SWIM NEARLY 4 MILES

Four hours of extremely dangerou and strenuous work by men, in two day aftermen to save two horses, ma-tooned in Columbia slough by the high water. The rescue was accomplished under the direction of Samuel Mont-gomery, an official of the Oregon Humane society, who had been assigned to the task by Manager J. E. Ruders-

The rescue of the horses ended a lon; fast for them, as they had been stand-ing deep in the water for more than two days, unable to get anything to eat except the tops of shrubs and busies. Just as the landing was effected, near the car barn in Park Rose, the owner, W. L. Van Alstyne, of 520 East Forty-fifth street, who had been looking for two days for the horses, and saw the notice of the expedition of the Humane society in last evening's edition of The Journal, met the rescuing party and took the horses to a comfortable stable

In making the rescue, Mr. Mont-gomery was compelled to chase the horses from the shallow into the deep water, in order to make them awim Time after time the animals would head toward a pile of drift wood, thinking it afforded a landing place, and every time the boats would be compelled to head them off into deep water again. The horses swam nearly four miles.

On several occasions they got lost in the brush, while the men in the boat, unable to use the oars, were compelled to progress by pulling themselves along by grabbing the brush. But one accident occurred to the horses and that was in crossing a wire fence, when one of them became entangled in the wires. In plunging around, the animal was cut and torn, but dangerous wounds were

MILWAUKIE STREET

At a special meeting the city executive board yesterday afternoon accepted the Milwaukie street pavement. The contract price of the pavement was $137,000. The contract was let in the Simon administration, but work was delayed for various reasons and the street was completed only a short time ago. Property owners remonstrated against the assessment on the grounds that the pavement was defective in many places. Before the board met yesterday the members went out to Milwaukie street and inspected several chunks of the show the quality of the work. The acof the board who lives on the street and will have to pay an assessment of $1260, expressing himself as being enirely satisfied that the pavement was aid in accordance with specifications.

land for me. About 20 years ago I sent back to Wisconsin to Frank Harding for some sheep. He got them from Canada. They had been imported into Canada from England. They were Cotswold and Lincolns. We were pioneers in this section in bringing in Cotswold sheep and Angora goats. The raising of thoroughbred Cotswold bucks was not difficult, but the selling of them at first was very much of a problem. It seems easy now-a-days to think of selling blooded stock, but in those days no demand had been worked up for blooded stock and the Willamette valley was When I wrote to various sheepmen in bucks, I was told that they did not care next year I had 90 bucks ready for the market. As an experiment, I shipped sold at a good figure.
