

WOMAN IS SILENT ABOUT TACOMA BRIDGE TRAGEDY

Mystery Behind Attempt of Ed Mygatt to Hurl Mrs. Ruth Allen Off Span, Unexplained by Girl's Mother.

Behind the attempt of Edward Mygatt to throw Mrs. Ruth Allen, daughter of Mrs. L. M. Allen, of 955 Cleveland avenue, Portland, over a bridge at Tacoma, yesterday, falling to which he threw himself over the span, falling to his death, there is a mystery which Mrs. L. M. Allen yesterday steadfastly refused to explain, and which her daughter, who was held in jail at Tacoma, also refused to disclose.

Mygatt declared that Mrs. Ruth Allen was his wife and that he was the father of her two-months-old baby. The young woman, at Tacoma, yesterday denied this, and Mrs. Allen, the mother, when seen yesterday at her home on Cleveland avenue, also declared that the baby was not his.

"My daughter was married to a man whose name I will never reveal, in April, 1912," said Mrs. Allen. "She went with him from Portland to Los Angeles, where she lived with him but a very short time. After Ruth left her husband, she met Mygatt, who fell desperately in love with her and wanted her to marry him.

Threatened to Kill Self. "She was married to the other man, however, and refused to consider his proposals, although I believe that in time he would have prevailed on her to secure a divorce and marry him. She was afraid of him because he smoked cigarettes all the time, and she wanted to reform him before she even thought of marrying him. He followed her from Los Angeles to San Francisco, and from San Francisco to Portland. Thursday night she met him at the depot with her grip as she intended to go to Tacoma, taking with her the daughter's baby and her own young daughter. She left at 3:45 o'clock yesterday. She caused a telegram to be sent to Tacoma asking that the chief of police hold the daughter until she arrived, this being done because she feared the young woman would commit suicide.

In speaking of Mygatt, Mrs. Allen said that he was the son of wealthy people in Independence, Mo.

OFFERS TO RECOVER $200,000 IN LOOT

A weird story of how he could recover loot valued at $200,000, if certain conditions were made possible, was told Detective Tichenor and Abbott yesterday afternoon by Thomas Alexander, under parole from the state prison. The loot is supposed to be from a robbery of the Union Pacific, near Ogden, three years ago.

The conditions under which Alexander promised to reveal the property consisted of raising $500 to unearthen the loot and a pardon or parole for a man now serving time in the state prison. The man in prison is Edward Jergens, who is serving a long term for robbery. Alexander first told his story to friends in the north end. This reached the ears of the detectives, who took Alexander into custody. He was later turned over to Deputy Sheriff Frank Curtis for further investigation.

DAIRYMAN FINED $20 IN MUNICIPAL COURT

B. Paulson, proprietor of the Brayside dairy, was fined $20 this morning in the municipal court for selling milk under standard. Complaint was filed by the city milk inspector, to which Paulson pleaded guilty.

Paulson was fined on a similar charge three months ago. He has been before the court on a charge of keeping an unsanitary dairy. The dairy inspectors gave him 30 days in which to make certain changes, but an investigation showed he had not made the changes, therefore Paulson was brought before the court 10 days ago. At that time it was decided that Judge Tazewell would make a personal investigation of the dairy, but such inspection has not been made, thereby leaving the disposition of this case still open.

His cup and the awards for the other prize winners will be presented at the V. M. C. A. next Saturday. There were 252 contestants and it took 50 doctors and about the same number of nurses to make the selection of winners.

FORMER EMPLOYEE SUES FURRIER FOR $35,000

Whether Saul Silverfield or another furrier placed the brand "S" on furs found in M. L. Gumbert's store after Ross C. Barnes left Silverfield's employ and went with Gumbert, is the main point in a $35,000 damage suit by Barnes against Silverfield for malicious prosecution. Barnes was arrested last summer on complaint of Silverfield, who charged that Barnes took furs from Silverfield's store. Search of Gumbert's premises disclosed furs marked "S." Gumbert claimed these furs were bought from an eastern dealer and were prepared and marked by Schild Bros.

Barnes was arraigned in justice court and held to the grand jury. That body returned a not true bill, and Barnes was released. Barnes alleged in his complaint that Silverfield was malicious in his prosecution, and that the charge of theft was filed because Silverfield became enraged that Barnes left his employ.

The testimony of the plaintiff was completed this morning, and argument for a nonsuit begun. The argument will be concluded Monday morning.

BLAMES BAD WORK ON CONVICT LABOR

Pacific Heating Plant May Contest Award of New Contract to Rival.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.) Salem, Or., June 21.—P. A. Williams of the Pacific Heating & Engineering company, appeared before the state board of control today and protested against the board granting the contract for the installation of the central heating plant for the state capitol building and the new supreme court building to W. W. Cox of Portland, when his company was the lowest bidder. His company's bid was $19,877, while Cox's bid was $20,231, but the board rejected Williams' bid on the ground that work performed by him at the state tuberculosis sanatorium and at the new receiving hospital at the asylum was unsatisfactory. Cox reduced his bid to equal Williams'.

