REFEREE SAVES MANDOT FROM ANDERSON'S PUNCH IN TWELFTH ROUND

PROGRESS OF GREAT VANCOUVER FIGHTER CANNOT BE STOPPED

Exhibits Most Terrific Punch Ever Carried by Lightweight Into Historic Vernon Arena.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

Los Angeles, May 21.—The pugilistic progress of Bud Anderson of Vancouver, Wash., is uninterrupted today, while Joe Mandot of New Orleans is in the lightweight discard, as the result of their meeting last night at McCarey's Vernon arena. Anderson won handily by a technical knockout in the twelfth round after he had led the fight from the first tap of the gong. Mandot was still on his feet, but was palpably unable to defend himself when Referee Eyton interfered and hoisted Anderson's arm, declaring him the winner.

Bud's great punishing power won him the battle. His boxing was crude, and the Frenchman easily surpassed him at the long range work. Anderson, however, refused to work at a distance. After almost every lead by Mandot he would rush to close quarters and pound on the New Orleans boy's stomach with pistonlike lefts and rights. As early as the first round it was apparent that this mode of attack would seal Joe's doom.

Mandot had a hard time to weather the ninth. He went to the mat from a short right to the jaw, but came up fighting bravely. The bell stopped terrific punishment.

Throughout the tenth and eleventh Anderson continued his body attack, and in the twelfth after beating Joe's kidneys until the Frenchman was almost ready to drop, shot a sharp right to the jaw that sent Joe reeling across the ring. As he leaped to finish his work, Eyton interfered.

Has Most Terrific Punch.

In addition to what veteran ring birds here declared to be the most terrific punch ever exhibited at Vernon by a lightweight, Anderson showed a measuring strength. In spite of Mandot's clever covering and surreptitious holding, he was unable to break the force of Bud's punches, which continually crashed through the southerner's guard to his battered body. The first series of these body punches, delivered in the first round, lifted Mandot clean off the canvas and caused him to wince with pain.

Before the third round was over Bud had begun to pay particular attention to the kidneys, and from then until the end he battered the red area that had appeared on Mandet's back.

In the third and twelfth rounds Mandot made desperate efforts to stay the tide. In the third he rushed Bud furiously and repeatedly, but was unable to land a single disturbing punch. His final rally, which was the last attempt of a beaten man, came in the twelfth soon after the boys had answered the bell. Joe rushed Bud to the ropes, where he dug away with both hands. His efforts were wasted, for Anderson waited calmly until the splurge was over, and then started on his own account a rally that ended the battle.

GREAT SURPRISE TO SEATTLE LADY

Use of Plant Juice Surprised and Delighted This Well Known Seattle Woman.

Here is a statement from a well known Seattle citizen who says his wife has been greatly benefited by the use of Plant Juice, the new tonic that is causing so much comment in the west. Mr. F. L. Kehoe, who lives at 1109 Howell street, in Seattle, said:

"My wife has been using Plant Juice for an obstinate case of indigestion that has been troubling her for some time. We did not seem to be able to find anything that would correct it. We read of Plant Juice and the offer seemed so fair that it looked as though you must have confidence in the treatment. I see now where you were right. Plant Juice has helped my wife from the start and she is feeling much better in every way. It seems to have been just the thing we were looking for."

As a tonic, vitalizer, and general corrective for all disorders of the stomach, kidneys, liver or blood Plant Juice stands in a class by itself. ANDERSON'S VICTORY BY ROUNDS

Round One—Anderson ducked Joe's lead and began a furious body attack, at times raising Mandot clear off the floor. After the break Mandot, at long range, landed three straight lefts, taking a vicious right to the body in return. Bud rushed and pounded stomach and kidneys, Mandot seemingly unable to stop the fusillade.

Round Three—Mandot attacked furiously, starting a dozen lefts and rights to the body, but failing to land effectively. Joe sent left to face and followed with hard right to ear. Boring in, Bud took several good left and right uppercuts to the head, landing an occasional telling body blow. In a clinch Bud put hard right to kidneys. Mandot sent hard right to jaw at the bell. This was Joe's best round.

Round Four—Mandot showed to advantage in a long range exchange. Bud shot straight left to the body and followed with right and left. They clinched continually, Bud continuing his body attack. Mandot fought back gamely, but seemed unable to guard against Bud's terrific stomach punches.

