THE MISSING ANCHOR

Hattie B. Lawrence, "Pisgah Mother," Finds Why Men Roam.

Mrs. Hattie B. Lawrence, known to the guests of Pisgah Home as "Pisgah Mother," in studying the causes which lead to so many men floating about the country with apparently no aim in life, has arrived at some very interesting conclusions which she sums up in this fashion: "I was much interested in that report of the 60 men being sent out of the men's resort the other day with an aggregate capital of 70 cents. The question that came to me was, what is the matter with them? "The majority of men who seek refuge in Pisgah Home are men who come from the higher walks of life, but who can trace their downfall to drink. Many left families and good positions to come west where they hoped to find the end of the rainbow and the proverbial pot of gold; having failed they became disheartened, sever the home ties and drift down and down, finally taking to drink. Then we get them. "Some of these, in fact a large number, are without wives or children, and in that way lack lies much of the difficulty. Had these men wives and children the majority of them would be stimulated to greater efforts, the ties would serve as anchors. Most all the men who come to Pisgah Home are bachelors or widowers, very few having living wives, if so generally separated by drink, but the majority have no home ties whatever. "The Needed Inspiration. "Twenty-five years ago I found the same conditions existing in the foothills of the Butte mountains in California. The woods were full of old men bachelors who had come there in the fifties seeking gold, finding none and never returning to the east. Many of them were educated men just eeking out an existence working for ranchers a day at a time and eventually taking to drink. With wives and families these men would have been much better off. The home might have been a home, and a home is an inspiration. "On the Atlantic coast many middle aged women are living on old homesteads, in some families there are three or four women past the meridian of life still waiting, but long ago having given up hope. Men tell me they think if they could see the Pacific coast and the modern ideal evening is spent at the moving picture show. Washing, ironing and mending are sent out. It takes money to do all these things, so there seems to be little inspiration for anything beyond drinking and drifting.

Arts and Craft Society Will Give Tea. In compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Helm Johnson the members of the Arts and Craft Shop on Tenth street will give a tea at the shop Thursday afternoon. The society has brought Mr. Johnson here for a course of lectures to further the higher arts in design in Portland. Tomorrow will open an exhibit of his examples of design in embroideries, stenciling and jewelry, hammered metals, etc. Since the adoption of this work in the public schools it has a widespread interest. The colors in embroideries are remarkable for products of this country as they resemble the much famed oriental draperies which are considered almost a lost art.

Society Notes. Drake C. O'Reilly returned home Saturday after a two month trip to California, New Orleans, Panama and a number of eastern cities. C. H. Davis and H. K. B. Davis returned Saturday after passing two months in Chicago, New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Mrs. E. J. DeArmond and daughter will leave the city the first of March for their home in Philadelphia. They will return to this city in May.

Vancouver Barracks Notes. General Marlon P. Maus left on Friday night for his new station in Albany, N. Y. The officers of the garrison called on the general to say goodbye and the Second field artillery band played in front of his quarters just as he was leaving. General Maus was the guest of honor at a dinner at the Arlington club, Portland. Miss Polly Young was a member of the house party given last week at Gearhart by Miss Anita Burns of Portland.

Captain Daniel of the Second field artillery is occupying the quarters vacated by Lieutenant Edward McCleave. Mrs. Hand and the two children will arrive in June from Berkeley, Cal., at the close of the school term. Mrs. Robert A. Wilson is visiting her son, Lieutenant Robert Wilson. Captain Charles Howland returned from Seattle during the week. Mrs. George Tiffany gave a series of lectures during the month for the different garrison women. Lieutenant George is expected home from Hot Springs, Ark., next week. Lieutenant Rucker has returned from Fort Riley, Kan. Major and Mrs. Samuel Smiley are being congratulated upon the birth of a daughter.

A delightful informal hop on Friday night attracted a large crowd of garrison people.

"PEACOCKISM" IN LIFE

Rev. Leslie Kirk Richardson Chooses Unusual Subject for Sermon.

"Peacockism" was the very unusual topic of the sermon delivered yesterday morning by Rev. Leslie Kirk Richardson, pastor of Kenilworth Presbyterian church. Rev. Mr. Richardson based his sermon on the biblical injunction, "Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall." In the course of his sermon the speaker said: "Where is there a better picture of modern fuss and feathers, show and sham, lust and ease than in the peacock that is so proud of its brilliant plumage and struts about as pompously and squawks in vain? Its pride is fed by its continuous show. "The curse of modern life is peacockism. Peacockism delights in dress suits more than in overalls, and in pianos more than in cook stoves. It mortgages parlors and parlors to ride in automobiles. It revels in the club more than in the home. It fills the juvenile courtrooms. It stands on Washington street, mounts a soap box and in a pitiful burst of ignorance and wind curses God and insults the flag. It enters college life and says, 'I can run the college better than the president.' It makes many so-called Christians snobbish and prevents Baptists and Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists, Episcopalians and Evangelicals from getting together. "It makes people deceive themselves, underestimate their brothers and rebuke God. It turns a noble youth into a hero, and a virtuous into a bull. Peacockism produces no patriots, breeds no leaders and fathers no Christians. Worst of all, it makes people sneer at the greatest organization of the ages, the church of God, the church of Jesus Christ, the only salvation for high and low, rich and poor, Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant. There are just two places where peacockism can't be found—one is heaven and the other is hell. "Peacockism is the precursor of ruin and death. 'Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall.' Adam and Abolom, Saul and Samson were victims of peacockism. Sadder than a wrecked castle or a wrecked steamship is a wrecked life. "The opposite of peacockism is humility. Learn of him who was meek and lowly in heart, and who taught that humility is not something base and mean, weak and soft, but is shown by the teachableness of the child, the desire to serve and minister, and the willingness to lay aside dignity and rights if only God's will may be done and humanity be blessed. The way to get rid of peacockism and to receive humility is to receive Christ into the heart. Be consecrated to him and to the welfare of your brothers and sisters; then will the peacock fly away and of you it will be said, 'Blessed are the poor in spirit.'"

