

WIFE, DAUGHTER, TELL SAME STORY AND STICK TO IT

Judge Will Not Permit State to Ferret Out Relation of Mrs. Creech, If Any, With William F. Kincaid.

(Special to The Journal.)
Montesano, Wash., Oct. 5.—Four hours of searching and severe cross-examination as to acquaintance with another man other than her husband, whom the state contends was the indirect cause of the murder of City Detective Frank J. Welch, who was shot by John Creech, wealthy lumberman of Raymond, last June, could not break the testimony of Mrs. Creech, or of her daughter, Mrs. Olga Brown, when they took the stand in the defense of their husband and parent today.

While the cross-examination by Prosecutor Campbell was of a very delicate nature, yet the answers were hurried at him in a clear way and bore the evidence of truth. Mrs. Creech followed her daughter on the stand and told the story of the killing and what led up to it, making a "good impression" with the jury. She said:

"I went down town with my daughter, Mrs. Brown, on the afternoon of June 3, and remained for several hours. When we returned home, we discovered the window in a bedroom had been raised and a stick of wood placed under it. Later in the evening we made another examination of the window and found that it had been tampered with again and a small flat file had been forced under it. We then decided to call the police and asked for Officer Kemper, and when the desk sergeant at the police station asked what we wanted an officer for, we did not tell him.

Examination House for 50 Minutes.
"In about three-quarters of an hour an officer, who said his name was Welch, dressed in plain clothes, arrived and we told him we feared some one was in the house. He made a personal examination of the house and then went out in the yard and he consumed about 50 minutes in making the examination of the house.

"Five minutes later we heard two shots fired in the back yard. We rushed to the door and I called out, 'What's the matter?' and Mr. Creech replied, 'My God, I have shot a man.'

"He then helped the man to the porch and began to cry and later came into the house.
"An officer came and Mrs. Brown and her brother went out to hunt for the revolver which was used by Mr. Creech."

When questioned as to whether she knew William F. Kincaid, she replied that she did, but an effort on cross-examination to bring out any further evidence as to any relations between the two was prevented by Judge Sheeks.

Witnesses Stories to Be Attacked.
Prosecuting Attorney Campbell stated tonight that the case would not be finished before Tuesday, because the state would call a number of witnesses to rebut the testimony of the Creech women, especially as to the time that the call for the officer was sent to the police station and the time that Welch left for the Creech home. The establishing of the exact time will mean much for the state, as the defense has endeavored to prove that the file was discovered under the window before Creech had arrived in the city, and the state will try to prove that it was the noise of Creech placing the file under the window that frightened the women and resulted in the call for a policeman.

A large number of prominent citizens of Aberdeen, Raymond and South Bend was called today to testify as to the good character of the witnesses and also the trouble in Raymond, which resulted in the lives of prominent men being threatened because of their activity in labor troubles, was the direct result of Creech carrying a weapon.

MUSIC HOUSE TAKES ADVERTISING EXPERT

The resignation of Arthur A. Schell as president of the Chapman Advertising company to accept the position of first assistant to the managing director of Eilers' Music House was announced yesterday. Mr. Schell will begin his duties Monday morning. He will give special attention to the developing of the sales and advertising of the company, which makes its headquarters in Portland and has 42 branch houses. Mr. Schell came to Portland the latter part of 1904 as assistant to President Goode of the Lewis & Clark exposition. At the close of the exposition he became advertising manager of Eilers' Music House. In 1907 he went to Seattle as northwestern manager of the Eilers interests. At the solicitation of the board of directors of the A-Y-P Exposition Mr. Schell, in 1909, was induced to serve as director of special events, returning to Eilers at the close of the exposition. He returned to Portland as the Portland manager of Eilers' Music House and resigned about a year and a half ago to assume his position as president of the Chapman Advertising company. Mr. Schell has been in the advertising business 15 years. He is a prominent member of the Portland Ad club.

PORTLAND ADMAN ACCEPTS POSITION

Albert S. Clark Takes Place on National Vigilance Committee.

