

ROOSEVELT SAYS WILSON HAS NOT OPPOSED TRUSTS

In Turn Bull Moose Chief Declares "I Did Everything," Meaning Against the Trusts While President.

(United Press Special Wire.)
Chicago, Oct. 12.—Declaring that while president he had "done everything possible against the trusts," and that "Wilson, as governor of New Jersey, had done nothing," Colonel Roosevelt made a bitter attack on the Democratic candidate here tonight. Roosevelt cited his own action against the Northern Securities company, the Southern Pacific, the sugar trust, and the meat trust, and dwelt on his victory in the rebate cases. He contrasted the Democratic plan of dealing with trusts with the Progressive program and he put Wilson and Taft in the same category as advocates of a do-nothing policy.

Defending the support of George W. Perkins, Roosevelt said no man could criticize him any more on this account than Mr. Wilson could be criticized for the support of men like Cleveland H. Dodge.

The Bull Moose candidate said in part: "The other day Mr. Wilson stated that, during my administration I had done nothing against the trusts. As far as his statements can be made to contain any comment whatever to any policy, they commit him to a continuance of Mr. Taft's policy as regards dealing with trusts by the national government and they especially insist on the duty of the states to deal with the trusts."

"As he now attacks my own record and as he thus commits himself definitely to the duty of the states to deal with the trusts, I shall ask you to compare my record with his record as governor of New Jersey. He insists that it is the states that must deal with trusts and of all the states in the United States in New Jersey the trust evil has been most rampant."

"I did everything." Mr. Wilson said I did nothing with the trusts while I was president. The answer to that is that I did everything. I found the anti-trust law a dead letter and the interstate commerce law wholly ineffective as regards the evil of rebates. The railroads were acting with practically entire disregard of the interstate commerce commission and the supreme court of the United States had declared that the anti-trust law did not affect great industrial concerns engaged in manufacturing—a decision which rendered the anti-trust law of little or no use.

"We struck at the two biggest trusts in the country, the Standard Oil and the tobacco trusts. The government's case was practically made over to me at the end of my administration. I secured a good solution of the railroad problem. I made the biggest men in the land yield obedience to the anti-trust law."

Wilson's Record Blank, He Says.
"Now compare this record with Mr. Wilson's record as governor of New Jersey. Mr. Wilson's record in his own state as to the duty of the states with trusts is correct, his failure to act is inexcusable. The same trusts against which I did act were incorporated under the laws of New Jersey and it was perfectly simple for him to act against them, but he never disturbed them."

Prior to his main speech at the auditorium, Roosevelt attacked Governor Wilson tonight at a meeting attended almost entirely by foreigners. The colonel attacked the Democratic nominee on account of his writings on the subject of immigration.

Quotes Ancient History.
Quoting from writings of Governor Wilson in the Atlantic Monthly, in 1889, and in his history written about that time, in which he said Governor Wilson spoke with "comprehensive knowledge of all immigrants from European countries, saying the enormous immigration which pours into our country year after year from Europe, was threatening us."

After quoting Governor Wilson as calling immigrants "unlucky fellows and coarse crews," Colonel Roosevelt told of his own attitude toward his "fellow Americans," whom he welcomed into this country and who, he said, the Progressive party wanted to become better citizens.

Colonel Roosevelt this afternoon took occasion to denounce Governor Deneen of Illinois for his recent public statement attacking the colonel and Deneen's lining up on Taft's side. Roosevelt said in his statement that Deneen was "either acting crookedly when he moved to unseat 75 Taft delegates in the Republican national convention, or he was acting crookedly now in supporting the man nominated by those delegates who were seated by fraud."

C. H. LANE Nominated

C. H. Lane was nominated by acclamation to succeed himself as official tailor.
C. H. Lane, formerly head designer and cutter of the firm of Lane & Johnson, is now centrally located in his new home southeast corner of Sixth and Stark streets.
Lane, no doubt, makes the finest clothes of any tailor in this city. His reputation has always stood above reproach, and his new store seems to be the popular tailoring center in Portland. If you haven't been in to see Charlie, do it tomorrow.

FATE OF PORTER CHARLTON UP TO SUPREME COURT

Confessed Wife Murderer Will Fight Against Being Returned to Italy for Trial on This Charge.