Picture Programs for Week Unusually Good
One of the best programs that have been prepared by the People's Amusement company for its theatres were the ones presented yesterday. "Hop-O-My-Thumb," a fairy tale, was shown in colored pictures at the People's theatre and was well received. "Fools There Were," the story of a newspaper woman and her experiences in a Los Angeles hotel, was a popular production. "The Eyes of Satan" was a satirical trick comedy and was the fun feature of the program. The Ad Club Four and Miss Allen were well received. John Bunny, the Vitagraph film comedian, was featured in the principle film at the Star theatre in "The Higher Up." "The Father's Lesson" is a picture with a lesson. "The Doctor's Photograph" is a study in criminology. "The Habits of a Hedgehog" and "Pottery Making in Borneo" are instructive pictures. "Gypsy Blood," featuring Asta Nelson, is shown in three reels at the Grand theatre. There is a good comedy reel to close the bill. "The Sunnyside theatre is showing 'The Wheels of Destiny' a three reel feature, and two comedy reels. The six reel production of 'Cleopatra' is the program at the Sunnyside today and tomorrow.

MOTHERS' LEAGUE HEAD HAS TEN CHILDREN, SHE KNOWS WHAT SHE SAYS
New York, Feb. 17.—Mrs. Henry Chester Arthur, president of the Practical Mothers' league, speaking before an aldermanic committee in advocacy of an ordinance that would allow the nickedowns in this city to sea 600 persons, said: "I am the mother of 10 perfect, mentally and morally, children and I say that such an ordinance should be passed. "John Gill, who was representing the Bricklayers' union at the hearing, interrupted Mrs. Arthur to say: "The lady has nothing on me. I am the father of eight perfect children, and—" "I want to say that the father of eight perfect children has a perfect child compared with the mother of 10," retorted Mrs. Arthur. "She was not interrupted again. "Frank Ritchie, father of Mrs. Ralph C. Walker, was operated on Friday morning at the St. Vincent's hospital for gall stones. His condition is much improved today.

ARISTOPHANES CAUSES RIFT IN WOMAN'S UNION
New York, Feb. 17.—A few members of the Women's Political union refused to endorse Aristophanes' classic Greek play "Lysistrata," even the extensively expurgated English version presented here yesterday afternoon, on the ground that it is still "indecent to the highest degree." Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blach, head of the union, claims that the play points a great lesson to the anti-suffragettes and will be put on in spite of the few objections. The English version is by Laurence Houseman and the different parts in the cast were taken by young society women. The play deals with a beautiful Greek woman who, according to Mrs. Blach, "Recognized that sex attraction is the biggest passion in the world and used it to force men to do what she wants in the political world."

DR. SHAW'S AND SUSAN B. ANTHONY'S BIRTHDAY
New York, Feb. 17.—Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, in an address at the reception and memorial meeting to celebrate the anniversary of the birth of Susan B. Anthony, the equal suffrage pioneer, at the Hotel Astor declared: "If we do not win the vote in 1915 the failure will lie with ourselves. If we fail do not blame the politicians, do not blame the times, blame yourselves." The occasion jointly celebrated the sixty-sixth birthday of Dr. Anna Shaw, which fell on Friday.

American Suffragette Fined. London, Feb. 17.—An unknown person this afternoon paid the fines of Miss Zelle Emerson, the rich Jackson, Mich., girl, who was yesterday sent to prison for suffragette violence because she would not pay two fines imposed upon her.

but rather as a stern and resourceful warrior, fit to rank with David himself, and as a patriot as unflinching as Horatius or William Tell, and having to his credit at least one feat of daring and prowess not surpassed in profane history. Moreover, Jonathan was depicted as a dutiful son, faithful to his erring and discredited father, even though that father wickedly sought the life of David, whom Jonathan loved. The pastor dwelt upon the supreme loyalty of Jonathan in relinquishing what would have been his own natural claim to the throne, in favor of David, who had been indicated for the succession by the same authority that had anointed Saul in the first instance. It was at this point, naturally, that the pertinence of Jonathan as an exemplar for the man of this present day was particularly emphasized, since he stood not only the test of cupidity, but even that of ambition itself, in deference to his understanding of what was for the good of the nation, setting himself at naught and making way for "the man of the hour," as he might be called in this day. Loyalty, with its variants, such as resoluteness, fidelity and steadfastness, was shown by Jonathan in no wise more conspicuously than in his devotion to his father, in life and in death. His was a role almost unique in all history—that of one devoted to two such irreconcilables as Saul and David, true to either most to enmity and devoting his being to an all-engrossing friendship,
