SLIGHTLY IMPROVED BUYING FOR TURKEYS IN FRONT ST. TRADE

Sales of Dressed Birds Being Made in a Limited Way at An Advance of 1 Cent Per Pound; Tomorrow's Receipts Will Tell.

Portland Produce Trade.
Eggs hold steady.
Chicken market weak.
Cheese dull but firm.
Butter holding firm.
Better call for turkeys.
Tomato market overfull.
No hops offering.
Dressed meats steady.

There is a slightly better feeling in the local turkey market and sales of fancy dressed birds are being made as high as 23c a pound. For cull stock there is little demand with values showing a rather wide range.

Most of the supplies of the local trade for Christmas will arrive tomorrow, therefore it is impossible to state at this time what the exact price will be.

While the present buying indicates a somewhat better price than was at first indicated, this is deceptive for the reason that not enough stock has been sold as yet to firmly establish a price basis.

Shippers are again warned against the marketing of poor quality dressed birds. So unsatisfactory are prices generally for this class of stock that receivers are averse to handling it.

A few live turkeys are coming forward and are finding a rather good demand at 20c a pound.

Outside markets are showing no improvement.

TOMATO SUPPLIES HEAVY

Heavy supplies of California tomatoes are offering in the local trade and prices are lower at $1.25@1.50 a crate. Quality generally is good.

GROWERS HOLD BACK HOPS

Growers are still unwilling to accept hop prices being offered by dealers. More European business is offering and the market outlook is firmer generally.

CHICKENS ARE VERY SLOW

Very slow tone is showing in the chicken trade and cleanups are harder to make even at 12c a pound for live birds. Holdings along the street are still liberal and some will be carried over until Monday.

DULLNESS FAILS TO AFFECT

While the demand for cheese is rather slow the dullness has failed to affect the price even a fraction. Makers are firm in their views and are content to hold rather than shade quotations.

MANY POTATOES OFFERING

Extreme low prices now in effect in the potato trade here has not caused growers to hold back their offerings. In fact there are more supplies available for the trade than at any time since the season started.

PLENTY OF PRODUCE

The wants of the Christmas trade will be well taken care of in the wholesale produce market. There is no shortage apparent in any line and prices in general are lower than usual for this period of the season.

SMALLEST STOCKS OF WOOL WILL BE HELD WITH YEAR'S OPENING

Holdings in United States Unusually Limited; Efforts of Big Interests to Depress Trade Have No Effect Upon Price.

With the prospects that carryover stocks of wool in the United States on January 1 will be the smallest known for many years by the trade, indications point to a much improved buying demand after the turn of the year.

Stocks of wool in the Pacific northwest are almost too nominal to base a market, but nevertheless a small amount of fleece is being moved each week, and prices are rigidly maintained.

Efforts of big manufacturers to depress the price have failed at all points.

A correspondent of The Journal wires the following regarding the situation at Boston:

"Smaller sales of wool for the past week are reported at the local market, though considerable activity is noted in fleeces. Large sales of fine unwashed Delaines, the grade which has heretofore been neglected, have been made. Aside from the slight price shading here and there, that is usual in cleaning up the year's clip, dealers are letting prospective customers go away rather than accept bids under asking prices.

"As most mills take account of stock some time during December, they naturally hesitate to stock up heavily just prior to that event. The week's sales, it is estimated, have not exceeded 1,500,000 pounds. Of this amount over 600,000 pounds are fleece wools, mostly the finer grades.

"Available stocks are being so steadily reduced that some dealers say they will be the smallest ever carried into a new year. The plan adopted in 1911 for ascertaining the total stock at the year's end will be repeated, having given general satisfactin a year ago. Each woolhouse will send chartered accountants the amount of unsold wool it holds, but the accountants will make public only the total amount."

SMALL DOWNTURN IN WHEAT

Chicago Market Is Nominally Lower; Argentina Helps Bears.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—There was a fractional downturn of wheat prices at the closing of the market today. Condition of the foreign trade was the principal factor although increasing stocks at primary points were an influence for the bear account.

News from Argentina was favorable for the harvest and this caused selling abroad.

Higher prices are likely in the hog market here and elsewhere unless present indications are wrong. Further advances are shown east of the Rockies. There were no arrivals in the hog division at North Portland for the day, therefore values were not tested. They were nominally continued at yesterday's ruling.

At Chicago there was an advance of a dime in the price of hogs with tops moving well at $7.45.

Kansas City hog market was a nickel better than yesterday with tops at $7.40.

MANIPULATORS BRING EGGS FROM BLAZE IN COLD STORAGE PLANT

Los Angeles Supplies From Ice House Destroyed by Fire Are Big Factor in Ruining Prices in Fresh Goods Recently.

