

DOYLE PLAYS WOOD'S PITCHING
HAD GIANTS COMPLETELY BAFFLED

BOSTON SPEED MAN MIXED CURVES AND FAST ONES

By Larry Doyle, Second Baseman of the Giants.

(Copyright, 1912, by The Associated Newspapers.) Work, Oct. 12.—The Red Sox were out. Wood was good, but here is a statement that may surprise the reader: He was not as good yesterday as he was on Tuesday, although we could not hit him at all consistently. The dark day was a big help to Wood, and in the "break" of the game the wet grounds helped the Red Sox. It made the earth heavy and slowed up a bit in the seventh inning.

Wood pitched beautiful ball. His strongest asset was his control. He was never in the hole, always had the situation in hand. He used his curve more today than he did on Tuesday, and kept breaking it over the outside corner of the plate. He showed nice head work in his pitching, for he knew that we expected nothing but speed, and that we had prepared for that diet. His fast ball did not have the jump to it that it showed on Tuesday, and it was only the drawn look on his face that showed that he was under a big strain. But he pitched game ball, and he has nothing but praise coming to him.

JEFFERSON COMES FROM BEHIND HILL

Wins Out in Most Sensational Scholastic Football Game in Recent Years.

In the most exciting football game played on Multnomah Field in the interscholastic league for a number of seasons, the Jefferson high school team defeated the Hill eleven yesterday by the score of 14 to 10. The Hill cadets had the game all in their favor for the first three-quarters but in the fourth quarter after the blue and gold players recovered from their nervousness, it was good night for the Cadets. At the start of the second half, Jefferson presented a new line-up, which brought a wonderful change to the team and its work. Just before the close of the third quarter, after a punt by Day, Jefferson made its first yardage by line smashes by Bob Lister and Hendrickson. Hendrickson gained five yards on the first down, and Russell carried the ball for yardage on the second down. Williams lost a bit when St. Martin made a good tackle, but with three downs to go, the blue and gold squad was confident. After two downs Lister was sent through the line for the first touchdown. Magius kicked goal, which made the score 10 to 7.

REGISTRATION BOOKS SHOW 47,258 VOTERS FULLY QUALIFIED

With but six days left in which to register, 47,258 voters have registered in Multnomah county. Of these 2666 have registered since the books were opened following the primary election last spring. Five clerks are handling the rush of voters. Every day next week the books will be open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. and on Saturday, October 19, they will be closed. The registration counter is at the south end of the corridor on the fourth floor of the courthouse. Yesterday's registration numbered 190, divided as follows: Republicans, 82; Democrats, 58; Progressives, 25; Independents, 14; Socialists, 14; and Prohibitionists, 2. Since the books opened following the primary the registration has been: Republicans, 1727; Democrats, 946; Socialists, 371; Independents, 373; Progressives, 159; Prohibitionists, 95. The Progressive party was given official recognition September 15. The division of the registration this year is as follows: Republicans, 26,869; Democrats, 7232; Socialists, 1095; Independents, 1254; Progressives, 159; Prohibitionists, 299; Populists, 3. Fifty-eight regulations before the primaries were found illegal and thrown out.

The game was not one of regrets or missed opportunities like all the preceding ones. There was just the one chance for us to tie it up, and that was when that hit was broken down by Yerkies in the seventh. Otherwise Wood was strong in the pinch and never worried by the men on the bases. He tightened up like Mathewson does when the situation became tightish, instead of caviling in as some pitchers do. He was two lucky in getting wonderful support. Wagner robbed us of a couple of hits by his brilliant work, going over behind second base and picking the ball off. It was Boston's game all the way, due largely to Wood. Terreau was weak in the early innings, but after the fourth he tied down and was not to be touched. In the sixth and seventh innings he struck out four batters. Poor old "Tez." I wanted to see him win, and he deserved a victory, but he was up against great pitching.

Even though we lost the game yesterday, and now have to fight back to an even footing, the Giants are all confident that we will win in the end. It was evident that Boston had lost heart before that battle yesterday, and if we had pitched as well as we did yesterday, nothing would have been left but to celebrate. It was evident from our two days' experience in Boston that the Red Sox have not another pitcher whom we cannot hit. Bedient will probably be the choice today. From what we saw there should be any doubt but that we can beat him. If Collins is the choice we are sure to win. The Giants will hit left handed pitcher hard any time they get a chance to do so. Yerkies will hit left handed pitcher hard any time they get a chance to do so. Yerkies will hit left handed pitcher hard any time they get a chance to do so.

On Depend on Matty. Matty will probably work for the Giants, and he is the greatest game carrying pitcher in the country. It is feared by many that he will not be able to come back after only two days' rest. Even though he pitched the long 13 inning game on Wednesday, most any time you can depend upon Matty, and the boys have got to win today. So many opportunities were lost in the game yesterday, we could not hit when the bingles would have meant runs. It makes me sick every time I think of it, but none of the boys has lost heart and all are determined to win.