Round Five—Mandot shot left to head and they slugged at close quarters, Mandot breaking ground. They traded rights and lefts to head and Joe had a slight advantage at long range. Bud closed the round by thrashing through Mandot's defense and belaboring the sore kidneys and stomach.

Round Six—They traded lefts, and Bud buried both fists in Mandot's stomach, making the Frenchman grunt. Mandot put left to head and Bud countered with right to the same spot, and rushed in with left and hard rights to body.

Round Seven—Joe put two good lefts to head and Bud ducked into close quarters, ramming lefts and rights to wind, and swinging rights to the kidneys. His punches could be heard all over the house. Mandot was tiring rapidly but he was game. Joe scored two lefts and a right to the face at the bell.

Round Eight—Anderson confined his work to the clinches, apparently content to let Mandot peck at his face at long range. At close quarters he sent slashing punches to Joe's body and the effect of each was plain. Joe scored long left to head but Bud countered with staggering right to wind.

Round Nine—Mandot landed two lefts to head and Bud countered with short right to jaw, dropping Mandot. He was up instantly, and hung on through a terrific rain of lefts and rights to head and body. Joe was severely punished in this round but managed to last until the bell.

Round Ten—Apparently refreshed, Mandot poked a series of long lefts to face. Bud rushed and resumed his body tattoo. They traded rights and lefts, and Bud uppercut viciously with right twice to the chin.

Round Twelve—Mandot made a final effort, rushing Bud to a corner and trying hard with rights and lefts to body. Bud pounded the stomach and kidneys. Mandot took terrific punishment. Bud shot right to jaw and Joe reeled across the ring, helpless. Referee Eyton here stopped the battle. Mandot was "out on his feet."

MAGIC PRESENCE OF HIG IN FIFTH FRAME STARTS STICK RALLY

Beavers Rush Over Four Tallies, Chase Harkness and Pull Game Out of Fire.

Los Angeles, May 21.—Any old time that Irve Higginbotham gets into a ball game you can bet your sweet life that there is something about to crack. That's one of the reasons why Hig is the leading pitcher of the Coast league with seven victories and two defeats. Hig doesn't wait for the men behind him to bat in the runs; he starts the rallies himself on the opposing pitchers and that's why he comes out on the long end of the scores. If Hig keeps this up throughout the season he will easily be the leading twirler of the circuit.

Now don't mistake us. Hig was not the Portland pitcher yesterday. Bill James was the northerner who started the affair and when Higginbotham was called from the clubhouse in the fifth inning, James was three runs to the bad. Higginbotham took James' place, but not in the pitcher's box. He batted for Big Bill. McCormick had filed out, when Fisher singled. McCredie then and there derricked James and sent Higginbotham in to hit. It's weird the way the Beavers clout behind this big fellow. Hig can bang the ball around some himself and he faced his old twirling mate, Speck Harkness, with a bit of disdain flashing from his orbs. He smashed a single to left that put Fisher on second. Then Hig went back to the show while Krapp ran for him. It was the crack that got Harkness' goat. Chadbourne beat out one to the infield, loading the sacks. Derrick got the habit and scored Fisher with a single to left, his favorite spot. After Doane fouled to McConnell, Krapp scored on a wild pitch. Kores followed with another single to left and Chadbourne and Derrick scored. That was the end of "Speck." Raleigh took up the burden and caused Rodgers to force Kores at second. The four runs gave Portland the game, for Harry Krause held the Venetians helpless thereafter.

Venice scored in the first inning when Carlisle walked and Meloan singled and the pair pulled off a double steal.

Carlisle scored when Kores failed to take Fisher's throw at second. Meloan scored on a wild pitch.

Patsy O'Rourke, making his debut at second base as a Gondolier, walked in the fourth inning, went to second on a balk and scored on Elliott's single.

TRIPLE BY MELCHIOR AND SPEAS' SINGLE GIVE COLTS 2D GAME

Tacoma Ties Score in Fourth by Help of Kennedy's Flukish Single Through Infield.

Heine Melchior's triple down the first base line in the sixth inning, followed by a single over second by Billy Speas, broke up a tie game with Tacoma yesterday and made two straight victories for the Colts. Previously some great base running by Bancroft and extra base hitting by Speas placed the Colts in position to win the game.

