

Probably rainy today; winds from the southeast.

SULTAN ASKS CONQUERING ALLIES FOR PEACE

Turkish Ruler Abandons Hope of Intervention by European Powers

NEW YORK VIEWS SUFFRAGE PARADE OF 25,000 IN LINE

People of All Nations Unite to Make Monster Demonstration in Behalf of "Votes for Women" Cause.

OREGON REPRESENTED IN PARADE OF FLOATS

The Women Wear Fancy Costumes, Men March Behind With Kerosene Torches.

New York, Nov. 9.—A tableau, three miles long, participated in by 20,000 suffragettes and 6000 men, recruited from every political creed and every strata of society, electrified New York tonight.

College men, led by William Jay Schieffelin, a member of the banking firm of J. P. Morgan, preceded a host of Socialists who chanted the Marseillaise; women from the western states that now enjoy equal suffrage marched with workers from the sweat shops and women from the East Side and New York.

On horseback, in automobiles, on floats and afoot, men and women in costumes femininely militant, marched amid a glare of red fire and the smoking light of torches. Five thousand men, the braver of them jauntily disporting in white frock coats and all fitting with kerosene torches that glittered dangerously, were a part of the enthusiastic caravan that was led by Mrs. Beatrice Forbes-Robertson, dressed in white robes and seated on a snow-white horse.

Stretched behind her in gaily colored array were floats, white-robed suffragettes, a horseback, and delegations of men and women from "Little Italy"; Jewish men and women, young and old, from the congested east side; colored men and women from the Bowdoin San Juan hill district; and New York's array of cosmopolitan citizens, including a load of soft-boiled Chinamen in automobiles from Mott, Pell and Hester streets, the heart of Chinatown.

The delegations from the Twenty-third district were led by Miss Cornelia Swinerton, of the college set, and among the floats were those representing states—Arizona, Michigan, Kansas and Oregon, which attained suffrage at the last election. Enthroned in them was a suffragette from each of the states with the exception of the Michigan float which was in charge of Miss Fola La Follette, daughter of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin. A golden chariot, drawn by four white horses, driven

LATE RETURNS MAKE SUFFRAGISTS QUAKE; LEAD DROPS TO 1000

Multnomah County's Majority Saves the Measure as Vote Now Stands.

A woman suffrage seems pretty sure to pass in Oregon, but it is going to squeeze through by a vote a whole lot smaller than was expected early yesterday.

Some late returns from several counties last night caused rather alarming reductions in the suffrage majority. These returns brought a lead of more than 3000 votes early in the day down to approximately 1000 votes last night.

Portland Saves Bill. More than that with one exception the six missing counties have a very tight vote, the exception being Josephine. The other five are Crook, Curry, Lake, Gilliam and Wheeler.

Then one of the incomplete counties is Lane, which is expected to poll a big majority for the measure. The incomplete figures for Lane give 251 majority for suffrage.

One surprising thing is that the outside counties, which were counted on to be strong for suffrage, have turned it down by a big vote. On the other hand Multnomah, where opposition was expected, has given a majority of 1235.

URGES WOMAN FOR CABINET POSITION

California Suffragist Wires Suggestion to Gov. Woodrow Wilson.

(Special to The Journal.) Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 9.—"To Woodrow Wilson, president-elect, Princeton, N. J.:

"Accept my congratulations in advance in making up your cabinet. Please consider the women of the 10 suffrage states. As a member of your cabinet a wise scholarly woman would bring to you a council of great assistance for the universal good of the people.

"CLARA SHORTRIDGE FOLTZ." This telegram was sent early this morning to Woodrow Wilson by Mrs. Clara Shortridge Foltz, attorney, and one of the foremost suffragists of the state.

It is thought by Mrs. Foltz's closest friends that the telegram contains more than meets the eye and that in Mrs. Foltz's mind there is a vision of Miss Mary Foy, president of the California Women's Democratic league.

REPUBLICANS PLAN FOR PARTY'S RENAISSANCE

Leaders Confer Quietly Concerning Rehabilitation of the G. O. P.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 9.—A movement for the general rehabilitation of the Republican party, along progressive lines, was launched at a quiet meeting here this afternoon, attended by Governor Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri, Senator Albert B. Cummins and W. S. Kenyon of Iowa and local Republican leaders, including Charles S. Dawson of the Iowa Republican state central committee.

A general conference is to be held some time in the near future at a point yet to be selected, probably Washington, at which the details for this enormous undertaking will be worked out. Neither Senator Cummins, Kenyon nor Governor Hadley would discuss the matter tonight, although Governor Hadley admitted that the situation was canvassed at the conference.