Porter Charlton, confessed wife slayer, whose extradition to Italy depends upon the decision of the United States supreme court, expected soon.

Washington, Oct. 12.—The fate of young Porter Charlton, who murdered his wife on Lake Como, Italy, in June, 1910, and who has been held a prisoner in Hoboken, N. J., for two years, will be determined within the next few days by the supreme court of the United States, whose sessions begin on the 14th.

At as early a date as possible after the opening of the court the question as to whether or not Charlton will be turned over to the Italian authorities and sent back to Italy, to be tried there, will be argued before the court.

Porter Charlton is the son of Judge Paul Charlton, solicitor of the war department, and a classmate of President Taft, and it was through the intervention of his father and all the powerful influences he was able to summon which prevented the extradition of young Charlton immediately after his arrest in this country, to which he had fled after murdering his wife, cramming her body into a trunk and throwing it into Lake Como.

Diplomatic Complications Involved.
The fight of the Italian authorities for the extradition of Charlton resulted in diplomatic complications that threatened for a time to develop seriously. Secretary Knox had already yielded to the demand of the Italian authorities, but it was here that the father of the young wife slayer intervened and prevented the extradition of his son.

Porter Charlton met for the first time Mrs. Mary Castle, the former San Francisco belle, society leader, actress and would-be murderer February 10, 1910. At that time Charlton, who was a rising young bank clerk in New York city, was 21 years of age while Mrs. Castle was about 40. From the moment he had a touch of tubercular trouble and recommended him to go to southern Europe. Accordingly on April 16 Charlton and his bride sailed for Italy and a month later were apparently housed in the Villa Legnai, on the bank of Lake Como.

According to all accounts the home of the Charltons was the scene of almost perpetual revelry in which Constantine Ispoloff, a gay Russian, figured prominently.

On June 10 some fishermen on Lake Como discovered a trunk at the bottom of the lake, weighted down by a heavy stone. They turned it over to the police of the village of Moltrasio, who opened it and found the body of Mrs. Charlton.

Messengers were sent to notify the young husband. He was gone. It was then suspected that he too had been murdered, color being lent to this suspicion by the fact that Charlton's coat was discovered in the lake the following day. Ambassador Leishman went in person to Lake Como and had the lake dredged thoroughly.

Acting upon the belief that a double murder had been committed the police arrested Constantine Ispoloff, who was held until it became known that Charlton instead of being destroyed, was on his way to America.

Charlton Confesses Crime.
On arriving at Hoboken Charlton was promptly arrested and almost as promptly made a full confession of his crime. The substance of this confession was that his wife was given to such violent fits of temper that it became unbearable. And on the night of the murder he said she berated him in such violent language that he became dazed with anger and struck her with a mallet which he had been using in the mending of some furniture. He struck her repeatedly until she was dead. He then placed her body in the trunk and at midnight dragged it to the small pier and threw it into the lake. Four days later he boarded the steamer Princess Irene at Genoa and came to America.

Mrs. Charlton was the daughter of H. H. Scott of San Francisco and a sister of Captain Henry Harrison Scott of the United States army, who insisted from the first that his sister had been murdered by Charlton, and it was due to his energy and persistence that Charlton was located and arrested.

In 1897 Mrs. Charlton married Neville Castle, of San Francisco. After having reduced her husband to poverty, Mrs. Castle went on the stage in January, 1904, making her debut in a play called "The Princess and the Butterfly." While with this company she fell in love with Lawrence Griffiths, with whom she lived, but not for long, violent quarrels breaking up the union. After Griffiths left her, she came to New York and posed as an artist's model. In the meantime her husband, Castle, had obtained a divorce, naming Griffiths. This was in 1901. Then she seems to have fallen out of public view for eight years. She emerged from oblivion on August 3, 1909, when she walked into the corridors of the Waldorf Astoria and with the exclamation, "I'll teach you to go back on me," placed a pistol against the body of William B. Craig and fired. The bullet struck a fountain pen and was deflected, doing Craig no harm. Craig did not press the case.

stomach. At first he would not admit that he understood the girl's condition, but later admitted that he did.

