tival company of vocalists came to the Heilig last night and gave an entranc-ing performance and production of "The Mikado."

One ceases to wonder, after hearing the revival of "The Mikado," why the Gilbert & Sullivan music has echoed down through a quarter of a century, always as fresh and tuneful and clean as though it were just from the press for the first time. There are melodies running through the score of "The Mi-kado" that have become classics. The present generation recognizes them as though by instinct, and to the fathers and mothers who loved light opera in the "olden days" the music must bring a flood of happy memorles.