Stanley got along nicely except in the fourth inning, when a couple of rollers toward Coltrin let in three runs. It was this way: McMullin singled to right, but was forced by Burrell. Keilar singled to left and Neighbors through short, filling the bases. Then Kennedy sent a puzzling hopper toward Coltrin that Bobby tried to trap, but it veered toward short and out of reach of Bancroft. Before it could be retrieved two runs were in and Neighbors was on third, whence he scored when Buell, batting for Nordyke, sent a grounder to Coltrin that Bobby bobbled but recovered in time to throw Buell out at first. "Skin" Harris walked and on an attempted double steal Kennedy was out at the plate.

Bancroft's single to McMullin, his first stolen base, Mohler's out and Fries "squeeze bunt," gave Portland the first run in the opening inning. The Colts made another in the third, when Bancroft reached first on McMullen's error, stole second and scored on Mohler's single across second.

Speas, who is hitting the ball at a terrific clip, doubled to left to start the fourth, and scored on Williams' smash past third.

OPINION IS DIVIDED OVER SELIG VERDICT IN FAVOR OF GUNBOAT

Hundreds of Fans Believe Willard Entitled to Draw; Tom Jones Cries Robbery.

(United Press Leased Wire.)

San Francisco, May 21.—Opinion is strongly divided here today over the action of Referee Ben Selig in giving Gunboat Smith the decision over Jess Willard in their 20 round bout here last night. Hundreds of fans believe the cowboy was entitled to a draw while others go still further and assert that he won.

Willard never was in distress at any time, while Smith was badly hurt several times. He rocked the Gunboat with rights and lefts and had he been an experienced fighter undoubtedly would have finished his man. A year with Tom Jones should make a fighter out of Willard. His most serious fault, aside from his greenness, is his failure to follow up an advantage. He is unquestionably game.

"After 10 rounds," said Referee Selig, explaining his decision, "Smith took the lead. He easily outfought Willard in the clinches and these blows weakened the cowboy. Willard is a big green fellow and has a lot to learn. He should improve with a few more fights. He kept missing frequently after the fight was half over. Smith also was the aggressor and made the pace. He easily landed the more effective blows and did the most fighting, which entitled him to the honors. Willard's blows lacked steam."

Smith undoubtedly was handicapped by Willard's size and had fairly to leap from the canvas in order to score. A right swing in the tenth round brought the blood in a stream from Willard's left ear and the Gunboat played for that point whenever the opportunity offered.

"It is only on a par with other decisions that have been against my fighters in San Francisco," said Jones. "It was downright robbery; that's just what it was."

Smith declared today he is now ready for Luther McCarty. "I think I had a good lead on Willard and outpointed him all around," said Smith. "Willard is a harder man to get at than one would think, and he should be a comer. But I want McCarty now."

Willard was indignant. He said:

"Smith never even dazed me, and at no time was I in distress. My ear was sore when I entered the ring, and it still remains the only mark on me. I think the showing made in the last rounds would entitle me to a draw, as the worst decision possible."

MASCOT is really a ten-cent tobacco—Quality and Quantity—and I sell it for 5 cents—How can I do it?

When I bucked into this tobacco-selling business I brought along with me a brand new idea.

The idea was to give you a ten-cent quality—and quantity—of smoking tobacco for 5 cents, and still keep from going broke myself.

There was only one way to do it. I knew the way. It was simple. I cut out the tin box cost—which is heavy—and put MASCOT in an inexpensive cloth pouch. The 10-centers come in tin boxes. You can't smoke tin, but you pay for tin.

My pouch is just as good as the tin box; in fact, it has many advantages over the tin box—and it saves me the money which makes it possible for me to give you double value for yours.

MASCOT

CRUSHED CUT TOBACCO

The Good NEW Smoke for Pipe and Cigarette

has built up a whirlwind success just on that simple idea.

And remember, MASCOT isn't "Just another nickel tobacco."

It stands shoulder-to-shoulder with any ten-cent tobacco you ever smoked. It is made from regulation ten-cent material.

Here's MASCOT:

Good old ripe mild Burley leaf—the best that Kentucky's golden sun and rich soil produces — carefully cleaned and cured until it is pure and mellow and sweet; then sliced and crushed until the tobacco runs uniformly throughout and does not "smoke in streaks."

Men, the proof of a tobacco is in the smoking of it. Take it from me, there isn't any better tobacco than MASCOT. Smoke it today.
