

CHRISTMAS SEALS WILL NET $5000

Campaign Officially Will Close Tonight but Stamps Will Stay on Sale.

The Red Cross seal campaign for the benefit of the tuberculosis fund of the Visiting Nurse association will close at 5 o'clock this evening and although the sales were brisk today, indications are that the total receipts for the week will run between $4000 and $5000. When the sale started Monday morning, the committee had set its mark at $10,000.

The sale this morning started off with a flourish and the women in charge of the 25 places where the stamps are on sale in Portland, began their day's work fully determined to make a record. The sales booths are located in all the department stores, some of the office buildings, drug stores, news stands, express offices, and the larger hotels.

WIFE'S LETTER OBTAINS FREEDOM FOR HUSBAND

An appealing letter from the wife of Ed Lewis, under indictment for forgery, won a dismissal of the indictment this morning at the hands of Circuit Judge Morrow. Mrs. Lewis wrote Judge Morrow from San Francisco that she is ill and has a 3-year-old boy to care for, and that Lewis was their only means of support. She said that Lewis was never in trouble before, and that she was waiting for him to send for her at the time to come here to live.

Lewis forged the name, "Greenfield Shoe Company, by George Greenfield," to a check for $17.50 on Ashley & Humelin, bankers, on October 22, and cashed it with W. E. Myers. Lewis was drunk at the time and got no use of the money so received.

Reynon-Valmont, new man and woman novelty store, 710 N. 7th St., is open this week, 6 to 8, 10 to 12 p. m.

MILLIONAIRE'S COOK FALLS ON HIS WAXED FLOOR, ASKS $15,000

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 21.—Chester Thorne, millionaire president of the National Bank of Commerce of Tacoma, is being sued by his cook, Miss Emma May Lewis. Miss Lewis, in a complaint filed with the clerk late yesterday afternoon, alleges she slipped on the highly polished floor of the Thorne mansion at American Lake, fracturing her left arm. For the extreme pain and the fact that she will be made unfit for her usual work of cooking, demonstrator, Miss Lewis wants $15,000.

SENIORS DEPICT 'DOG' VENDOR'S TROUBLES

"The Seniors," a college life comedy put on by the graduating class of February 1913, at the Jefferson high school last night in a highly satisfactory manner, will be presented again tonight for the last time.

"The Seniors," has to do with a campus incident in which a girl and boy, supposed to be the "fall guys" among the students, turn out to be up to date live ones, and turn the tables on their fellows to good effect. "The Seniors" was built mostly for fun, and the Jefferson school class, which presented it last night, took every advantage of the comedy situations offered them.

ELECTRIC RADIATORS FOR CHILLY CORNERS

As the bleak days of winter are upon us, the thoughts of all are centered on keeping warm. Even with the best heating outfit there are times when a small auxiliary heater with instant control is desirable. The bathroom, the library, the sick room and others often call for such a heater—not large enough for general heating, but effective in taking the chill off the air or heating cold corners. This is the field of the electric luminous radiator.

Such a heater consists essentially of one or more heating units similar to electric lamps, which are mounted in a suitable frame or reflector. They are so made that all of the current is ultimately converted into heat, while only a small amount of light is emitted.

With its soft, cheerful glow, the luminous radiator is an excellent substitute for the old fashioned fireplace so popular nowadays, without the undesirable features of the log fire—soot, dirt and general inconvenience. The decorative value of these heaters alone has done much to establish them in popular favor.

The temperature of the radiator surfaces is comparatively low, which at once eliminates the danger of burning or scalding. They are also desirable for nursery or playrooms. There are no fumes or odors whatsoever given off by luminous heaters. The convenience is evident, for at a snap of the switch heat is produced instantaneously.

The smaller luminous radiators can be connected to ordinary lighting sockets. The larger sizes should have special outlets provided. It must be remembered that these heaters are not recommended for general heating during cold weather, but rather for auxiliary heat, used only on occasion when required, in which case they will always give excellent satisfaction.

Questions asked at the big electric shows in New York and Boston show a wide interest in electrical things, even though it does show some degree of unfamiliarity with this most modern convenience.

The public wants to know whether the electric iron would shock and hurt you if you use the toaster when the lights are on? Can you screw the percolator to the gas fixture, or does it have to be electric? Can you use a heating pad from the electric bells, or do you have to have electric light wiring, too? They were heard over and over again at the electric shows, asked by men and women who have never seen these things in use, and because they want to know.

