumstances. "Howard has always opposed the will of the people. He has always sought special privileges," said Biggar. Seattle Progressives are equally aroused. Plans are now being discussed to arrange for a monster protest meeting against the confirmation of Howard's appointment by the senate.

Humorist Sees Great Changes Here in the Past Ten Years.

Thomas W. Jackson, author of "On a Slow Train Through Arkansas," "Through Missouri on a Mule," and many other humorous books, is registered at the Seward. Mr. Jackson, accompanied by his wife, is on a tour through the west. They expect to remain in Portland for several days. An interview with Mr. Jackson today proved that he is a humorous talker as well as a humorous writer.

"And how about the scenery? It is said to be very fine on the C. P. R." "The scenery out here is marvelous." said Mr. Jackson, "and I liked it all right with one exception-there was too much of it; one can't absorb it all." "Canada, which I passed through, real izes she has a big country-and a rich

one, and they are developing it, too. The immigration to British Columbia and Alberta is something phenomenal. There is a town over there with a population of 500,000. Just the other day I town lots enough to accommodate a population of 500,00. Just the other day read in a Calgary paper where a fellow had been found way out on the plains. His horse had died, his food gone, and very little water left-he was looking for his city lots. I was very much impressed with Vancouver. It is a lively place, with clean streets, many new and substantial business blocks. very much American, and has all the ear marks of becoming a real city. "I want you to take me serious as to what I have to say about Portland. Ten years ago: Portland was my home, and at that time I thought it was just about as near the country as it was possible to get, but on my arrival here yester-day. I met with the greatest surprise of my life. Instead of finding Portland as I had known it ten years ago, I found an entirely different city-every thing new-no old land-marks left that coked natural. You have a city here that you should be proud of. Even though I am from Chicago, I am amazed at your magnificent buildings-many real sky scrapers. Walking along Washington street reminds me of State street in Chicago, so many people! I think Portland is destined to become a great place, as she has many natural advantages over her rival cities, if Columbus had only landed in the northwest, there wouldn't be any New York today."
