RELATES HOW HIS WORK ISHINDERED

Practice of Certain City Officials Defending Persons Arrested by Police, Hurts the Cause, Asserts Esterly.

The practice by certain city officials persons accused of law violations, constitutes one of the hardest features he afternoon. has had to combat in the present vice situation in Portland, according to H.

"When men high in the city administration, as attorneys, will personally take up the legal defense of persons arrested by policemen who are under them, what are you to expect?" said Mr. Esterly today.

When the policeman sees his boss defending a prisoner against whom he is the complaining witness, is he likely to press the case very hard? Could be be expected to do so, when in so doing he would be opposing, someone with a job? The result, just as might be expected, is a dearth of convictions in which the prisoners are thus defended. Can't Blame Policeman.

That is a situation grave enough police is a good deal more far-reaching than through the mere importance of the case itself. When a person is arrested for violating the law and gets off in the police court with a city official defending him, the police go slow in arresting other persons for similar offenses, and the acquitted person in any event is not likely to be brought into court again if the policeman believes the law violation has been re-"Of course, you can't blame the policeman. He is likely to believe his job depends on it, and naturally is not anxious to incur the displeasure of his superiors. If he loses enthusiasm it is what most folks would do in the same circumstances.

"It only emphasizes the insidious character of the evil resulting from tihs practice by city officials. Their motives may be of the best, but the effect can only be to cause the police to slacken their efforts against law breakers.

West in Conference. "It is a practice that is itself a violation of law under the United States statutes if government officers followed it, but unfortunately there is no city ordinance in Portland that seems to cover the situation. At the very best, it is certainly remarkably poor taste on the part of the public official, sworn to do his duty and enforce the Tanner Influenced by Hazel Erwin, Says Lawyer, in Murder Case.

The fate of Willard Tanner, charged with the first degree murder of Ray Wallace, will be placed in the hands o the jury late this afternoon, Arguments are being made today. Deputy District Attorney Fitzgerald will close for the state about 4 o'clock, Attorneys Campof undertaking the defense in court of bell and Hammersly, for Tanner, ocupled the forenoon and part of this Attorney Hammersly told the jury that Tanner was under the influence of M. Esterly, special prosecutor in vice Hazel Erwin, whom he characterized as head by an inch and landed in his carand now seeking to place all the blame on Tanner. He argued that Tanner could meeting which he had addressed on home not have killed Wallace, as the girl rule for Ireland when the missle was says he did. Attorney Hammersly foilowed this line of argument, asking many questions relative to the girl's testimony. He pointed out that her subsequent actions and statements indicate of Abercorn, when Nationalists stoned guilt on her part.

Four women were at the court house this morning, when the doors were opened at 8 o'clock. So many women have crowded into the court room since the good deal of power over the policeman's trial began that Judge Kavanaugh issued an order yesterday that the bailiff should have everyone leave the room at noon adjournment, and lock the doors until court convenes at 2 o'clock. The women loudly protested against this. but the effect of one such case on the Several brought lunches Thursday, eating them in the court room in order to not lose their chairs. There is considerable speculation around the trial, as to the verdict the jury will return. TAILORS ARRESTED FOR RUNNING A LOTTERY

Ben Famiga and G. Laube were arrested this morning in connection with the charges against the Great Northern Tailors' Combine of running a lottery and were charged with setting up a lottery. F. L. Grey and C. A. Brown were charged with visiting a lottery and W. A. Perkins and R. H. Rudd were charged with selling chances in a lottery. Patrolmen Miller, Sherwood and Barzee made the arrests. Famiga and Laube were the tailors who started the establishment.

The arrests are due to complains that the agents of the men have been collecting money from residents of various parts of the city.

The tailors claim that the method employed was an advertising scheme and that no intention was held of operating a lottery. Bail for the two principals was placed at $100 each. The others were held at $50 each,

BULL MOOSERS

Tangle Over Senatorship Said to Be to Senior Senator's Advantage.

Jonathan Bourne, whose uncertain attitude is disturbing the minds of the politicians favoring candidates already n the field for United States senator, is now causing uneasiness of mind in the Progressive party, which refused him a nomination at Salem.

State Senator Dan Kellaher, long the champion of Bourne and original Bull Mooser, is now out with a call to the friends of Bourne to assemble at the east side library next Monday night. He does not say just what is to be done, but the purpose is understood to be to extend a loud call to Bourne to become a candidate.

This is done with the understanding that Bourne is waiting for "the call." The senior senator has avoided telling anybody what he intends to do, naively declaring that he does not know himself, therefore cannot inform others, The Progressive party difficulty comes from the fact that it has already made a nomination for senator in the person of A. E. Clark, Kellaher was after capturing Major Aranda, who a member of the Salem convention served under President Madero in the person of A. E. Clark, Kellaher was which nominated Clark in preference to Bourne and F. W. Mulkey. Some of the Progressives say Kellaher should be bound by the action of the convention and they do not take kindly to his boosting for Bourne.

It is realized that if Bourne enters he will draw part of the Clark Progressive vote. Opinions are varied as to whether he will draw more from Ben Selling, the regular Republican, or from Harry Lane, the Democratic nominee. Some of the friends of Selling say they want Bourne in the fight, others say no and the same is true of the supporters

All around it is a tangle, from which friends of Bourne believe he may profit. Kellaher wants Bourne and his call for the meeting Monday night is intended to take the call direct to the senator.
