

HONORED WOMAN OF STATE IS DEAD

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Wilson of The Dalles Intimately Connected With History.

(Special to The Journal.)
The Dalles, Or., Feb. 27.—Yesterday morning at the family residence, 299 Union street, death called one of the best known pioneer women of Oregon, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Wilson, after a lingering illness of several months, she having been confined to her bed since last Thanksgiving day.

Elizabeth Miller was born in South Argyle, Washington county, New York, June 15, 1812, she being the daughter of James P. Miller, who was the first Presbyterian minister in Oregon. He organized a church of that denomination at Albany, Or., in 1851.

Miss Miller preceded her parents to Oregon a few weeks, being one of a party of four young women sent out as teachers by the National Board of Education. The other three members of the party, after teaching for a few years, became Mrs. John P. Galus, Mrs. Alanson Beers and Mrs. Mary McClench, all of whom are dead.

They came by way of the Isthmus of Panama, and on the steamer with them was ex-Governor Z. F. Moody. He is now the sole survivor of the party of passengers who arrived in Portland on April 20, 1851, after having made the journey from New York by way of the isthmus.

Miss Miller was first engaged in teaching in a school at Forest Grove, which was the nucleus of what later became Pacific university. She also taught in the old Oregon institute at Salem, that finally became Willamette university.

On Thanksgiving day, 1854, Miss Miller became the wife of Joseph G. Wilson, for a number of years a member of the supreme court of the state. He died in Ohio while a member of congress from Oregon. While Judge Wilson was on the supreme bench they moved to The Dalles, which has ever since been Mrs. Wilson's home.

Here she has been for almost half a century one of The Dalles most honored women. She has been closely allied with the Congregational church, and was a leader in many of the organizations that tended for the upbuilding of humanity and right. Here she had a host of friends, especially among the women who looked upon her as a leader in thought and education, many of whom can truthfully say with one of

LIKE FINDING MONEY, SHE INSISTS, JINGLING FIVE SILVER DOLLARS

"It was just like finding money," exclaimed Mrs. M. Gohine of 420 First street, as she watched an expressman carry out a cupboard she had just sold for $5.

Mrs. Gohine is a widow, who until a year ago was compelled to support herself and son, now a sturdy youth, who is taking the burden of livelihood off her shoulders.

A few days ago she decided she would like to go to California, where several of her friends reside, and the problem of disposing of her furniture, which had been used for more than three years in her housekeeping rooms, obtruded itself. Among the pieces was a cupboard for which she had paid $7.50. She tried in vain to sell it at a price she considered fair, and finally decided to try The Journal's classified column.

The day following the publication of the ad the cupboard was disposed of at the price she named.

"I certainly am satisfied," she said, "and the people who bought it are too. The ad brought us together and each cut out the middleman's profit."

The children who survive the deceased are Mrs. F. P. Mays of Portland, Mrs. Charles W. Taylor of Sherman, Wyo., Mrs. Joseph T. Peters of Portland, and Fred W. Wilson, ex-prosecuting attorney of the Seventh district, residing in The Dalles.

MAYOR MICELLI OF ROSEBURG TO APPEAL

Roseburg, Or., Feb. 27.—Mayor Joseph Micelli, convicted in the circuit court here Wednesday on a charge of violating the local option law, will appeal to the supreme court.

The defense established the fact that the sales of standard beer were made by S. J. Reizenstein, former bookkeeper and salesman of the brewery while Micelli was manager, but the jury held that the signing by Micelli of freight receipts for standard beer shipped into Roseburg by Reizenstein, under the name of the brewery, made Micelli an aid and abettor to Reizenstein, thereby rendering him equally liable to the penalty of the law.

APPLE DAY SALE PLANS ADOPTED

Grocers to Aid by Making Special Price for Three Days.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week will be apple day in Portland. Every grocer who holds membership in the Retail Grocers' association will on those days sell apples at a profit of only 25 cents a box.

This was decided at a meeting late yesterday afternoon between a committee from the association and a committee representing the home economics department of the Portland's Women's club, which has inaugurated a movement toward a lower cost of living.

The apple sale marks the first actual step in this direction, and Mrs. A. King Wilson, committee chairman, today promised that other steps will be taken shortly.

The aim of the movement is to educate housewives in systematic buying, with a view of securing lowered costs by lessening the number of deliveries now demanded of dealers, and a general betterment of relations existing between buyer and seller.

Through cooperation between the two, the committee believes material reductions in the cost of groceries to consumers can be accomplished.

According to plans tentatively outlined yesterday, dealers and clubwomen will work together to give the sale publicity and acquaint housewives with the broader movement that is behind it.

Final plans for the sale probably will be made Tuesday afternoon, when the home economics department of the Women's club will meet in the Women of Woodcraft hall.

Mrs. A. King Wilson is chairman of the committee having the campaign in charge. Included on her committee which met the grocers' representatives yesterday were Mrs. Millie R. Trumbull, Mrs. James R. Tiff, Mrs. W. H. Fear, Miss Helen Gillespie, Mrs. George Frankel and Mrs. Joseph Scowin.

TOWEL THIEF MAKES HIS APPEARANCE AT COUNTY COURT HOUSE

Who's the thief or thieves? County Judge Cleeton wants to know. So do Commissioners Hart and Lightner, Superintendent of the County Courthouse Keilo, and the janitors. One thing is certain, it is not a tramp or any other member of the great army of the unwashed.

Harry Bulger, the deputy attached to the county court, who unearthed the robberies, has deduced this much, for the simple reason that some person or persons have been systematically stealing the towels from the county courthouse. What use would a habitual dodger of soap and suds have for a towel?

Following the discovery of the fact that entrance has been gained into the various offices in the courthouse and the washstands pilfered, County Judge Cleeton presided over a council of war yesterday. It was decided to keep a sharp lookout for the sneaks and the first man suspected will be arrested.

In addition the janitors were ordered not to distribute clean towels until the last thing at night, just before they close the office doors. This step, it is believed, will stop the thefts.

Recently about 50 towels have been stolen. Each towel is marked with threads that can be easily pulled out of the cloth, leaving it without identification marks.

CLIFFORD BARLOW HEADS WARRENTON, OR., LEAGUE

(Special to The Journal.)

Warrenton, Or., Feb. 27.—The members of the Warrenton Development league at their annual election of officers elected Clifford Barlow president, Frank M. Warren vice president, W. P. Hornar secretary, and G. T. Moore, treasurer.

These officials will submit an outline of the various phases of city and county work with which the members are in sympathy and will endeavor to arrange a plan whereby all sections of the county can be represented in the publicity work of the different organizations, providing the other commercial bodies are agreeable. The main incentive is to bring about a more united feeling in the general welfare of the community and realizing that there is a wide range of interests, from the canneries to the popular summer resorts, from the logging industry to the dairying, and from the shipping at Astoria to the stage from Seaside to Cannon Beach, it is thought probable that with the combination of persons interested in these varied enterprises Clatsop county can induce within its borders people and capital to assist in the effort to make this district the great seaport, lumber manufacturing, dairying, fishing and possible resort that nature has peculiarly adapted it for. Anyway, the league here will make an effort in this direction.
