

WARDEN STILL HAS KLANATH FRIENDS

Meeting at Merrill Stampedes to Him When Politics Is Introduced.

(Special to The Journal.)
Klamath Falls, Or., April 2.—Those circulating the petitions to hold a recall election on County Judge W. S. Worden are meeting determined opposition. At a good roads convention at Merrill an attempt was made to storm the county court attended in large numbers and made an open attack on Worden. Worden was present and replied. His remarks throughout were interrupted by applause and cheers. Many of those who attempted to speak against the county court were hissed and hooted. The meeting, if it may be taken as a criterion, showed that Worden is popular despite the fact that he has been responsible for an increase in taxes since he went into office.

While many of the taxpayers are opposed to him, he also has a host of supporters. Several times it was feared that the principals in the wordy conflict would engage in a free for all. Few signatures were secured to the recall petition there. The meeting, which presumably was a neutral one, was stampeded to Worden, lessening the chance of bringing about his recall.

TO ADDRESS STUDENTS ON LOGGING INDUSTRY

J. D. Young, manager of Inman-Poulson's logging camps near Kelso, is in Portland today on his way to Corvallis. There he will address the students of the engineering and forestry departments of O. A. C. on "The Evolution of the Logging Industry and the Evolution of the Logger."
Mr. Young's address at O. A. C. is an annual event. He was one of the committee that started and carried on the campaign for a logging course at the Agricultural college. The logging bill, which carried an appropriation of $65,000 for this purpose, was defeated by the last legislature, but the lumbermen are not discouraged, says Mr. Young.
"We won our point," he said, "the need of such a course was brought clearly before the people of the state, and the mill tax for the state institutions, provided by the legislature, insures the establishment of such a course in a year or so."
The need of the logging industry of the northwest for well trained logging engineers is growing all the time. Only a short time ago I know of a $500 a month job going begging for the right man. The opportunity in this field is certainly great for the future. There is no way that O. A. C. can better help the young men of the state and at the same time itself in an industrial way, than by the training of these young men to step in and fill responsible positions in the state's greatest industry."

FORMER WYOMING GIRL PACIFIC COLLEGE QUEEN

Miss Mary Elizabeth Jones.

(Special to The Journal.)
Newberg, Or., April 24.—Miss Mary Elizabeth Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Jones, was elected Queen of the May for this year by the students of Pacific college, of Newberg. This is Miss Jones' first year in the college, her preparatory and previous college work having been done in the University of Wyoming. That she has won high place in the regard of her fellow students notwithstanding her short residence here is attested by the selection. The May day exercises at the college will not be elaborate this year, but special effort will be made to have the costumes and special characters reproductions of those of the old English May festival.

WANT PORTLAND TO AID IN BANK REFORM

The Portland Chamber of Commerce has been requested by the Richmond, Va., Chamber of Commerce to cooperate in securing action by the president and the present session of congress on the banking reform question.
It is the opinion of the Richmond chamber that "President Wilson, while now wholly engrossed by his concern in the pending tariff measure, will be in the near future in a most receptive mood touching currency and banking reform, as in his recent message the importance of that question was fully recognized."
The subject of currency and banking reform has been considered by local bankers, who feel that the suggestions of ex-Senator Forsaker if adopted would prove of inestimable value to both banking and business interests. The plan provides for a central bank to which individual banks all over the country would contribute, thus forming a national bank which would be in a position to aid smaller institutions when occasion arises.

2 SUPPORT LAWS PASS '13 SESSION

Second Seems to Kill First and Becomes Effective Upon June 3.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.)
Salem, Or., April 24.—Perhaps the legislature didn't know it, but it passed two non-support laws at its recent session.

The first one, senate bill 73, was passed in January. It amended the old law on the statute books, making the payment of $1 a day to the wife of a man convicted of non-support by the company compulsory instead of discretionary.

The second one passed was house bill 537, passed in February. It makes the crime of non-support a felony and repeals the law that senate bill 73 intended to amend.

So it is assumed here that the last bill passed will become a law on June 3. This provides that the courts shall pay a wife whose husband is convicted of non-support $1 a day and 25 cents a day for each child, providing that not more than $1.75 a day shall be paid to one woman.

NEW CITY RULE IS BAR TO IRREGULARITIES

Mayor C. L. Palmer of Baker has written a letter to Charles D. Mahaffie, secretary of the charter publicity committee, which contains a strong indorsement of commission government. It is the only business system, says Mayor Palmer, writing as follows:
"Answering your inquiry of April 16 in reference to our form of government, after two years' trial our citizens indorse it at the fall elections by a large majority and that after a bitter fight by its enemies. I consider it the only business method of conducting a city's affairs and the larger the city the more benefits. It concentrates the responsibility of officers, gets quicker action on matters of importance, better results from employees, and the commissioner is held responsible for the different departments and under bond. I consider the opportunity for irregularity in the city's affairs under commission government very small."

