THREENEWDESSERTS

By Oscar Tschirky, Manager of Waldorf-Astoria.

Compo of Rice and Peaches.

Boil one cup of a carefully washed rice in a quart of salted milk which was heated before the rice was added. Cook until the rice is tender and the liquid is well absorbed (more milk may be needed.) Now add four tablespoonfuls of butter, a quarter of a cup of sugar and mix thoroughly. Place in buttered mould and place in a hot oven for 10 minutes. Turn out on a platter, cover with perfect halves of preserved peaches and pour peach syrup over all.

Chocolate Mousse.

Soak two level tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatine in a quarter cup of cold water. Boil seven level tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar in one cup of water. As it comes to a boil stir in two level tablespoonfuls of chocolate, grated, and a level tablespoonful of sugar. Mix. Pour the chocolate syrup over the gelatine and return to the fire to cook slowly, for about five minutes, then set aside to cool. Beat slightly the yolk of one egg and add, as if for a mayonnaise, one-half cup of olive oil, beating until stiff. Mix this with the chocolate, continuing to heat, add the stiff white of one egg. Now place in a mould, pack in ice, and let it stand till thoroughly frozen.

Sorbet, Bitter Almond.

Boil together for five minutes one quart of water and one half pound of granulated sugar. Let this cool and flavor rather strongly with essence of bitter almond. Add one gill of kirsch liquor, and, if desired, color a faint pink. Freeze, and when about frozen stir in the whites of three eggs beaten to a meringue with three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Freeze again until smooth, and just before serving stir in two tablespoonfuls of noyau.

Things Unsaid.

No doubt, like all others, you've known circumstances Where your honest opinions you'd gladly have bared, Yet didn't speak out, for you wouldn't take chances— For where is the fellow who always has dared?

That sharp, searching trust about people With a keen thing it was!—and it should have been shared; But your creditor, Smith, might have thought it unkind, Still you thus would have crushed him— If you had but dared.

Bill Jones is a regular whale of a fellow; To grant his good looking you're also prepared; But to judge by his chatter, his intellect's mellow— And you'd tell him so quickly, if only you dared.

Were it not for the tongue of that kid of McPherson's You'd have scored him long since, and you wouldn't have spared; You know, though, that he's no respecter of persons— But what you would tell him, if only you dared!

Oh, you've held in and swallowed and gurgled and spluttered— With but one consolation; when all shall be squared You'll be found better off for your not having uttered. The things you have said if you only had dared.

THE DIRTY SHEPHERDESS

Fairy Story—Retold by Anne Bunner

Once upon a time there lived a king who had two daughters and he loved them with all his heart. When they grew up he was suddenly seized with a wish to know if they, on their part, truly loved him, and he made up his mind that he would give his kingdom to whichever best proved her devotion. So he called the elder princess and said to her: "How much do you love me?" "As the apple of my eye!" answered she. "Ah!" exclaimed the king, kissing her tenderly as he spoke; "you are indeed a good daughter."

some bread baked by the kitchen girl in the distant farm. Although the wish appeared rather odd, they hastened to fulfill it, and the farmer was told the request of the king's son. The maiden showed no surprise at receiving such an order, but merely asked for some flour, salt and water, and also that she might be left alone in a little room adjoining the oven, where the kneading trough stood. Before beginning her work she washed herself carefully, and even put on her rings; but while she was baking, one of her rings slid into the dough. The loaf, which was a very little one, was brought to the king's son, who ate it with pleasure. But in cutting it he found the ring of the princess, and declared to his parents that he would marry the girl whom that ring fitted.

GREAT STAR TO HEAR OTHER STARS SING

Mary Garden, famous soprano with Chicago Grand Opera company, who has engaged a box for the opening night of the company here.

One of the most interesting of the notable box holders for the opening night of the coming grand opera season is Miss Mary Garden, the great soprano, who has just telegraphed from San Francisco to the management to hold, if possible, a box for her for "The Jewels of the Madonna." These famous singers are often so very much absorbed in rehearsing their own exacting roles that the evenings on which they themselves give no performance they are often too worn out to sit quietly and hear one of their fellow artists sing; so, perhaps, as the "Jewels of the Madonna" is one of the newest of the operas, Miss Garden has not had the chance to hear it, and takes the first good opportunity of doing so. The custom of singers occupying boxes to listen to the art and voices of their coworkers is not especially new. It was only a few years ago that Mrs. Nordica created a good deal of excitement at the Metropolitan in New York by buying a box for the season there and parting with a sum of money that ran well up into five figures. Miss Garden herself has had a box for the entire Chicago season and is known to be one of the windy city's most charming hostesses. The lecture recital on "The Jewels of the Madonna," which was given yesterday afternoon at the Meler & Frank tea room was an overwhelming success and the spacious room was packed with eager music lovers. On Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock Miss Nash will give her splendid interpretation of

"Thais," and the first recital was so very gratifying that the Meler & Frank firm has engaged Miss Nash to give the stories of the other operas on Thursday afternoon at half past two sharp. During the Wednesday afternoon recital Mrs. Susie Fennell Pipes will play the violin, the "Meditation" from "Thais." The seats for the entire opera season are now on sale at the Sherman-Clay store at Sixth and Morrison.
