

SEES A FURTHER SCHEME TO GRAB WATERFRONTAGE

Swan Island Channel Dredging Plan Would Encroach on Harbor Lines for Benefit of Few, It is Said.

By J. B. Ziegler.

At the last meeting of the dock commission, Messrs. Burgard and Moores were appointed a committee to take up with the port commission the matter of relocating the harbor lines about Swan Island. The subject had been introduced by Harbor Master Speier, for the purpose of increasing the harbor area available for anchorage, and to relieve the curve in the channel at the north end of the island. Mr. Speier's information that sometimes there are six or seven vessels in the harbor at once, and that with the room required for anchor cables, is about the limit of the capacity of the harbor, will be news to some.

Under such condition it certainly seems that our city fathers would consider the matter of encroachments upon the harbor area as a question of greater gravity than they appear to do.

Both objects of the harbor master's proposal are laudable ones, but as it is proposed to extend the wharf line far to the west of the harbor, and to fill in adjacent submerged lands with the material dredged out from the end of the island, it only amounts to swapping off area in the west channel for area at the south point of the island. As the west channel is now only used for small river craft and the anchorage room secured would be out of the way of the ship's channel, the change would be of present advantage, but it is still an encroachment of the abutting owners on the west bank, and the public loses again to them, property improved by fills made at public expense.

No Fills Between High and Low Water.

In the first place, it is not necessary that the wharf line be extended to make places to deposit dredgings, nor that it be deposited on submerged lands between low and high water line, belonging to the people, that they may be built up and converted to the title of the abutting upland proprietor. There are plenty of lowlands above the 14 foot level designated by the dock commission as the ordinary high water line (the U. S. engineers' office calls it the flood stage) which would be benefited by receiving these dredgings. It would be a little more expensive removal, but would save the public harbor area.

The map reproduced herewith was drawn by City Engineer D. W. Taylor, by order of the city council, in 1883, for the purpose of showing "Proposed Exterior Wharf Lines," in relation to shore lines, and "established lines of the city." Note the words "exterior wharf," not harbor line, as it is now called.

The latter is merely a local name applied by those seeking to convert a property line instead of a wharf line.

As fully shown heretofore, the claim of the upland proprietor to ownership of the wharf line is baseless, but if built up by the dredging operations of the port, it is conferred upon the abutting owners by a clear title.

Repeal of Vicious Clause in Port Act.

The repeal of this clause is a part of the legislation I have suggested, and it should be covered by an initiative and submitted to the people at the first opportunity.

The "proposed wharf lines" of this map were city lines. The federal lines were not established until 1892. They differ from the present wharf lines in that the west channel is only 700 feet, while the present one is 1000 to 1200 feet. Yet the submerged lands between Front street and the wharf line is the same as the one at Docksite No. 1 (about 350 feet), but increasing to the northward until it reaches about 1000 feet at the O. R. & N. property in place of about 500 on the old map.

The Eastern and Western Lumber company's property (E), and is the gain in submerged lands from a depth of about 350 feet to 1200 feet, value about $1,000,000.

This is the property which the port will fill first, and is about ready to begin. The public, feeling the fact that the public needs both the water-front and the money expended, and it seems that a better plan would be to buy the waterfront first, and then fill and dredge only as fast as that could be done.

A Repeating Process.

If the men continue to have their way, the wharf lines will be changed again, and this neat little process with the people's funds and properties will be extended, by dredging out the shoals around Swan Island, and even to the extent of buying the island and moving it over on the other side of the west channel for the benefit of the riparian owners, and all at the expense of the public.

It might be good policy to dredge out a part of these shoal waters and build up other parts, were it not for the fact that the public needs both the water-front and the money expended, and it seems that a better plan would be to buy the waterfront first, and then fill and dredge only as fast as that could be done.

A part of the demand for dredging comes from the private operators anywhere. They have asked upon the former public levee in the heart of the city, encroached upon the river until they claim that part of the harbor is ruined, and it must be moved down the river, where the boldness of the large operators now and they will encroach as far as permitted there, and when the process is complete, they will cheerfully turn up with plans for improvements over on the Columbia, where doubtless they will already be cozily installed in possession of the waterfront.

Present Law Should Stand.

Why not sustain the law of public ownership up to ordinary high water line as established by present construction of Oregon courts, and stop this vast waste. One million five hundred thousand dollars for two little dikes, when the people own all the river and its banks?

A simple fool asked his neighbor for a job. "All right," said the neighbor, "move that pile of bricks to the other side of the road."

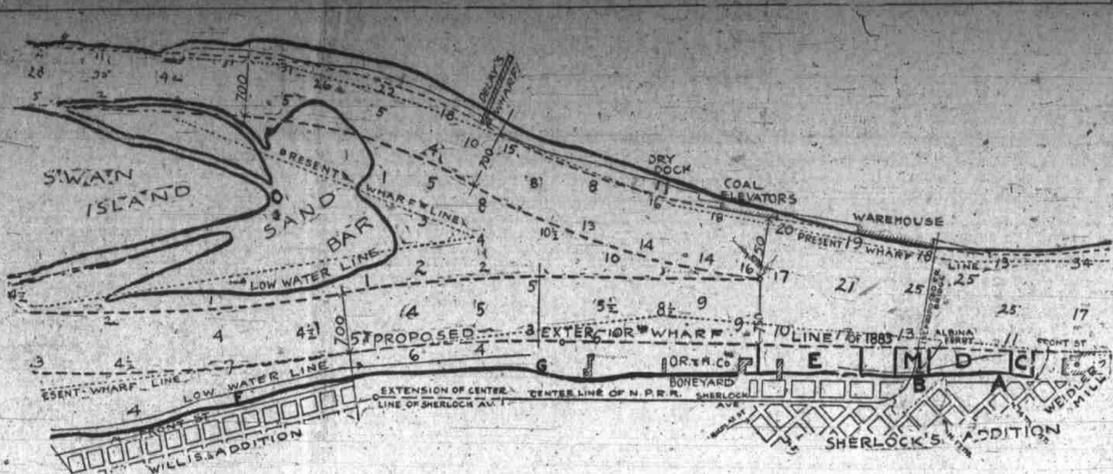

"When done," the fool said, "what now?"