Whether or not Senator La Follette of Wisconsin is considered in the plan to make the Republican party progressive through work in the middle states, is not known, but it is assumed that the Iowa and Missouri leaders depend upon him to join them.

HUNTER CARRYING DEER KILLED FOR AN ANIMAL

Second Hunter Sees Creature on Shoulder but Not the Bearer.

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 9.—Having shot and instantly killed John Eastlack near Libby, Mont., last Sunday, when he fired at a deer Eastlack was carrying on his shoulder, George Gordon was placed in jail at Libby, Mont., today. He must stand trial.

Gordon had just climbed to the top of a hill when he saw Eastlack moving through the underbrush a couple of hundred feet below, carrying a fawn. Not seeing Eastlack, he fired. When running to where he saw the animal sink from view he found Eastlack breathing his last with a bullet straight through from the right shoulder. He hurried to Libby and notified the authorities.

Eastlack, who recently moved to Montana from New Jersey, leaves a widow and four children. The family lived near Eureka.

ROOSEVELT'S LEAD IN CALIFORNIA IS 879

Progressive Candidate Still Ahead With 69 Precincts Yet Unreported.

San Francisco, Nov. 9.—Theodore Roosevelt had a plurality of 879 votes over Woodrow Wilson in California, according to returns available tonight.

These returns leave 69 precincts in the state unreported. The figures are: Roosevelt, 281,644; Wilson 250,765. It is not expected that the Progressives from the 69 unreported precincts will materially change the lead of Roosevelt, although the officially certified count may make some slight difference.

HODGES, DEMOCRAT, IS GOVERNOR OF KANSAS

Topels, Kan., Nov. 9.—With the official returns from 80 counties out of 105 in the state, John Hodges, Democratic candidate for governor, has a lead of 368 votes over Arthur Capper, Republican. Unofficial returns have been received from all other counties and Capper concedes that Hodges has been elected. All of the Republican state ticket, except Capper, has probably been elected with the possible exception of Akers for state treasurer.

ELECTION OF LANE GIVES DEMOCRATS SENATE LEAD OF 4

Crane and Cullom, Republican Wheel-Horses, Will Be With Bourne and Dixon Among the Missing Members.

PROGRESSIVES MAY AID ADMINISTRATION

Working Majority in Body to Support Wilson's Plans Considered Safe.

By Carl Smith.

Assurance of the election of Harry Lane as United States senator from Oregon gives the Democrats 50 members of the next senate, according to the latest returns. This is a clear majority of four over all brands of Republicans and Progressives, and means that President Wilson will have a working majority at his back in the senate as well as the house of representatives.

The preference primary and direct election of senators is playing havoc with many of the old-timers in the senate. Among the faces to disappear on the 4th day of next March are W. Murray Crane of Massachusetts, the ring general of the Republicans; Shelby M. Cullom, the veteran from Illinois, oldest man in the senate; Joseph M. Dixon of Montana, Roosevelt's campaign manager; Jonathan Bourne of Oregon, famed for his advocacy of popular government; and Joseph W. Bailey, the silver-tongued but distrusted leader in Texas.

Apparently the new Progressive party will have four members of the next senate it can depend upon. These are Poindexter of Washington and Clapp of Minnesota, holdovers, and Norris of Nebraska and Sterling of South Dakota, new members.

CAN WILLIAMS AND BOURNE AGREE AND SAVE FEDERAL JOBS

Republicans Must Bury Hatchet Before Wilson Takes Office or Lose Chance at Pie.

Who's who in Oregon politics is the question that puzzles several scores of gentlemen who have their eyes on federal jobs.

Eleven of the best federal positions in the state are in a status which under church parlance would be called "supplied." The terms have expired, and the appointment and confirmation of successors have not been made.

When are they to be filled, who will make the selections, and to whom will the plums go? That is a question that gnaws at the inwards of sundry estimable Oregon gentlemen. Will the warring factions of the Republican party get together and fill the positions with Republicans, or will they get into a deadlock and let all the juicy jobs go over to the next administration, to be filled by Democrats? That also is a question that fills the days of numerous politicians with a gnawing unrest.

VACANT FEDERAL JOBS IN OREGON

- Postmaster, Portland, $6000. United States district attorney, $4500. Collector of customs, $1000 and fees. Collector of internal revenue, $3625. Appraiser of customs, $3000. Collector of customs, Astoria, $3000. Register land office at Burns, $2000. United States marshal, $4000. United States surveyor general, $2000. Register of land office, The Dalles, $2000. Receiver of land office, The Dalles, $3000. The land office salaries are maximums. The actual fees do not amount to $3900.

Who's who in Oregon politics is the question that puzzles several scores of gentlemen who have their eyes on federal jobs. Eleven of the best federal positions in the state are in a status which under church parlance would be called "supplied." The terms have expired, and the appointment and confirmation of successors have not been made.

