

ROLE OF BROTHER IS NOT TO HIS LIKING

Washburne Wilson, Insurance man, Hates Office-seekers and Travels About Under Assumed Name.

(Special to The Journal.)

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 1.—Being a brother of the president-elect of the United States is an unhappy distinction for the brother if he is industriously engaged in private business, hates office seekers and detests the sycophantic ways of professional politicians.

It is doubtful if there is a more perplexed man in the United States than Washburne Wilson, of Denver. He is a younger brother of President-elect Woodrow Wilson and is looked upon as one of the right hand business representatives of Thomas F. Daly, the multimillionaire.

When he came to Oklahoma City, Mr. Wilson went to his hotel and registered under an assumed name. Then he told the clerk to give him a room close to the roof. He revealed his identity to only four or five, with all of whom he had business dealings.

Agnes O'Connor Ingram, Who Is to Be Married Today to Mayor Allen G. Rushlight, and the City Executive, Who Quietly Waged a Campaign for a Life Job While Eager Aspirants Conspired for His Office.

Agnes O'Connor Ingram Becomes Wife of the City Executive Early Today.

While politicians and near-politicians, aspiring office seekers and embryonic mayoralty candidates were fuming and fretting for months and waiting with ill concealed anxiety for Mayor Rushlight to announce whether he would run for another term, the mayor was waging a campaign whose object meant far more to him than a life job as the executive head of the city.

With his customary finesse, the mayor achieved a brilliant and decisive victory, which will result in his leading into captivity for life, Miss Agnes O'Connor Ingram. The marriage by which she becomes Mrs. A. G. Rushlight will take place early this morning—"as soon after sunrise as possible, the sooner the better," said the mayor last night.

Following his habitual policy of silence, Mayor Rushlight made all his plans without consulting a single friend. Calling President George L. Baker of the city council to the city hall yesterday afternoon, the mayor broke the news to the surprised councilman in this fashion: "George, you are going to be acting mayor for the next six weeks."

"You bet, I will," was Councilman Baker's answer, as he warmly congratulated his friend.