Miss Garletz was called to the district attorney's office and told how she had gone to the office of Dr. Neagle with Miss Bernier and the latter had called to treat Miss Bernier. Miss Garletz backed the doctor up in his statement that he had not performed an operation by saying that there had not been time for such an operation while Miss Bernier was in his office and that at every other time she had been present when he was with Miss Bernier. She said that Miss Bernier declared that she had performed the abortion herself.

Neagle Local Physician.
Neagle is a registered physician and surgeon, having been licensed in 1902. His medical education was received in the Louisville medical college and he declares he took postgraduate work at other institutions. His office, living rooms and rooms where he keeps a few patients are located at 143 1/2 Washington street. When he appeared at the district attorney's office his breath was strong with liquor and when taken to his office to find the note he claimed Gittens signed he drank another glass of liquor. The note could not be found and he then declared it was in the vault in the Chamber of Commerce building. Attorney W. W. Banks will represent Neagle and is trying to secure bonds for him.
Miss Bernier was 25 years old, a graduate of Providence hospital in Seattle, and had been connected with the Oregon Sanatorium and the Baby Home. At the sanatorium the two girls became friends. Her sister, Mrs. William Pradd, is wife of an officer at Fort Stevens. Her mother resides in Wisconsin, but the girl had little to do with her relatives.

road, which runs ninety feet below the Linnton road and had to be jacked up and shoved off the rails. It was practically demolished.

Peter Steidorf, an employee of the Portland Crawford company, was the first man to reach Miss Holmes. She was breathing, but unconscious, and he went to get water. On his return he found her dead. Dr. S. M. Mann, cashier of the Linnton bank, was summoned, but could render no aid.
Deputy Sheriffs Bulger, Morris and

Talley were immediately sent to the spot to make investigations, and a Red Cross ambulance was summoned to take the woman to the hospital, but instead took the body to the morgue. A passing automobile took the others who had been in the accident to the McCabe home.
The bank at the point where the accident occurred is so steep that it was impossible for those who carried the body up to the road to climb it. They had to go by a roundabout route.
Body Taken to Residence.
The victim had lived in Portland since 1894. She was educated at the Clifton-Kelly and Harrison schools. Neither of her parents are living, and for the past 11 years with her sister, Miss Bertha Holmes, who is 19 years old, they have lived with their sister, Mrs. McCabe. Attorney Erice is a friend of the family and all of them were together in the machine frequently.
The body was taken to the home last night.
"It all happened so suddenly," said Attorney Erice, "that we didn't know much more until it was all over. We were running along on low gear, and when I saw that the cow was obstructing the road, and was liable to get loose and block us entirely, I stopped, then began to back up. The bank began to slide with us, slowly at first, then the car rose up under us and began sliding. The next thing I knew I was on the ground, with Miss Bertha Erice near me. I picked her up and climbed back to the road and then saw the cow at the bottom of the hill."
"If I had run the machine into the cow, as I at first thought of doing, we would have been all right, for the road is wide enough at that point. We had no thought that the road was not solid enough to hold us out near the edge."

Arrested for Stabbing Woman.

While in a drunken condition Friday night, Luba Kossarovich stabbed a Bulgarian woman living at 96 Stanton street, for which he was arrested last night. The woman reported the assault to the police yesterday afternoon. She was stabbed twice in the side and once in the shoulder. When arrested, the man's explanation for the act was laid to drink.

Escaped Prisoner Caught.
Russell H. Harris, an escaped prisoner from the Montana state penitentiary, was arrested last night by the city detectives. He was caught while visiting another escaped prisoner, Pope Terrill, from the same institution. The two men got away last August. Terrill was not caught.
Russian-Austrian Rulers May Meet.
Vienna, Oct. 12.—(Special)—Arrangements are being made for a conference between Emperor Francis Joseph and the czar of Russia, according to a report current here this morning. Though it is assumed the two rulers will attempt to reach a Russo-Austrian agreement, the fact that such a meeting is considered necessary is regarded as an ominous sign.

COOPER WILL STRIVE FOR MOTORBOAT RECORD

C. V. Cooper in the "Charmalee" will commence at nine o'clock this morning, his spectacular race against time and distance in the endeavor to make a new world's endurance record for high speed motor boats. Mr. Cooper will start from the west side of the old steel bridge and attempt to make the run of 300 miles to Astoria and back without stopping for gasoline, oil or repairs. He expects to return to Portland this afternoon about three o'clock.