ONE MAN IN OREGON HAS THE CAR OF PRESIDENT TAFT

One man in Oregon has the car of President Taft, and President Taft is master of Oregon appointments until he gets to the White House.

FERDINAND, CZAR OF THE BULGARS

Ruler of Balkan kingdom who plans to make triumphant entry into Constantinople.

FERDINAND PERSISTS IN HIS BOLD THREAT

Bulgarian Czar Determined to Celebrate Mass in Mosque of St. Sophia—Powers Regard Plan as Unnecessary Humiliation to Turks.

Budapest, Nov. 9.—That the Turks are prepared to blow up the mosque of St. Sophia before permitting Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria to attend mass there, as he has threatened, was reported here tonight.

Strong objections developed during the course of the evening at various capitols. It was learned, to the czar's proposed triumphal entry into the Turkish capital. The powers generally held that such a humiliation would be more than the Turks, beaten even as they are, could endure, and that a violent outbreak would be precipitated, which in so large a city, it would be almost impossible even for the powerful Bulgarian army to suppress without tremendous bloodshed.

Russia alone, it was understood, had signified that it had no objection to the plan, provided the occupation of the city was only temporary. English and French statesmen, though friendly to Russia, expressed the opinion, it was said, that the proceeding would be a mere spectacular demonstration, useful to nobody and attended by grave dangers. Ferdinand, presumably urged on by his subjects who have sentimental reasons for wanting to occupy the city, was persisting in his project at last accounts.

Shasta Bandit Runs When He Finds Partner Dead on Track

Passengers Make Up Purse for Brakeman James Yokum, Who Killed One Robber and Saved Their Valuables. The Train Electrician's Story.

H. S. Kitts, electrician of the Shasta Limited, held up at Delta, Cal., Friday night, says two men did the job. One was killed by brakeman James Yokum. The other escaped in the dark with three pouches of registered mail.

The Shasta Limited passed through Portland yesterday afternoon for Seattle, and during the half hour at the Union depot, Electrician Kitts gave a vivid account of the sensational affair.

"There were only two robbers," said Kitts, "and Yokum got one. But for a peculiar circumstance he would have got the other, too. I am certain there were not three, for the robbers had me in tow from the time they entered the baggage car until it was all over.

"We arrived at Delta station at 5:10 o'clock and stopped there to take water. As customary, we opened the doors to the baggage car. I was at supper in the dining car," he told him the Limited did not carry an express car. "Well, then, what have you? What about the mail car?" In the meantime my hands were up and as we stood partly in front of the open door, I feared some one in the little town, only a few hundred feet away, would see us and take a shot. Without it was inkly black, but we could see the lighted windows very plainly.

"The robbers ordered me to guide them to the mail car and open it. I did it quickly, jabbed in the back by the two ugly, automatic revolvers. I knew the handkerchief meant business, yet I could not help smiling when I opened the mail car and told the clerks that

ADMISSION OF DEFEAT BY MOSLEM LEADER MAY PROVOKE GENERAL WAR

Reply of Balkan Authorities Is Awaited With Anxiety—Serbia's Defiance to Austrian Demands Concerning Adriatic Sea Front Makes Situation More Critical.

(United Press Leased Wire.) London, Nov. 9.—His throne tottering, the sultan tonight abandoned all hope of intervention by the powers to save Turkey from the Balkan allies' wrath and appealed directly to the allies themselves for terms of peace.

Turkey's admission of defeat was regarded here as only rendering more imminent the danger of a general European war which, if it were to come, might alter practically every map throughout the entire world. The sultan's surrender, it was pointed out, promises a scramble for his European territories, which threatens a struggle involving six or the mightiest nations on earth.

News that the Ottoman ruler had sued for peace came from several independent sources, all reliable, and was accepted unquestionably here as absolutely authentic. A desperate battle had been in progress for many hours along the last line of Constantinople's defenses. It was persistently rumored that the Bulgarians attacking force was capturing fort after fort and these rumors seemed fully borne out by final announcement that the sultan had begged for terms.

Defiant dispatches came out of Constantinople earlier in the day. Nazim Pasha, the Turkish minister of war, and field commander, had announced that he would fight until the last Turk was dead before he would surrender, it was said. Kiamil Pasha, the aged grand vizier, was quoted as declaring that the sultan would await death in his palace, and he, Kiamil, in his office, if necessary, but that Constantinople they would never abandon nor would they ever admit defeat. A fresh army was being concentrated between the Chatalja forts and Constantinople, it was asserted. An official bulletin was posted claiming an overwhelming Turkish defeat of the Bulgarians at Marash, near Adrianople.