Williams told the board members that the inferior work at the sanatorium was due to the convict labor furnished him and to the specifications of the state architect. He admitted, however, that changes in the specifications were made according to his recommendations. He also admitted that he had an incompetent superintendent on the job at the beginning of the work. He said the convict labor was so poor that it required months to do work that ought to have been done in a few weeks.

He said the matter was being taken up with his attorneys and if any grounds could be found for contesting the awarding of the contract to Cox he would take the case into the courts.

(Special to The Journal.) Eugene, Or., June 21.—The election of Jay H. Upton of Scout Young Camp, Portland, as department commander, and the selection of Salem as the next meeting place, the annual encampment of the United-Spanish war veterans adjourned today. Upton was elected on the first ballot. William S. Jolley of Phillips Camp, Albany, and E. R. Lundberg of Scout Young Camp, being other nominees.

Other officers were elected without opposition as follows: Senior vice commander, A. W. O'Neill, Portland; surgeon, Dr. W. Q. Asselin, Salem; marshal, W. G. White, Eugene.

W. S. U'Ren of Oregon City asked the president to address the encampment on the needs of certain laws in Oregon but the proposition to allow him to speak was voted down, as the encampment did not have time to spare.

Eugene, Or., June 21.—The hundred or more visiting Spanish war veterans in Eugene are being entertained and feted on every hand. Not only have Eugene people extended to them a cordial welcome, and accorded them every privilege of the city, but the people of Springfield have kept open house and a majority of the delegates have visited that enterprising city during their short stay. Visitors are lavish in their praises of the cordiality shown by the two cities to the veterans. From the time of the arrival of the special excursion train from Portland at noon yesterday till the end of the business session today at noon, there has been something to do and something to see, and this afternoon, given up to pleasure entirely, is being spent by the visitors in various ways best suited to their different tastes.

WOOD ENDS GOLF MARK FOR GOLF LINKS WITH 70

Northwesterners Take One Foursome From Visiting Easterners and Lose Another Requiring 37 Holes.

The middle western golfers were winners in three of the four foursome matches played yesterday on the Waverly Country club links. A. S. Kerry and "Dixie" Fleeger were responsible for the victory of the Coast golfers.

Evans and Wood were winners yesterday over Davis and Egan in a spectacular 36 hole match by brilliant playing on the last two greens. The former champions, Evans and Wood, beat Davis and Egan by a score of 1 up. Wood turned in a score of 70 for the morning's play, which is a new local record on the new course, and 72 for the afternoon flight. Davis turned in the score of 146 for the 36 holes.

Lee and DeVol were the only losers of the visiting players yesterday. If Kerry and Fleeger lost in the morning flight 1 up, but brilliant putting by Kerry in the afternoon resulted in a victory for the Seattle duo, 2 up and 1 to play.

Stanton and Hale outlasted Matter son and Lippy, beating the coasters 5 up and 4 to play. Both Lippy and Matter son were off form throughout the entire 36 holes. Lippy did not turn in any score, while his partner's score for the 36 holes was 154.

Jack Neville of Oakland and Macan, the northwestern champion, gave Legg and Sawyer a close run for honors in a 37 hole match. Sawyer led the match by setting the thirty-seventh hole in three strokes.

Today's play will bring the match play to an end. The afternoon play will start about 2:30 o'clock. Yesterday's results: Evans and Wood beat Davis and Egan, 1 up; Evans 147, Wood 142, Davis 146, Egan 148. Sawyer and Legg beat Neville and Macan, 1 up. 37 holes. Sawyer 153, Legg 147. Macan 147, Neville 155. Fleeger and Kerry beat Lee and DeVol, 2 up and 1 to play. Kerry 157, Fleeger 78. Stanton and Hale beat Matter son and Lippy, 5 up and 4 to play. Stanton 75 (last 18 holes), Hale 148. Matter son 154, Lippy, no score turned in.

Tonight the middle western and the Pacific coast players will be the guests of the Waverly Golf club at a dinner dance at the beautiful new clubhouse. The visiting golfers will leave tomorrow for Salt Lake, on the first leg of their journey home.

TODAY IS LONGEST DAY IN THE YEAR; SUN RISES AT 4:22

You may take it from the old reliable almanac that today is the longest day in the year. It isn't that it should be, for today is the summer solstice. Whatever a solstice may be is another question, but to all intents and purposes it means mid-summer and the day of the year on which the sun would shine the longest were it not for obscuring clouds.

Longest days are because the sun's rays are falling perpendicularly on the tropic of cancer, while the sun is stationary on the ecliptic for a day or two before going south again. That's the law on the subject.

As a matter of fact, yesterday, today and tomorrow are practically equal in length. Tomorrow there will be no appreciable change, says Weather Director Beals, for a month.