In conclusion, I just want to show how Wood worked his curve ball. We had a chance to tie the score in the eighth inning after two were out. Snodgrass hit one at Wagner, which he let through his legs. That was a good sign. "Now, we're off!" shouted Matty. An error in the first part of a tight game very frequently joggles the team to pieces and means the game. Murray pitched well, but he was not followed with a hit. Matzka, a hard hitter, was the next batter. Wood got two strikes on him. Then Morkie fouled off a couple of curves and the next pitch, which he pitched straight on the next pitch, did not offer at the one aimed at his head. It broke down over the plate for a perfect strike. He had been crossed. That is the kind of pitching which best us.

getting the pass, Johnson had a clear field, but after gaining 15 yards he was tackled by Jack Day, who made a brilliant tackle. A moment later a forward pass of about eight yards from Ward Irvine to Magius resulted in Jefferson's second touchdown. Magius kicked through a broken field for 25 yards to the goal. He kicked goal, bringing Jefferson's total score to 14. Hill's touchdown was made in the second quarter by Jeff's Briggs. The beginning of the period, but on the second down Williams punted to Day. Day worked the fake punt for 20 yards and Briggs went through the line for a good gain. A forward pass, Day to Hendrickson, netted five yards, and first down. Day and Briggs went through the line for yardage and from this point Briggs crossed for a touchdown. Day kicked goal. A place kick by Briggs in the third quarter brought Hill's total score to ten.

Hill Strong at First. The Hill team played wonderful ball for the first two quarters, but when J. Day was replaced by Metcalf in the third quarter the Cadets seemed to lose their fighting spirit. Day was rushed into the game in the fourth period but it was too late to save it, as the Jefferson boys were tearing through the Hill's line for good gains every down. Magius and Day were the bright stars of the game. Magius made several sensational tackles and runs. Several times he was down on punts before the receiver had time to judge the ball properly. Irvine, Hendrickson, Fiegel and E. Lister did some good playing for the blue and gold squad. St. Martin and Briggs did good work for the Cadets. This is Briggs' first season in the game, and with a little more experience he will develop into a star player. He handles himself well both on the offensive and defensive.

SUPERHUMAN WORK ON TURF SAVED DAY

Wood Beginning to Show the Strain of Two Victories Over the Giants.

By Grantland Rice. (United Press Leased Wire.) Boston, Oct. 12.—Little Manhattan fans can look forward to just one note of joyous cheer: Mister Joe Wood, alias "Smoky Josephus," is out of the way for a breathing spell, and Jake Stahl must show another winning pitcher to the series.

Now, if only a combination of an earthquake, tidal wave, gasolition flare and volcanic eruption would detonate beneath one Mr. Heinle Wagner, the Great White Way might turn off the trickling tread and offer merry laughter in its place. Wood is out of the way, but no matter who pitches if that ball playing centipede whirrs its tentacles over the field again as he did yesterday he will again render the Giants' batting null and nit by blocking every egress.

Anybody's Series. Wood is out of the way, but the Giants have their pitching mainstays left. If Mathewson can wrench off today's battle the tale of the two cities will bring us up to chapter VI with all square. It's anybody's series still. Wood is beginning to show the strain. He was careening badly yesterday when Wagner swung in behind him with the greatest infield playing any series ever saw. If it had not been for Wagner's superhuman work, the Giants would have nicked Wood for at least 12 hits, and the New Yorkers would have won, 5 to 3. If anybody tells you there is only one Wagner, meaning "Honus" of Pittsburgh, he is off.

Great as Joe Wood is, either Collins, Bedient or O'Brien must cop at least one game or possibly two to win the series, while the Giants, to be returned the victors, must at some stage of the series beat Wood. Rube Marquard, having tasted victory, will prove a much tougher citizen for Boston to deal with than if he had been beaten. Unless the dope goes awry, Boston will find this side-wheeler the hardest Giant pitcher to beat. At 10 o'clock this morning the diamond at Fenway Park was in fair shape but the outfield was wet. Boston and its suburbs are celebrating Columbus day today and a huge crowd is expected when play starts this afternoon. Hundreds of persons stood shivering outside the grounds, waiting for the gates to open. The betting this morning was 10 to 6 that Boston wins the series, but if the Giants win this afternoon it will go back to even money. McGraw is expected to send Christy Mathewson to the mound this afternoon, while Stahl will depend on either Collins or Bedient.

