Willamette Will Mount Still Higher Than Present Stage, According to Today's Forecast: Weather Prediction.

"Should the rain continue to fall as it ins for the past few days the river will still reach Front street," said District Forecaster E. A. Beals this morning, in meaking of the critical condition srought about by the heavy rains of the last six days. The reading at 8 relock this morning showed the river it a stage of 22.6 feet and the forecast s for a slight rise during the next two lays, reaching 22.7 feet Tuesday and 12.8 feet Wednesday.

Weather conditions for the next 24 o 36 hours will be showery, says Mr. Beals, and the run-off of rain into the spper Willamette river, where there is a ise reported at all stations, will be reponsible for the slight rise predicted tere. However, the ground has now besome saturated and a continuation of he heavy rains would bring the river ip fast. The amount that has fallen if the last six days during the winter season when the ground is thoroughly yet would bring the river up to 10 feet ere, says the weather man.

During the past six days the rainfall sere up to 10 o'clock this morning has seen 2.83 inches, while the total for he month to date was 3.55 inches. The tormal to and including June 23 is 1.46 nches. The rainfall at Eugene was 2.19 nches! at Albany, 2.13 inches; at Salem, 1.99 inches, and at Wilsonville it was

The wettest June on record here was n 1888 when 5.38 inches of rain fell. In he 43 years from 1871 to the present rear inclusive the amount of rainfall ias, exceeded three inches on but four ecasions. The rainfall for the entire ponth last year was 3.03 inches. In his forecast District Forecaster Seals says: "Showers tonight and bresday with southwesterly winds."
