

WESTERN TERRIER IS ANOTHER EDGECOTE PEER AT BENCH SHOW

Sound End Sombbrero Wins the National Championship From Best English Dog.

Portland dog fanciers are well pleased over the victory in New York yesterday of Sound End Sombbrero, owned by G. C. Israel, of the Sound End kennels at Olympia, Wash., which is well known to bench show breed enthusiasts of this city. Edgocote Peer is the first western bred dog to win the national championship since Frank E. Watkins of this city sent his famous Edgocote Peer to the show of the Bull terrier club of America at Philadelphia in 1908, and he beat everything in sight, a feat that he also accomplished in 1907 and 1909, not being shown in 1905. After that he was retired.

Sound End Sombbrero defeated the American champion, Norross Patrician, and the English champion, Bloomsbury Merry Monarch, in the New York show yesterday, according to a wire from Israel. Norross Patrician has been champion since Edgocote Peer was retired undefeated, but is now about 7 years old and too venerable to show against a husky dog like Sombbrero. Edgocote Peer has a decision over Norross Patrician also.

There is a bit of romance about old Edgocote Peer that is worth repeating. W. F. Kenrick and Isaac Clothier of Philadelphia were bitter bench rivals, and the latter had sent his English handler to great Britain to purchase the best dog in the island, and he came back with Bloomsbury Blazer and out $1500. James Mortimer, the greatest living judge of bull terriers, was in charge of the show. Watkins was prevailed upon to send Edgocote Peer to the Atlantic seaboard, and he put the dog in charge of Ben Lewis of Lansdowne, Pa., a professional handler. Edgocote swept the show and afterwards cleared up along the Atlantic coast.

Kendrick saw great possibilities in Edgocote Peer, and he plucked down a cool $1000 to Watkins for the purchase of the dog. He was supreme in American bull terrier circles in 1907, did not show in 1908, and then came back in 1909, beating Norross Patrician, who bowed before Sombbrero, and was then retired.

Sound End Sombbrero was born at San Francisco, July 4, 1910, being owned by T. J. Fisher, who sold him to John Bradshaw, a professional handler, who in turn sold him to Israel. In addition to beating Norross Patrician, the coast dog defeated the English bull terrier champion Bloomsbury Merry Monarch.

Tom Lawson's Dogs Beaten.

(United Press Special Wire.) New York, Feb. 21.—Thomas W. Lawson, the Boston financier, is deeply disappointed here today over the defeat in the bench show of the Westminster Kennel club of the six prize English bull dogs which he recently brought from England at a cost of $20,000. First honors in the bull dog class were captured by Alexander H. Stewart of Chicago with Strathay Prince Albert. This dog, however, also was English bred.

Mayor Rolph's Spaniels Win.

(United Press Special Wire.) San Francisco, Feb. 21.—Mayor James Rolph is all "smoked up" today over a communication from New York other than an advisory message from "My Dear Rudolph." It contained the information that two of his favorite cocker spaniels—Mission and Mission Chief—had won first honors in their class at the Westminster Kennel Club show. Besides the individual prizes, Mission and Mission Chief were awarded the cup for the best pair of black cocker spaniels in the whole show, and the cup for the best brace of sporting dogs exhibited. Mayor Rolph intends to exhibit his dogs at the Boston show and is confident that they will again be returned prize winners.

While nothing authoritative has been announced as to who will be football coach of Phillips Exeter academy next fall, it has been reported that T. A. D. Jones, the former Yale quarterback, who prepared for the New Haven institution there, had been decided upon.

SALE OF FLAGS GETTING RESULTS

More Than $1000 Realized Already; Wear Emblems Tomorrow.

Led by Mrs. J. H. Ingham, 20 women comprising the membership committee of the Oregon Congress of Mothers, are out this afternoon canvassing east and west side homes for the purpose of enlarging the membership rolls of the Oregon Congress of Mothers. The committee will work this afternoon and tonight.

Meanwhile the flag selling campaign which is under the direction of the Child Welfare branch of the congress continues the campaign designed to raise funds for the establishment of an educational bureau where parents could be taught the science of parenthood and child care.

According to Mrs. Thomas G. Greene, chairman of this committee, the workers have sold more than $1000 worth of flags since Monday afternoon when the sale began. Seven women and girls are out selling flags this afternoon. In addition to those who have booths in the hotels and stores, a number have taken stands in the more important office buildings and are reported to be doing a land office business.

Tomorrow, the closing day of the campaign, will be marked by unusual efforts to bring the sales total to $2000. Volunteer workers have been asked to join with the regular workers and Mrs. Greene anticipates that between 100 and 200 workers will turn out to aid.

During the first part of the week comparatively few women purchased flags, but during the last two days there has been an appreciable increase of feminine purchasers. One woman yesterday paid $5 for a flag that she could have purchased for 10 cents. She declined to give her name, saying she was interested in the work of the congress and desired to assist it. "We look for a banner day tomorrow—Washington's birthday—and are making every preparation to break our record sale of yesterday," said Mrs. Greene. "With more than 100 workers in the field, I feel confident that we will do it, too."

SPRINGFIELD LUMBER MILL MAY BE REBUILT

(Special to The Journal.) Springfield, Or., Feb. 21.—Announcement from Washington that the attorney general has compromised the suits involving title to a large number of timber claims in the area of the Oregon & California railroad land grant is hailed with delight here, for it is felt that surely this message means the early rebuilding of the Booth-Kelly sawmill here.

Repeated statements by officials of the company have put on the attorney general's decision the greater part of the reason for the delay in rebuilding the mill, which was destroyed over a year and a half ago. With title to 70,000 acres of timber land in doubt, the company did not feel inclined to put a quarter of a million into a new equipment so long as it could handle its business with its mills at Wending and Coburg. Now that the title is said to be so soon to be cleared and the lumber