INTER-CITY BASEBALL RESULTS

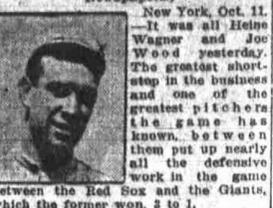

Cubs and Sox Tied Again. Chicago, Oct. 12.—Darkness put an end to the second game of the series between the Cubs and the White Sox. The game was called in the twelfth inning with the score 3-3. Cheney pitched for the Cubs, while Cicotte, who was on the mound for the Sox, was replaced in the ninth by Ed Walsh. Harry Lord and Weaver, two Sox infielders, collided while going after a fly ball in short left field and both were knocked unconscious. Both were carried off the field. Lord came to after a short time, but Weaver was in a dazed condition for several hours. The score: R. H. E. Americans, 3; 12; 2. Nationals, 3; 12; 2. Batteries—Cicotte, Walsh and Eastery, Sullivan; Cheney and Archer.

WAGNER'S SHORTSTOPPING FEATURED SECOND VICTORY OF BOSTON RED SOX

SPEAKER THINKS BOSTON IS DUE FOR HEAVY HITTING

By Tris Speaker, of the Boston Red Sox. (Copyright, 1912, by The Associated Newspapers.) New York, Oct. 11.—It was all Heinle Wagner and Joe Wood yesterday. The greatest shortstop in the history and one of the greatest pitchers in the game has known between them put up nearly all the defensive work in the game between the Red Sox and the Giants, which the former won, 4 to 1.

Wagner never played more brilliantly than he did yesterday and he never will because that would not be humanly possible. My experience has been comparatively limited, but I never saw such work as Heinle did and I never expect to see anything that will come anywhere near up to it. Probably no one ever had so many difficult chances as he did and got away with them. He covered the ground in a grand manner and his wonderfully accurate throws after some of the hair-raising pickups and while running at top speed were astounding. He took them everywhere, from his own position around to the other side of second base. Nothing got away from him except the easy roller which he played for a bound and the ball "crossed" him and paraded in hugging the ground. Joe Wood was a feeling fine and when he feels that way he is a hard proposition to face. He had the Giants safe all the time and if these balls which Wagner gobbed had gotten away from him Joe would have tightened up like a clam and there would have been no more of them for Heinle to have gone after.

Yerkies also made one great play off the bat. He pitched beautiful ball. His strongest asset was his control. He was never in the hole, always had the situation in hand. He used his curve more today than he did on Tuesday, and kept breaking it over the outside corner of the plate. He showed nice head work in his pitching, for he knew that we expected nothing but speed, and that we had prepared for that diet. His fast ball did not have the jump to it that it showed on Tuesday, and it was only the drawn look on his face that showed that he was under a big strain. But he pitched game ball, and he has nothing but praise coming to him.

McCormack's hit after slipping on the wet ground, which had been soaked with rain. Larry Gardner started the offensive work against Terreau with a fine triple in leading off the second inning. He scored on a wild pitch. Outside of the work of Wood and Wagner and a play at the plate by Cady on Yerkies' throw, there was very little of the ordinary in the defense of the Boston team. Murray made a fine one-handed catch which probably prevented a batting rally in the fifth, Hooper being the victim of Murray's spectacular catch. The Boston team played more like its old game today than it has in any before the series.

Why We Didn't Sacrifice. There may be some criticism because neither I nor Yerkies attempted to sacrifice when a sacrifice looked to be the proper thing. The only explanation of that is that it is not the Boston club's game. We hit out if we think we can, and if the ball seems to be coming so that we cannot hit it out we sacrifice. I thought yesterday I could hit the ball safely and so took the chance. My attempt was a failure. It was the same with Yerkies. Some time before the series is ended I expect that we will hit a batting streak and get some of the breaks. When we do we ought to show something of the grit of the team, which we have not yet done, although we came nearer it in some respects yesterday than we have in any other played. I am more satisfied than ever that we will win the series and now that we have the odd game I should not be surprised if we won the other two in succession. Mathewson will probably be sent in to pitch for the Giants in Boston today. With the showing we have always made against him we ought to do better than we did when he held us to a tie game. Some of us are due for hitting and I think we are going to get together on it today.

He expects to reach Portland again about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. B. F. Should Mr. Cooper be successful in his plan, he will make the run of 208 measured miles without stop, at continuous high speed, and establish a record that will be officially registered by every power boat association in the world.

Hoppe Beats Watson. (United Press Leased Wire.) San Francisco, Oct. 12.—By emulating a wildcat marring a violent game, Willie Hoppe literally fought Ed Watson off his feet at Dreamland here, and is today the victor over the sensational young lightweight after four rounds of the fight.

The local odds of 19 to 6 on Boston to win the series are perhaps equitable. A man takes desperate chances when he buys a horse covered with a blanket or gets married.

SINGLE GAME ODDS APPEAR TOPHEAVY

Local Backers of Giants Are Demanding Too Much From Boston Supporters. Wood pitched well, but he was not followed with a hit. Matzka, a hard hitter, was the next batter. Wood got two strikes on him.