The electric iron, like any other electric household convenience, is a perfectly safe article to handle. People use judgment with these things the same as they do with anything else. Nobody would fill a coal stove to overflowing and leave it to itself. For the same reasons, no one would leave an electric iron connected to the circuit and standing on anything which would scorch or burn the intense heat which follows from long connection would do mischief.

The toaster can be used with perfect satisfaction when the lights are on. Of course, there should be two different connections—one for the light and one for the toaster. A baseboard receptacle is the most satisfactory for a toaster or an iron or any other of the home appliances. This allows the lighting sockets to be used for lighting only.

No electric appliance (not even a percolator) can be operated by gas. Electric light wiring is necessary for the operation of an electric heating pad or any electric appliance. An electric bell is usually operated from a battery, although greater dependability may be obtained by having a "bell ringing transformer" installed, which does away with the battery, and enables the doorbell to be operated from the electric lighting circuit.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPER BECOMES CHAMPION

Mrs. T. J. Hughes, of Salem, takes the prize for Christmas shopping in her own particular way. She went to the city early on the morning of December 2 with the intention of doing all of her gift-buying before night.

She called her sister the first thing to obtain what suggestions she could, and to her dismay, found that her sister had apparently gone back to the blue Monday regime, for she was busily hanging snow-white clothes to dry.

to do as soon as this washing's done." "No, thank you, I can't wait. I will go on. I will come in at noon, if you are going to be here."

Explanations at noon—"I paid all I brought with me on an electric washing machine just like yours, and accepted their terms for the rest of it. I don't know exactly what I shall do now—turn into an advocate of a 'sans' Christmas, I suppose."

TRY THIS UPON YOUR ELECTRIC CHAFING DISH

Can you think of anything more enjoyable for use any time, summer and winter, than a chafing dish? The electric chafing dish is beautifully polished and compact and allows of almost any kind of cooking with no bother whatever in the way of fire or muss of any kind.

Scrambled Eggs With Anchovy Toast. Spread thin slices of buttered toast with anchovy paste. Arrange on platter, and cover with scrambled eggs.

Buttered Eggs. Heat omelet pan. Put in one tablespoon butter; when melted, slip in an egg, and cook until the white is firm. Turn it over once while cooking. Add more butter as needed, using just enough to keep egg from sticking.

VISIBLE HOUSE NUMBERS

Can Be Seen Plainly at Night When There is an Electric Light Behind the Figures.

Persons who have experienced difficulty in finding house numbers at night on poorly lighted streets, as well as those whose groceries, etc., have been delivered to the wrong house because the delivery boy was unable to distinguish the house numbers, will appreciate the value of having the numbers illuminated at night.

Installing illuminated numbers is not expensive and the cost of operating them is almost negligible. An illuminated sign for this purpose consists essentially of a box or recess in the wall, with the side toward the street covered with a transparency upon which is printed the house number. Inside the box is placed an incandescent lamp, which can be burned from dusk to dawn at very slight expense.

A person walking along the street can easily see such a number and thus often avoid inconvenient and embarrassing mistakes. Another method is to illuminate the

THIEF NOT ONLY GETS NOTHING BUT LOSES HIS COAT, SHOES AND TORCH

(Special to The Journal.) Seattle, Wash., Dec. 21.—A burglar who tried to rob the home of Ben J. Wiggins, not only failed to get any loot, but he lost his overcoat, coat, shoes, vest and electric torch. He was making Mrs. Wiggins and her daughters show him where their money was when Wiggins' door was turned home and immediately grappled with him. He was getting the better of the robber when the latter managed to slip from his grasp and jumped out of a window, leaving the souvenirs of his visit.

CURRENT LITERATURE CLUB HEARS READING

The current literature department of the Portland Women's club held a very pleasant and instructive meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. M. Hooper, 356 East Forty-first street, with 35 in attendance. Mrs. Helen Miller Senn read "The Jester's Sword" by Annie Fellows Johnson. Mrs. Senn gave some interesting introductory remarks before reading the story, mentioning the fact that the lesson taught in the beautiful tale is one of especial appeal and significance just at this holiday season.

In addition to the reading, several enjoyable musical numbers were given. Miss Gertrude Hooper gave a violin selection. Miss Hooper, Miss Jones and Miss May Ross sang a trio. Miss Florence Westingard and Miss Melba Westingard gave a violin and piano duet, and Mrs. Alexander G. Riddell gave vocal numbers. All were much enjoyed and were heartily applauded.

At the conclusion of the afternoon the hostess served chocolate and cakes.