Full confirmation has been made by local dealers regarding the report printed in The Journal some time ago that damaged stocks of eggs from the Los Angeles cold storage fire would be marketed in this city.

At the time the report was printed in this paper, others took extra pains to discredit the news in order to help out those who were trying to manipulate the market here. It is known positively that one carload was received on Front street, and reports indicate that in all four carloads came forward.

The marketing of so much damaged eggs of cheap quality was one of the big factors in putting down the price of fresh eggs here. The same interests who sent forward the damaged Los Angeles cold storage stock have been very prominent in quoting fictitious values for Oregon eggs in order to move cold storage supplies.

At the present time the market for fresh eggs is very quiet, while the cold storage is thoroughly demoralized, with little prospects of any improvement during the remainder of the season.

Fresh stock is generally quoted at 32c a dozen for candled goods along the street today.

OIL SUITS BRING THE STOCK MARKET DOWN

Filing of Case Against the Southern Pacific Company Causes Prices to Break in New York.

New York, Dec. 21.—The pace set yesterday was apparently a little bit too rapid to be maintained for any great length of time in the stock market under existing conditions so after a continuance of buoyancy in the first hour prices receded sharply with the downturn being led by Southern Pacific which presumably was under pressure owing to the suits being filed by the government for the recovery of oil lands. As indicated in morning advices as likely to be the case, quite a little long stock accumulated on recent declines for support and other purposes was marketed on the upturns, and the increased floating supply resulting therefrom was sufficient to produce quite a little irregularity.

There is little question but that sentiment has undergone a pronounced change for the better and that the foreign situation shows distinct signs of clearing but today's bank statement indicates rather forcibly that the domestic money position is not such as would warrant a pronounced expansion in loans.

The wheat market is firmer for quality and bids for club are general today at 79c a bushel tidewater track basis. This is an advance of a cent from what some have been paying during the last 48 hours, although millers generally have been bidding this price for several days.

Desire of the milling fraternity for wheat supplies is keeping the market in very good shape here. Bluestem is in best demand with 83c being freely offered. This too is an advance in some bids.

There is a quiet tone in the barley market and bids generally are inactive at $23 a ton for No. 1 feed. Rolled is selling a dollar above this while as a rule there is a differential of $1.50 a ton.

There is a steady but slow trade in the oats market. Bids for the day are general at $25.00@25.50 for No. 1 feed, milling oats being quoted from 50c to $1.00 a ton above this.

No change is shown in the hay market trade, values being stationary at the same height the market has been ruling at for some days.

Patent flour is gaining strength, but beyond a little talk among millers of a probable advance in the future, nothing definite is known of any immediate change. Oriental business is quiet owing to the lack of steamer room. Orders are coming but cannot be confirmed on account of the lack of steamers.

RIDGEFIELD AND SARA NEWS NOTES OF WEEK

(Special to The Journal.)

Ridgefield, Wash., Dec. 21.—H. A. Livermore, B. A. of the University of Durham, Eng., a seaman, surveyor, student, rancher and also a preacher, delivered a very interesting lecture at Ridgefield last night at the Commercial clubrooms to a fair sized crowd. His lecture was on "Socialism," and was freely illustrated by stereopticon views.

The annual homecoming and the tenth anniversary of the Knights of Pythias Lodge No. 124, of this city, was celebrated last night. At the time of organizing this lodge at Ridgefield, there were only 15 members enrolled, and now there are 62. After many speeches and music, vocal and instrumental, the Knights repaired to the banquet. Isaac Hughes, who has been keeper of records and seals of this lodge for the past ten years, has resigned, and J. W. Blackburn has been elected.

Following is the list of officers: Chancellor commander, John E. Rose; vice chancellor, Albert Sachtler; president, George C. Shinn; keeper of records and seals, J. W. Blackburn; master of finance, George W. Buker; master of exchequer, Thomas H. Blackstone; master at arms, Fred Fairbrothers; master of work, George R. Thomas; inner guard, George H. Pearson; outside guard, Walter Brunkow. The new trustees for the new term are: Isaac Hughes, Charles Rathbun and Fred Horn.

In looking over the country in and around the vicinity of Sara, Wash., south of here, one can notice a great deal of improvement during the past year. J. M. Custard, a prominent rancher, has built a handsome residence and Ira Dasher, another prosperous farmer, has remodeled his former house into an attractive bungalow. Frank Swick has also just moved into his new house, which is one of the cosiest homes in the neighborhood. New barns have been built by J. Phinney, Zenas Huntington and J. A. Santee. A Fradenburg has improved his residence by adding a new porch. The Sara merchants, J. T. Harris and A. F. Struchen, have improved their store buildings. The Christian church people recently erected a house of worship and will occupy it the first time tomorrow.
