

MUSIC AND PICTURES TO DEPICT INDIAN LIFE

The Indian will come into his own on the afternoon and evening of December 12 at the Baker theatre, when, through the photographic art of Edward S. Curtis of Seattle, and the musical genius of Henry F. Gilbert of Boston, the history of the race in song, story and picture will be presented in a novel entertainment which will be given under the auspices of the Visiting Nurse association.

In giving an outline of this wonderful entertainment, which has been given with phenomenal success in all of the large eastern cities, and in some of them many times, Mr. Curtis said:

"For this picture-musical entertainment, I have selected the most important, the most beautiful pictures of my life work, and arranged them in series depicting great ceremonies, illustrating important thoughts, picturing the tragedy and the pathos of life. To accompany each of these series, Henry F. Gilbert, the gifted New York composer, has written a musical setting which gives, in a striking and beautiful way, the composer's interpretation of the pictures."

"For his basic material, Mr. Gilbert has drawn upon the many hundreds of photographic records I have made of Indian songs, prayers and chants. The resultant production of original Indian music is so full of color and charm that it can almost be said that Mr. Gilbert has painted pictures in music—the harmony between the pictures and the music is such that one can scarcely tell whether his emotions have been reached through his sight or through his hearing."

"I have long wanted to place before the people of Portland something of the atmosphere of Indian life—that part of the life which the artist and poet would see and feel—the part which the Indian would express only when in touch with a sympathetic nature."

"Pictures alone, however full of mystery and atmosphere, can hardly reach that subtlety so much desired: written words, however poetic, can scarcely express it. But pictures combined with music—the cooperation of the composer and the artist—should be able to reach every emotion, and so it has proved."

THOS. C. BURKE HEADS STATE MINE CONGRESS

The regular business of the Oregon branch of the American Mining congress was held yesterday afternoon in the Portland hotel. Officers were elected and several resolutions dealing with work in connection with the plans of the government adopted. Delegates from the mining districts from all over the state were present.

Among the resolutions adopted was one urging President-elect Wilson to appoint as secretary of the Interior a man from the land states, and another urging congress to pass a bill giving to land and mineral claimants the right of trial in the federal courts and the right of appeal to the supreme courts. Copies of these resolutions are to be sent to President-elect Wilson and to congress, also to other branches of the mining congress.

UNCLE JOE SURE THAT T. R. WOULD RETURN IT

(Special to The Journal)

Washington, Dec. 10.—The attention of "Uncle Joe" Cannon was called recently to the subscription of $1 made by "J. G. Cannon, Illinois," to the Bull Moose campaign. The list which included the name, was filed by the National Progressive committee. "Uncle Joe's" full name is Joseph Gurney Cannon. He has been a standpatter for more than half a century.

When the question was put to Uncle Joe today he looked a trifle dazed and a letter he was reading slipped out of his hands and floated to the floor. "I, no! Why should I?" inquired he peevishly, then a slow smile spread over his features.

"Believe me," he said with expression, "I have no doubt that if I contributed a dollar to his campaign and he heard of it, Theodore would send it back." And he chuckled.

A clip to be fastened to the edge of any utensil to prevent a knife, fork or spoon sliding into it has been patented by an Illinois man.

Records Given Away Free.

We have received 1000 more of the new demonstration records. Every caller at our beautiful daylight talking-machine department (second floor) who has a disc talking machine and has not heretofore received one of these demonstration records will be given one free.