HUDSON IN NEW ROLE OF PURSE SNATCHER

How C. H. Hudson, held in the county jail for defrauding women, secured a woman's purse found in his room, is told in a letter from Miss Emma Larsen to Detectives Hyde and Vaughn. The young woman is in Colorado, but her home is in Kalamazoo, Mich. She relates that while touring lower California she visited relatives at Los Angeles. One evening they went to a cafe for dinner. During the course of the dinner, Miss Larsen laid her purse on a chair near the table. When she returned to get it, it was gone. Nothing had been heard of it until Captain of Detectives Baty wrote her recently.
Hudson refused to explain how he got it, or why it was in his possession. The purse contained $10, keys, card case and personal papers belonging to Miss Larsen. All articles were in the purse when found in Hudson's room, except the money.

The detectives also received a letter from Miss Andrea Walden of Prosser, B. I., in which she claims articles found in Hudson's possession. The young woman writes that she met Hudson in New York city last fall. Hudson represented himself to be a medical student. The detective bureau is still corresponding with cities throughout the country in efforts to obtain other information of the man.

Merited Patronage

Poultrymen show their confidence in The Journal's poultry column through the volume of business carried in this classification. The reason for this can be given in one word—results. The Saturday feature is now in great favor among chicken fanciers, and they realize that this is a most favorable issue in which to list their stock and eggs.

MAN'S SARTORIAL TROUBLES ARE ENDED; NEW-FANGLED NECKTIE IS SOLUTION

Wearing an air of hauteur and otherwise impeccably clad, a young man occasionally occupies a glass pillar in front of a downtown haberdashery. He does more than occupy. He demonstrates. You hold your very breath from admiration. You know—anyhow you know if you come from the bunch-grass ballcock of the roughneck shirt—how difficult it is to make a necktie slip through a still white collar. You have perished and grunted and sworn away your soul and condemned all social frills as miserable bunk. The young man handles something that looks like a steel tarantula with four legs. Dettly he slips a tie around it and holds it up. Then he hitches the thingamob to his collar button. The effect is perfection itself. You gasp with joy.
You are hooked. You enter the store and are haughtily served with a couple of the tarantulas and a few collars and ties. You buy as many as you can in order to impress the clerks. They are not impressed. They yawn. There are others—many others.
You take your plunder home rejoicing. You try the tarantula. It don't stick, but it kicks. You strive for the same effect that you saw through the glass—and striving fail. You get a granny knot that looks as though it might have been tied in a cow's tail by an unskilled seaman.

If you have nerve enough, you go back to the store. The writer did. Looking the demonstrator straight in the eye, he said:
"I live in the United States and am honorably mentioned in the census reports. I'm both poor and respectable, but I'll give you six dollars and thirty cents a week to act as my personal valet de chambre. If you don't like the de chambre function, we'll omit it. You are at liberty to spend the thirty cents for milk shakes at five a throw."
The demonstrator could not be cowed. He could not be bullied. The disturbance that followed sounded like an insurrection in Israel. Hebrew verbs and nouns and adjectives collided in mid-air, and lost their legs and teeth. Never was there such a linguistic tragedy.
Having nowhere else to go, the writer went away.

ELKS' ENTERTAINMENT PROVES GREAT SUCCESS

Some of the best talent in the city took part in an entertainment given last night in the Elks' Temple, Sixth street and Broadway, when more than 500 Elks and their wives and friends were present. The theatre of the city contributed a number of acts and the brass band, the members of which are Elks, scored a great success.
Frank Hennessy was there with a new song, entitled "Seattle, 1913." This song is of his own composition, and sets forth the attractions of Seattle as a meeting place for the Elks' convention in 1915. Following the entertainment the party went to the Pantheon theatre, where the members were the guests of Manager Johnson at a special exhibition of motion pictures showing wild Elks in their quarters.

COLLEGE GIRL STEALS FROM ST. PAUL STORE

(United Press Leased Wire.)
St. Paul, Minn., April 24.—Following her theft of $3.50 from a St. Paul store while employed in the establishment, and her representations that she was Miss Sarah McAllister of Berkeley, Cal., so she might meet Miss McAllister's many friends here, Miss Sarah McAllen, daughter of a wealthy merchant of Chicago, Minn., has been sent back to her home today. The girl will give the reason for her strange actions other than she was out for a good time.
Miss McAllen is a graduate of the University of California and met Miss McAllister while attending that institution.

TWO BODIES IN CELLAR; WOMAN IS ARRESTED

(United Press Leased Wire.)
St. Louis, April 24.—Following the finding of the body of her mother, Mrs. Ernestine Kemmichau, 75, and her sister, Thelma Kemmichau, 50, in a grave filled with quick lime in the basement of their home here today, the police declare that she killed her mother and sister, and that in accordance with their wishes, she buried them in the basement.
According to the woman's story, she kept her mother's body in a showcase in the house throughout last summer.
