

CANDIDATES' FEAR ALLAYED; NAMES TO GO ON BALLOT

Secretary of State's List Incomplete But County Clerks May Fill in Those Which Have Been Omitted.

A temporary fright suffered yesterday by the friends of certain candidates, who feared their names would be left off the ballot, was allayed last evening when it was learned that nomination papers filed with county clerks will be accepted as to certain states offices, and the names will be on the ballot after all.

for the same office, and George N. Davis and W. A. Leet, Progressive and independent candidates for circuit judge of department No. 4.

The alarm resulted from the receipt of an official copy of the list of state and district nominations certified to the various county clerks by the secretary of state, in which the names of the candidates mentioned were omitted.

It develops that because of a difference in the law as to nominations at the primaries or by convention or independent petitions, the list certified by the secretary of state is not complete for all offices, and the remaining names will be filled in by the county clerks in the districts affected.

There is some ambiguity in the law on the subject, and the secretary of state has been governed by the construction given by the attorney general. Thinking that nominations for circuit judges should be filed with the secretary of state, the Progressive party committee sent Davis' papers to Secretary Olcott, and they were returned to be filed with the county clerk of Multnomah, as this is the only county comprised in that district.

The candidates whose friends were particularly alarmed were Robert Service, Progressive candidate for railroad commissioner; E. P. Mahaffey, independent, and L. J. Gates, Prohibition-subject from Attorney General Crawford before his papers were filed. Under date of October 4 the attorney general wrote:

Attorney General Gives View.
"I am of opinion the certificate of nomination must be filed with the county clerk of Multnomah county. The nomination is not made under the direct primary law, but is an independent nomination by voters of the electoral district."

"The electoral district comprises only one county, and section 3446 of Lord's Oregon laws governs the filing of the petition. It provides:

"All certificates of nomination of candidates for offices to be filled by the electors of an electoral district, other than a congressional district or county, or precinct, shall be filed with the clerk of the county, and if such electoral district embraces more than one county, then a duplicate thereof shall be filed with the county clerk of each county within such electoral district."

The attorney general says an examination of the original bill as it passed the legislature shows there was no comma after the word "district," and he thinks it clear that nominations made outside the primary law in all districts except congressional districts shall be filed with the county clerk.

ERROR IN STORY ON JETTY WORK IS FULLY CORRECTED

Scientific American Publishes Letter of Major McIndoe, Correcting Statements Published Covering the Work.

In its issue of October 5, the Scientific American publishes letters from the Portland Chamber of Commerce and Major J. F. McIndoe, corps United States engineers, in charge of the lower Columbia river work, correcting erroneous statements relative to the government improvement work written by William Hosea Ballou, Sr. D., and printed in the issue of August 24, under the caption of "The Harbors of the Pacific Coast."

facts was addressed to the chamber and by it forwarded to the Scientific American. It follows:

Major McIndoe's Letter.
"Referring to your letter of September 12, 1912, inclosing a clipping from the Scientific American relative to the jetties at the mouth of the Columbia river, I wish to say that I read the article about a week ago and made note of it with the intention of writing to the editor, calling his attention to the erroneous statements published in the paper prepared by William Hosea Ballou, Sr. D."

"Instead of only about 19,000 feet of the south jetty being completed on the first of June, 1912, this jetty was practically seven miles long and nearly completed, the only work remaining to be done at that date being the completion of the groins, extension of jetty apron, and the filling up of some low places, which work should be entirely completed in about six working months. Instead of 12 years to complete the present south jetty, it is confidently expected that it will be completed in the early spring of 1913, and that its maintenance will not require the dumping of more than a small amount of rock in the next few years, while the trestle remains serviceable."

"The proposed north jetty, instead of being two thirds as long as the south jetty, is only a little over one third as long, and should not cost more than one half the amount expended on the latter. Instead of 16 years to complete the north jetty, as stated by Mr. Ballou, a most liberal estimate would be six years, so that Portland can hope for the full depth which the jetties will give across the bar in about seven years instead of 38 years. Preliminary work for the north jetty, including construction of receiving wharf, storage yards, etc., is now well under way and it is hoped that dumping of rock in the north jetty can be commenced during the summer of 1913. Within one year after the construction of the north jetty is begun it is expected that its effect on the bar will be noticeable by increased depths, and that this increase of depth will continue with the advance of the jetty work until the desired 40 foot channel results."

"During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, the best channel remained fixed in position, the survey completed in June, 1912 showing it to be almost exactly in the same position as in June 1911."

BRITAIN CENTERS ARMY ON COAST

German Invasion Bugaboo Causes Big Shift in English Home Guard.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
London, Oct. 11.—The oft-recurring bugaboo of a possible German invasion is believed to be primarily responsible for orders now being sent out by the war office looking to a wholesale redistribution of the British army. Almost the entire army is to be concentrated in the eastern counties, the most likely points of invasion. Colchester will be the headquarters and the troops will be distributed over the districts in which the recent maneuvers were held.