Then came the news that the Ottoman monarch had sued for peace. Rumors of Christian massacre persist. Reports were in circulation all day that a massacre was in progress in Constantinople. A mob of Mohammedan soldiers, driven back by the Bulgarians from the Chatalja line, it was declared, was looting and murdering all Christians in the Galata quarter of the city. For the foreign residence section was said to be threatened. It was rumored that the sultan had been warned he would be slain if he surrendered, or attempted flight to Asia, as it was understood he planned.

Whether the Ottoman ruler was frightened by the many dangers which surrounded him into an attempt to escape them by throwing himself into the Balkan allies' hands was not known. The Bulgarians' reply to the Turkish overtures was waited with the tensest anxiety.

Meanwhile, diplomats were working desperately tonight to avert a general clash, but it was admitted that there has not been so threatening a situation in Europe in the present generation as the one which the chancelleries confront at the present moment.

Adriatic Sea Front Problem. Title to the Adriatic sea front is the issue over which the great conflict is threatened. Serbia has wanted it for years, and in entering into the campaign against Turkey, risked its national existence to get it. Having won it, the Serbians have been warned that Austria wants the Adriatic opening for itself, and means to have it even if it must take it by force.

In defiance of Austria's demands, a Serbian army was on its way, at latest accounts, to seize the Adriatic port of Durazzo, before the Austrians can assume the aggressive. Russia, it was generally assumed, has assured the Serbians that the czar will strike at Austria, if it attempts to interfere.

Austria obviously did intend tonight to interfere. At Buda Pest, Emperor Francis Joseph held a conference today with the Austrian minister to Serbia, his minister of war, the chief of his general staff, and the German ambassador, unquestionably with a view to invading Serbia, if the little Balkan state declines to yield.

The minister to Serbia left later for Belgrade under orders, it was said, to warn King Peter that, while hopes to remain on friendly terms with Serbia, the Serbian occupation of an Adriatic port will render that practically impossible. Germany, it was understood on high authority, was prepared to back Austria to the limit, striking at the czar, if the czar strikes at Austria. The German and Italian ambassadors at Belgrade, it was learned, had received instructions to tell the Serbians government that, like Austria, their ally, they think their interests would be prejudiced by the opening of the Adriatic to Serbia and that they cannot permit it.

Russia on War Footing. Russia is practically on a war footing now. Austria has a large force mobilized. Germany is making preliminary preparations. Italy has not demobilized the war in Tripoli. England, Russia's friend, began to attract attention a week ago by his naval preparations for maneuvers, it was said. France, which supports Russia, and England can be ready with a big military force in a few days.

While Turkey was still defending its own territory, even unsuccessfully, the diplomats said, there was no good ex-

McMANIGAL INVOLVES HOCKIN AND RYAN IN DYNAMITING SCHEMES

Tells Jury, in Trial of Ironworkers, Secretary-Treasurer Was Planner.

(By the International News Service.) Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 9.—The 45 union officials being tried for dynamite conspiracy in the federal court received blow after blow between the eyes from the testimony of Orrie McManigal, their one-time friend and self-confessed arch dynamiter today.

While McManigal's story thus far most directly involves Herbert S. Hockin, indicted secretary-treasurer of the iron workers' international union, as paymaster and director of the dynamiting of non-union workers, it has also deeply involved President Frank M. Ryan, of the iron workers' union, Frank C. Webb, New York executive board member and Michael J. Young, Boston executive board member.

McManigal's story reveals Hockin as McManigal's advising angel and closest assistant in the dynamiting jobs. Hockin took the recital stolidly sitting with closed eyes over in one corner of the group of defendants. McManigal will restate his testimony on the witness stand Monday morning. He is expected to be on the stand about two weeks.

Takes First Job

McManigal told how he first was induced to do a dynamiting job. It was during a war between the international association and "open shop" contractors, and took place at Peoria, Hockin brought influence to bear upon him and forced him to take the job, he said. His next job was at Detroit and he claimed that Hockin also forced him into that. Next he went to Clinton, Iowa, where he blew aerrick belonging to the Wisconsin Bridge company off the track.

After the Clinton explosion McManigal proceeded to Buffalo, June 29, 1909, and on July 1 blew up a viaduct there. While he and Hockin were at Buffalo, said McManigal, Hockin told him to stay away from Tadanapolis. "Don't get in touch with Ryan or J. J. McNamara," McManigal said Hockin told him, "as everything is done through me."

Hockin Pays Him. $5000 after he returned to Chicago to saw Hockin and the latter wanted to know what his expenses were. McManigal told him that the total ran to $1100. About two days later, he said, (Continued on Page Two.)