SINGER WINS PRAISE

OF ADMIRAL TOGO

It is imperative that those contribut-ing news for the Sunday society pares should have if reach the desk of the society editor not later than Friday. News is always welcome, and those who have affairs early in the week would confer a great favor by sending their reports in as soon after as possible.

Opera Affairs.

THE very charming operatta, "The Secret of Suzanne," was the magnet which drew a brilliant gathering to the Bungalow last evening. The audience was dotted with many prominent in society and the loges housed several parties. Mr. and Mrs. Theodore B. Wilcox had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Guy W, Tal-hot, Miss Claire Wilcox, Roderick Ma-cleay and James Maitland. The guests dined first at the Wilcox home. In Mrs. Helen Ladd Corbett's loge were Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Burrs, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Corbett, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Ladd and Frederick Forster. Dr. and Mrs. K. A. J. Mackensie asked Miss Evelyn Wilson, Miss Mackenzie, Miss Barbara Mackenzie, Richard Jones, Harry Burnett and Ronald Mackenzie. The party was first en-

In the afternoon Miss Genevieve Thompson entertained a large party in compliment to Miss Evelyn Carey. Luncheon was first enjoyed at the Portland where the table was beauti-fully decked with yellow orchids and chrysanthemums, Those to yellow whom Miss Thompson extended her hospitality were Miss Evelyn Carey, Mils Nan Robertson, Miss Alice Carey, Miss Jean Morrison, Miss Louise Burns, Miss Mary Meldrum, Miss Honeyman, Miss Grace Honeyman, Miss Malsie MacMaster, Miss Polly Young of the barracks, Miss Helen Simon, Miss Katherine Hart, Miss Charlotte Laidlaw, Miss Barbara Mackenzie, Miss Claire Wilcox, Miss Margaret Hewett and Miss Beatrice Washburne of St. Paul, Minn.

Interesting News.

in Satisfactory Way.

"Lucia Di Lammermoor," Donizetti's famous opera of three acts and six scenes, drew a full and enthusiastic house to the Heilig last night and the Lambardi Grand Opera company again triumphed. Malvina Pereirs, an Italian star who for some time has been a favorite in musical Buenos Ayres, sang the title role, with G, Armanini portraying the role of Sir Edgar of Ravens-

"Lucia" is a sad story and the end decidedly tragic. Lucia dies insane and from a broken heart after stabbing to death with a stiletto Lord Arthur Buck-law, to whom she has just been married in response to the wishes and demands of her brother, Henry Ashton of Lammermoor. Sir Edgar and Lord Henry are booked for a duel, but while waiting for Henry to appear, Edgar hears the tolling bells

While the story is full of tears, the music is brilliant and at times intensely dramatic. Lucia has every opportunity to display range and technique, for the part is one of the most difficult writ-Pereira the audience last night found a very satisfying Lucia, although not the petite woman that one imagines the writer had in mind. Mme, Pereira has a wide range and sang the high notes with an ease and clarity that brought the house to her feet. In a few instances she did not seem quite true to the pitch, but this was not the case in the sensational mad scene, where the most trying and exacting aria of the entire score was given so splendidly that here it seemed the singer was right at home. The audience demanded a reping flute accompaniment, which, by the way, was splendidly executed. Armanini's tenor is not as powerful as Oregon, 5, and Arizona, 3.

than 50 minutes Wolf-Ferrari, the young Italian composer, gives one all the beauties of a grand opera for the production of which other composers require three or four hours. Of course Wolf-Ferrari hits only the high places, so to speak, and there is no chorus. The dainty work was presented for the first time ,here yesterday at the Bungalow theatre, and everybody went away with a whetted appetite for more Wolf-Ferrari secrets. The music was delightfully played as originally scored for violins, viola, cello, double bass and piano or harp.

"The Secret of Suzanne" was sung in Italian and there are only three characters in the cast, and one of these is a dumb butler, who only makes signs. The others are Suzanne, soprano, and Count Gil, baritone. Yesterday afternoon the role of Suzanne was sung by Miss Cavan, last night by Miss Agnes Berry. Afredo Costa sang the part of Count Gil, and George Vivian acted the part of Sante, the butler. While there are many dramatic crashes, the climax of beauty is reached in a wealth of beautiful harmony in the closing scene that few other composers have equaled. At times it suggests of Puccini and again of the master com-program, in which participated Alvin Steindel, a clever violinist; Aurele Boriss, baritone of ordinary ability; Henry W. Hoffmeister, cellist, and Miss Cavan, soprano. Miss Cavan sang with