Albert S. Clark, president of the Portland Ad club, yesterday sent his acceptance of the appointment as one of the 15 members of the national vigilance committee. Supported by the 15,000 admen who are members of the 139 advertising clubs of the United States this committee will commence the broadest campaign against false and fraudulent advertising ever undertaken in the United States.

It will organize a national bureau of advertising inspection. It will investigate the lawfulness of advertising published in all mediums. It will keep a file of information concerning advertisers the country over. Each member of the national vigilance committee will become the head of a sub-division of general information bureau and he will be the source of information relative to advertisers and advertising for his particular locality.

Such an arrangement is expected to be of peculiar value to Portland and Oregon. Many persons have advertised Oregon lands for sale among eastern people. A good many of them have been sincere. Others have not. The latter have represented as desirable fruit and farm lands areas that would never produce enough to feed a goat. As head of the local division of the national vigilance committee and assisted by not only the Ad club but the Realty board Mr. Clark will be in a position to answer questions as to the standing of the advertisers and their ability to make good their promises.

The initial meeting of the national vigilance committee is to be held in Cleveland next month, according to announcement, and Mr. Clark is being urged to attend.

VIOLATORS OF GAME LAW PAY PENALTY

Violators of the state game commission's embargo on the shooting of Chinese pheasants have been paying heavily within the last three or four days for their transgressions. Reports of the assessments of good stiff fines in six cases reached the ears of the local office of the state game commission last week.

James Kiser of Independence, was fined in Judge Holman's court at Dallas $20 for killing one of the birds. James E. Miller, of Banks, was given 30 days in jail by Judge Smith of Hillsboro. For hunting and pursuing a pheasant, David Robinson, of Farmington was taxed $20 by Judge Smith. B. Parrish, of Fernwood, for having a Chinese pheasant in his possession paid a fine of $28 in Judge Linville's court. August Auer, of McMinnville, for pursuing a Chinese pheasant with intent to kill, was fined $28 in Judge Holman's court. Albert Meyer, of Bethany, paid $27.50 for killing a pheasant near Hillsboro.

Because of the immunity on these birds in many places they are the most prolific game to be seen. At the present time coveys of them can be secured in any field near Portland and great shooting is assured when the season will be opened for awhile next year.

reason why this pure, antiseptic Balm acts so quickly is because it is applied directly to the tender, sore surfaces. Even in severe, chronic cases of catarrh, Ely's Cream Balm never fails to quickly and effectually check the poisonous discharge which clogs the head and throat, causing the disgusting hacking, spitting and blowing of the nose. This remedy not only drives out the disease, but heals and strengthens the weakened membranes, thus ending catarrh.

Catarrh is a filthy, disgusting disease. Don't put up with it another day. Get a 50-cent bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and see how quickly you will be relieved. It is perfectly harmless. Agents, Owl Drug Co.

CROWD TO ATTEND THE LAUNCHING OF NEW STEAM SCH.

Portland Business Men Will Be Guests on Excursion to St. Helens to Witness Multnomah Christening Saturday.

To attend the launching of the steam schooner Multnomah, said to be the first oceangoing steamer built on the Columbia river, a party of Portland business men will be taken down the Columbia to St. Helens on the steamboat T. J. Potter, chartered especially for the occasion, next Saturday, October 12. E. H. Meyer, manager for Charles R. McCormick & Co., who are building the Multnomah at their shipbuilding plant and will operate her in the lumber trade between the Columbia river and San Diego, Cal., is arranging the excursion. One thousand invitations will be sent out this week.

The excursionists will leave Portland at noon, and the 23-mile run to St. Helens will take a little more than an hour.

The launching will take place at 2:30 o'clock. The party will be brought back to Portland in time for dinner at 6 o'clock.

Capacity 1,000,000 Feet.
The Multnomah, which is 215 feet long and 42 feet wide, and will have a capacity of 1,000,000 feet of lumber, is entirely a St. Helens product. All the lumber used in her construction comes from the rich timber belt back of St. Helens, and has been cut at the St. Helens mills. After the launching, the Multnomah will be towed to San Francisco, where her boilers, engines and oil burning apparatus will be installed.

