to size of package. The Hood River Apple Cider company, which is represented in this city by J. F. Fellows, who has been in charge of the local selling for several years.

"There will likely be plenty of cider of good quality this season," says Mr. Fellows, "and the quality will soon be There is a very good crop of apples for the cider men to work with this year and as soon as the fruit is more fully ripened, the cider will be "The consumption of cider in this market is increasing every season. The people are demanding a better grade of stock than they received some years ago. They not only want the cider to be pure but it wants to be absolutely clean. Every apple that is made into cider at these fiver is cleaned by water and them. Hood River is cleaned by water and then wiped thoroughly thus insuring the absence of objectionable matter." The opening price this season is the same as a year ago.

COLUMBIA SHAD PACK PASSES OUT OF HANDS OF THE PACKERS HERE

Fully 90 Per Cent of Output Is Sold and Demand Is Increasing; Fish Making Market of Its Own in the

About 90 per cent of this year's pack of Columbia river shad has already been sold by canners. The Pillar Rock Packing company has sold its entire output of 2400 cases and other packers report that most of their stock has already passed into either jobbing or consuming hands.

The total pack of shad along the Columbja this season was around 12,300 cases. Being the first season for commercial packing, the output was remarkably large. The fact that the bulk of the stock has already passed from first hands indicates that the product is fast winning its way on its merits.

Previous to the opening of Alaskan salmon prices it was generally believed that the shad would take the place of cheaper grades of salmon owing to the popular price of 10c a can which tould be sold at in the retail market, with a good profit to the handler. Instead of taking the place of the cheaper salmon, the product has really created a market for itself and worked entirely independent of what salmon is selling at.

This is a big encouragement to packers and the indication is that there will sers and the indication in the traction will be greater activity in the market next season when a greater output will be canned and the public has really secured a taste of this delicious fish.

In time it is expected that the shad packing industry here will rival that

Hog prices are depressed in the North Portland market, as was forecasted in this paper during recent days. Only one load sold at $9.10 this morning, or 15c under the price of yesterday, but the bulk of the business was not above $9, or a drop of 25c from previous fig-

There was another good run of swine in the local yards today, and while the market started quickly, it was at lower figures. The sharp declines in the price at points east of the Rockies form the basis for the lowering of values here.

Notwithstanding the drop in price here, the Portland market continues to be the highest in the entire country, being 35c better than Chicago, which is the highest east of the Rockies.

Many more hogs are coming forward from Pacific coast points. In addition from Pacific coast points. In addition to the big runs of California stuff recently, there was a very liberal offering from northwest points this morning. Totals were 691 head, compared with 808 yesterday, none a week ago, 584 a year ago and 137 head this same

Hogs Drop in the East. At Chicago there was a drop of I in the hog market today with a run of 25,000 compared with 23,000 a year age. Tops sold there this morning at $8.75. Kansas City hog trade was the weal est for over a week with the price 10 15c lower than yescerday. Run w

Cattle Market Is Depressed. While Puget sound cattle buyers ar paying very firm prices in the countr and values are at the highest point eve known in the interior, local interests ar bearish and some extra fancy stuf could not be moved this morning at $ The bearish sentiment of the loca trade is the wonder of the entire Paci the northwest in view of the activity of the northern buyers at primary points.

On the basis of the values now offer ing in the local yards the cattle marke here is fully 25c lower. Cattle market was firmer with an ad

Wide Difference in Price Is the Re- White Oats Down About 50 Cents a sult of Badly Mixed Quality in Willamette Valley; Some Trade Reported i: California.

A spread of 14c to 19c a pound is shown in the bids for 1912 hops in the Willamette valley at this time. The difference in price is a reflection of quality.

According to Charles Werner, who has been in the hop trade for about 25 years, he has never before seen such a mixture of quality as this season. Mr. Werner drove from this city through a portion of Washington county and over to Aurora, Butteville and Wilsonville yesterday and states that he found but little good quality.

"There is considerable 'junk' this season," he says, "in fact more than I have ever seen since I entered the business. It is much worse than three years ago. On the west side there were some good hops but the showing there is not so good."
Mr. Werner estimates that the crop this season is fully 115,000 bales. "It is much heavier than I or anyone else had expected," he says. had expected," he says.

One sale was reported on the west side at 19c a pound for choice goods but neither the name nor the seller, grower nor the amount of the bales could be secured here this morning. Other small lots were reported sold down to 14c. down to 14c.

It this way: The delayed action of an individual is controlled by selfishness. He reads and examines a measure to see how it will affect his or her interests.
