IN EARLIER DAYS

By Fred Lockley.

The Douglas spruce or, to give it its other and better known name, the Douglas fir or Oregon pine, has been the foundation of many a fortune in Oregon and has made Portland the largest lumber-cutting city in the world. Comparatively few know anything about the man from whom the Douglas fir takes its name. David Douglas was born at Seone, near Perth, in Scotland, in 1799. He was the son of John Douglas, his father was a stonemason. David was one of six children. He was sent to the parish school at Kinross, but the three R's didn't take in his case very well. He greatly preferred "playing hooky" so that he could go "bird nesting" or fishing. He had a passion for rambling through the woods and nature meant more to him than any written book.

While still a small boy he made a collection of birds and an excellent collection of plants. Finding that he was getting but little credit for his father's apprenticeship him when he was 11 years old to the gardener who had charge of the Earl of Mansfield's gardens. He served a seven year apprenticeship, but his good fortune to be put to work in the flower garden. The man in charge was named Mc-Gillivray. He had studied botany and found David an eager learner. His love for plants and trees led him to desire book knowledge so he borrowed books and being unable to own them he learned by heart the parts that impressed him.

It has been more than 10 years since the Rev. Mr. Allen came to the church as its pastor. The affection between him and Mrs. Allen and their congregation is very great. The retiring pastor also is held in high esteem by ministers of other churches of the city, some of whom will speak at tonight's reception. Rev. Dr. Benjamin Young of Taylor Street M. E. church, the Rev. John H. Boyd of the First Presbyterian church, the Rev. Frank DeWitt Findley of the United Presbyterian church, and H. S. Members of the church will also speak their best wishes for their departing pastor and his wife in other fields. There will be special music.

A beautiful Navajo Indian blanket is to be presented to Mrs. Allen, and a generous purse to Rev. Mr. Allen by the congregation.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen are going to California for Mrs. Allen's health. They plan to take a year's rest there. Then they will take up their work in some other field.

Next Sunday Mr. Allen will deliver his farewell sermon as pastor. He and Mrs. Allen will remain in Portland, however, until after the World's Christian Conference here during the first week in July.

Clearing up Old Estates.

Several hundred estates are being sent out by Monroe Goldstein, clerk of Probate Judge Cleaton's court, to attorneys and administrators of estates notifying them to appear and give reasons for not closing the estates. All are estates of long standing, some of which were opened as long as 15 years ago. If replies are not returned in 10 days citations will be brought into court to give their explanations. County Clerk Coffey and Judge Cleaton are cooperating in the attempt to close these old estates legally. In the majority of the cases it is believed the delays are due to debts, but some cases have been brought to light in past times in which mismanagement has been found. It is with the idea of learning whether the property in the estates went to the rightful heirs or not that the matter is being taken up.

CAPTAIN, MATE, ARRESTED ON CHARGES OF CRUELTY

Aberdeen, Wash., June 20.—Frank Bennett, cook on the barkentine Benadict, which arrived a few days ago, caused the arrest today of Captain Charles Chase and First Mate Gust Lundgren, on a charge of cruelty on the high seas. Bennett says he was placed in irons seven days out from New Zealand and left without food and kicked by the mate. He alleges he is permanently lame from the treatment. Chase says Bennett was a bad cook and refused to be a sailor and was placed in irons for one day, on cause of insubordination. They are having a hearing before United States Deputy Commissioner Pearson this afternoon. The barkentine Benadict was the scene of a murder and suicide a year ago when a cook killed himself and the mate at a southern American port.

We advertise to get business

We advertise truthfully to keep it

In making up the ads, the instructions I got are not to be enthusiastic—not to over-state anything. Make a man feel that he is getting more than he expected.

This firm doesn't claim any special moral credit for this policy—it's only good business.

For example, we sell hundreds, yes thousands of our standard, Union made suits at $20. In all the late models and fabrics, these suits are enthusiastically quoted by other merchants at $25 to $30. Yet at twenty dollars we can make a living profit and would rather sell a large number at a small profit than a few at a larger one.

The same way with the $12 Oregon all-wool cassimeres. These are surprising value—a man invariably gets more for his money than he expected, and after wearing one of these suits for some time, is still more agreeably surprised to see the splendid material and workmanship.

This is a good place to get clothing for the boys. If you can't come with them, send them alone. We take even more pains with the boys unaccompanied by parents, because we feel an added responsibility for their appearance. At $3.95 they'll be well fitted out in a really high grade woolen, or in a pretty washable at $1.