As the vessel slides down the ways next Saturday, little Miss Jean Ellen Meier, the 10-year-old daughter of Julius Meier, will smash a bottle of champagne against her bows and formally christen her "Multnomah."

"One of the objects of this excursion," said Mr. E. H. Meyer yesterday, "is to give Portland people a chance to see St. Helens and note its great development possibilities. Within the next five years the town is going to become a great manufacturing center."
"Fine Timber Belt Adjacent."
"Already our firm has two sawmills there with a capacity of 75,000,000 feet a year, a completely equipped shipbuilding plant, and a creosoting plant, which was completed and opened only yesterday. At this plant, which will have a capacity of 20,000,000 feet a year, we shall treat piles and piling. Creosoted piles are impervious to the attacks of the destructive teredo, which makes short work of untreated piles. We have begun work on a contract for treating all piles to be used in the new Los Angeles municipal dock, and there is business enough in sight already to keep the plant running at capacity for six months."

"The Multnomah is the eighth vessel, but the first steamer to be built at the ship building yards, and work has been begun on another and larger steam schooner."

"Back of St. Helens, extending clear across the mountains to the coast at Nehalem, is the finest timber belt on the Pacific coast. It is estimated that there are 60,000,000,000 feet of available timber in this belt. Waterfront in Portland is becoming too valuable for sawmills, and it will not be long before some of the big Portland mills will move to St. Helens."

GRANGE HALL WON'T HEAR SHIELDS-UREN DEBATE

(Special to The Journal.)
Hood River, Or., Oct. 5.—Charles Shields, who visited Hood River recently and spoke at the Commercial club rooms against the single tax bill to be voted on at the November election, announced at the meeting that he would meet any one in open debate who desired to defend the single tax measure. A meeting was arranged for to be held at the Pine Grove grange hall at which Mr. U'ren was to meet the challenger. However, after arranging the date and making full provision for the meeting, Mr. Shields refuses to meet Mr. U'ren. The grange is making an effort to secure another speaker to take the place of Mr. Shields.

At a meeting of the People's Forum at the courthouse last evening at which a large crowd gathered, the citizens indorsed both the convict labor bill. The bill providing for a hotel inspector was turned down, while the bill permitting public meetings to be held on the streets was adopted. Sentiment on the capital punishment bill was about evenly divided. The latter bill precipitated a warm debate between preachers and lawyers.

TO MAKE ADDRESS ON PLANNING OF CITY

Ellis F. Lawrence, Portland architect and director in the Greater Portland Plans association, accepted yesterday an invitation to address the conference of northwest municipal officials on the subject of city planning at Walla Walla, October 14. At this meeting all the mayors of the cities and towns of the Pacific northwest will be present, as will many of the councilmen and other municipal officers. The purpose is to discuss all matters pertaining to the government of cities, to relate actual conditions that exist in the towns of the northwest, to propose means of increasing the efficiency of municipal officers, lessening the expense of city government and elevating the standards of government.

President Penrose of Whitman college is very active in the preparation for the conference. One of the expected results is a central municipal government library, whence will be furnished information on any phase of city administration or government that may be desired by any officer of any northwest town.

BROTHERS MEET AFTER 40 YEARS

Dangerous Illness Brings Them Together at Hospital in Ashland.

(Special to The Journal.)
Ashland, Or., Oct. 5.—An unusual meeting took place at the Granite City hospital in the city last evening. W. E. Carlock, a rancher near Merlin, came to Ashland a few days ago for treatment at the hospital and his relatives were notified that an operation was necessary. A. B. Carlock and H. M. Carlock, two brothers living in Portland, arrived and H. M. and W. E. Carlock met for the first time in 40 years. H. M. Carlock is a member of an insurance firm in Portland. A. B. Carlock is a retired Portland capitalist and one of the oldest Wells-Fargo men in the northwest, having been in the work with C. C. Beckman, the pioneer express rider and banker of Jacksonville. W. E. Carlock was operated upon for abdominal trouble and a complete recovery is hoped for.

All they have to do is to call Edwards' Credit Plan to their assistance. They can get all the furniture they want and pay for it as they can.