"Move them back to where you found them."

The fool replied, "Yet he was paid his wages. There is no danger in the Portland parallel."

There are some points about this map worthy of your attention. The reader will note in Willis' addition, near the O. R. & N. wharf, that Front street is

MAP MADE BY CITY IN 1883 WHEN CITY LIMITS WERE EXTENDED NORTHWARDS

The heavy line on West Shore F. G. is the ordinary high water line. It will be seen that at the public dock site it encroaches on Front street. Front street has since been filled. The lots appearing between it and the wharf line are submerged and therefore public property. The deep frontage of the O. R. & N. forming a projecting angle into the river is also submerged.

plotted on the water front, according to the plan prevailing up to that time. It has now disappeared, and Sherlock avenue, one block back, is the first street, while the water front owners take all between that and the wharf line. The high and low water lines also appear on this map, showing dock site No. 1 (D) at the foot of Seventeenth street to have been all submerged land, the river encroaching upon Front street, as our old resident remembers. These lines also have disappeared. Had this map been retained in the city records, it would have established dock site No. 1 as public property, and the public would not have been under the necessity of paying $300,000 to get it now.

These maps were not satisfactory, and were replaced by the present maps, showing the river platted down to the wharf line (sic), and the lots assessed for taxes. That is, public officials, without legal authority or power to do so, for a mess of pottage, have sought to give away this valuable birthright. The public records have been changed to show public property as private property, and administered in behalf of private interests against the public, by men salaried by the public.

It will also be noted that, since dock site No. 1 was located, that the North Pacific Terminal company has extended its tracks down Front street past the dock site (two tracks from A to B, one from B to E) so as to obstruct the exit of dock-connecting tracks. This was done, without a city franchise, on a franchise claimed to have been obtained from the county prior to 1882. Such a fluke as this would be obviated by the common terminal district amendment to the charter I asked the revision committee to present to the council for the June election, and which they, of course, turned down.

The American Can company's ground (C) has been eliminated from the dock site, and the Martin Dock company's ground (M), on the north side, substituted. This was because the can company wanted $100,000 for their shed.

The fact that a deeper water front on the west side, opposite Swan Island, shows on the present map than this old one, although the channel was made tending to spend his birthday, April 1, there.

While Mr. Morgan's body lies in state, the safety continues uninterrupted at the hotel. The noise of the dancing and other revelry continued until dawn.

Death Mask Taken.

Relatives of the late financier this morning permitted Albin Polacek, an art student from Philadelphia, to take a death mask. Polacek is studying at the American Art academy here, Mr. Morgan having paid his tuition.

The second floor of the hotel was deserted last night. Mr. Morgan's relatives moving elsewhere. Friends offered to keep watch over the body last night but their services were declined, six paid employees guarding the corpse.

Morgan and his party occupied the royal suite—two salons and eight bedrooms with a private outside residence. The kings of Greece and Sweden had occupied the suite at various times. Morgan occupied the corner room, overlooking the park.

The Italian laws, which impose considerable red tape on the removal of bodies, probably will be evaded in this case.

Death Due to Nervous Collapse.

Dr. Starr, Dr. Dixon and Professor Bastianelli are preparing a formal statement regarding Morgan's last illness.

"Death was due primarily to a nervous collapse resulting largely from a strenuous life and lack of power to recuperate energy which a younger man could have expended with impunity," said Professor Bastianelli today.

"The immediate cause was stomach trouble, which acting with the nervous system, caused the collapse."

"Until two days ago we had hoped that Mr. Morgan's excellent constitution would pull him through, but nature succumbed, and the end came rapidly."

Before the body is removed from Rome the Rev. Gardiner Brown and Rev. Mr. Nelson, rectors of the English and American Episcopal churches respectively, here, will hold funeral services.

CHILDREN PARADE WILL BE FINANCED BY EAST SIDE MEN

Failure of Rose Festival Committee to Appear at Meeting Causes Business Men's Club to Take Action.

It was thought that all differences between the East Side Business Men's club and the Rose Festival management had been smoothed over and patched up at the luncheon held yesterday noon, but at a meeting of the East Side club last night it was decided finally and decisively that they would finance and assume all responsibilities of the children's parade.

A committee from the Festival management was to have met with the East Side men and arrange all details for the collection of funds on the east side of the river, but for some reason the Festival people failed to appear. The non-appearance of the Festival committee caused the east side to doubt the sincerity of the former, so it was decided that the children's parade should be held as in former years, under the direct management of the East Side Business Men's club.

The whole trouble arose from the fact that the Rose Festival association did not promise any definite amount for the parade. They promised that if $4000 were collected on the east side of the river the whole of it would be used for the parade. They also agreed to finance the automobile parade and hold it on the east side of the river.

At the meeting last night committees were formed for the purpose of collecting the funds, and work was commenced this morning. It is hoped that at least $4000 will be collected.