The sun would have shown today for about 15 hours, had the rain clouds and fog not "soiled" the sun. It was due to rise at 4:22 and to set at 7:39.

PILKINGTON CHOICE PERSONAL TRIBUTE

J. B. Pilkington.

The election of J. B. Pilkington of Portland as president of the American Association of Nurserymen, is considered by his friends as a tribute to his years of service in behalf of the association.

Pilkington is generally credited with having been the man who brought the association to Portland this year, the first time it ever met west of the Rockies.

The new president was not an active candidate for the honor, but the sentiment of the convention was with him almost from the start.

He succeeds Thomas Meehan, of Dresher, Pa., who made little effort toward reelection. In fact his friends joined in making the election of Mr. Pilkington unanimous.

A. J. BIEHL BE BROUGHT BACK TO PORTLAND TODAY

Man Under Sentence in Columbia Orchards Co. Fraud Case Was Deported From Canada, Where He Had Fled

Allen J. Biehl, the only one of the Columbia Orchards company stockholders to stand trial, and who recently jumped his bond and fled to Canada, will be in Portland late this afternoon in the custody of a Seattle deputy United States marshal.

According to the message received by Assistant United States Attorney E. A. Johnson, Biehl, who was deported from Canada as an undesirable citizen by Canadian immigration officials a few days ago, is being accompanied by his bondsmen, who wish to surrender him.

The Columbia Orchards company, headed by A. J. DeLarm, was charged with fleecing land purchasers of hundreds of thousands of dollars in an irrigation land project in southeastern Washington. Biehl was the only one of the stockholders to ever stand trial.

The government prosecution was staged in federal court here last December. It was a big trial more than a hundred witnesses appearing. C. H. McWhorter and H. H. Humphries were other members of the Columbia Orchards company who were indicted, and who were expected to stand trial with Biehl. Biehl was prosecuted by John McCourt, and in the face of the overwhelming evidence of fraud presented, Biehl was quickly convicted and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

Pending appeal by his attorney, Wilson T. Hume, Biehl was allowed to remain at liberty on $10,000 bond. This bond was furnished by W. L. T. Skinner, his father-in-law, and Jacob Dierling, both Seattle men.

Two weeks ago the United States attorney's office learned just before the trial commenced. Biehl was prosecuted by John McCourt, and in the face of the overwhelming evidence of fraud presented, Biehl was quickly convicted and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

Pending appeal by his attorney, Wilson T. Hume, Biehl was allowed to remain at liberty on $10,000 bond. This bond was furnished by W. L. T. Skinner, his father-in-law, and Jacob Dierling, both Seattle men.

MARKINLEY PEAKS SCALED BY CLERIC WITH PARTY OF 3

Highest Point on North American Continent Reached June 7; Expedition Delayed by Ice Wrecked by Earthquake.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Fairbanks, Alaska, June 21.—Archdeacon Hudson Stuck and his party of three were successful in reaching the summit of the south peak of Mount McKinley, the highest spot in North America, June 7, according to a message received from the party at Fort Gibbon today. They found the highest peak on the continent to have an altitude of 29,500 feet.

The expedition left Fairbanks March 17, and included beside Archdeacon Stuck, Harry P. Karstens, guide; Robert G. Tatum, missionary, and Walter Harper.

Evidence of seismic disturbances were discovered on the mountain, and at one place it was necessary to cut a three mile trail through ice shaken from one of the upper ridges.

Lloyd Flagpole Sighted. From the summit, the flagpole erected by Thomas Lloyd and his companions on the south peak in 1910 could be plainly seen through field glasses.

Credit for the success of the expedition is given by Archdeacon Stuck to the guide, "Seventy Mile Kid" Karstens, so called because of his exploits on the trail. Stuck remained at the base camp to rest. He will return here in August and go to New York in October as a delegate to Alaska to the general conference of the Episcopal church.

Ascend on Clear Day. According to the message received at Fort Gibbon, the Stuck party carried a mercurial barometer to the summit of the South peak and reached its destination on a clear day. This permitted the reading of the angles of the mountain's other prominent points, so that it was possible to determine with accuracy the fact that the highest point of all had been reached. Water boiled at 174.9 degrees.

After planting a six foot "cross and raising an American flag the "Deum" was sung.

Thomas Lloyd of Fairbanks is credited with having reached the summit of the North peak of Mount McKinley with three other Alaskans in the spring of 1910. This party claimed the honor of first reaching the top of either of the mountain's twin peaks.

Dr. Cook's Claim. Professor Henschel Parker of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Belmore Browne of Tacoma, went over the Lloyd trail last year, but were driven back by a furious blizzard when within 200 feet of the summit. They had previously failed in two attempts to climb the mountain over the trail described by Dr. Frederick A. Cook as the one he claims he went over in September, 1906. Dr. Cook maintained that he was the first to reach the summit of the North peak.

Archdeacon Stuck, in his message from camp, stated that there had been no mishaps during the progress of the climb.
