Uniform Construction Aimed At. The argument in favor of the bill is hat only by state ald from bond issues and supervision exercised by a highto solve the problam of uniformly constructing permanent roads. The pur pose is to so build roads in each country that the county will be a unit of a state-wide system or net-work of roads. It is urged that by issuing bonds the cost of road building is distributed over the period when the benefits are being received, also that bonds divide the cost of roads between country and city, whereas the country districts now pay the cost. Persons who doubt the wisdom of this course are asked to cite any country district in Oregon that has ever, unaided, built permanent highways.

Objections Raised. The bill is submitted through the initlative by the harmony committee which committee appointed by theyerner West and it is indersed and supported by the Oregon Association for Highway Improvement.

The argument against the bill is that taxpayers should not incur state indebtedness for road building, but should raise the money by direct levy of taxes thus escaping interest charges. It is votced chiefly by the road committee of the state grange, which asks that the counties be let alone in construction of roads. The grange committee also objects to permitting the county courts to expend the money, declaring that the material to He used, the road to be improved, the amount to be spent. and the termini of improvement should all be fixed By a county road meeting.

Problem of Site Important. If the proposed amendment for the acquisition of Ross Island carries, the problem of selecting a site for the rematory will be eliminated, as the island offers an ideal location, far removed from residents and therefore presenting a minimum of objection on account of the enuisance associated with the garbage burners.

In case, however, that the island should not be purchased by the city, the objection would be raised in some quarters that the health board would not be able to select a suitable site for the plant on account of the opposition rematory grounds might be laid out. Notwithstanding this objection the hard fact remains that another crematory is an absolute necessity if the health of the community is to be preserved.
