VETERANS OFF TO SCENE OF BATTLE OF 50 YEARS AGO

Eighty-eight Old Soldiers, Anxious to Revisit Gettysburg, March Through the Streets to Board Train.

Spend Morning Telling War Stories, Waiting for "Fall In."

Once more the drum roll, beating the assembly as in war days, the crisp "Fall in!" and 88 veterans stepped through the streets today again on their way to the battlefield.

A battlefield of 50 years ago this time, with a peaceful reunion at the end of the journey to commemorate the anniversary of Gettysburg. And this time soldiers of north and south marched together to the front.

Five Confederates who fought at Gettysburg were among the 88 who marched to the depot to board their train this afternoon. The tall figure of W. H. Lindsay, clad in Confederate gray, was conspicuous among them.

On the top of his head there was still a deep furrow where a Union bullet ploughed a trench after he had passed the fatal stone wall in Pickett's charge and spiked four union guns. He carried 24 gun spikes with him, and those four he put to use before he was shot down. His father and a brother found him there after the charge and got him back within their own lines. But he left two other brothers, one of them a twin, and four cousins on the field that day.

Was in Pickett's Charge. Another Confederate was Colonel R. J. Hawthorne, of Eugene, formerly a professor at the University of Oregon. He, too, was in Pickett's charge. And Lee's Army of Northern Virginia was further represented by W. H. Beathie, of the Thirty-first Virginia, F. S. Doughton, of the Twenty-sixth North Carolina, and T. E. Davis, also of the famous Thirty-first Virginia, who went to the depot, though he cannot make the trip.

Among the Union fighters of the Army of the Potomac who repelled the southern attack in the three day battle was L. B. Kent of battery A, Second United States artillery, who fired the first gun at Gettysburg two days before the main fight began. The gun of "Fiddler's" battery is now on the Gettysburg field in the same position as when Kent pulled the lanyard.

C. E. Hausdorf, who began as a private in the First Minnesota and fought up to be its lieutenant colonel, and later, he also was a member of the "Confederate Veterans' camp." And there were many, many others.

Day One of Excitement. When the special train left the Union depot at 2 o'clock in charge of Captain James P. Shaw, special commissioner, who was the master of final arrangements, it brought the first part of a busy and exciting day for the veterans to a close.

In the morning it was more reminiscence at headquarters in the court house, and the making of final arrangements. Then shortly after noon, all were lined up on the Plaza block before the Second Oregon monument to have their pictures taken. First the Gettysburg men were snapped, and then all the Civil war survivors proceeded.

By then it was almost time for the parade to the depot to begin, and the formation for the march was started. There were automobiles for those who desired them, but all but a few veterans who were disabled by wounds insisted on making the march foot.

Policemen Play for Veterans. The police band led them, playing national airs. There was a detachment of Oregon National Guardsmen there by special order of Adjutant General W. E. Finzer as an escort of honor.

At the depot, the guardsmen lined up before the train at present arms while the old soldiers walked in front of them. The detachment was in command of Major L. A. Bowman, and General (Continued on Page Thirteen.)

Gettysburg Anniversary

Did you know a Portland man charged with Pickett at Gettysburg? Other Oregon veterans who start back today for the battlefield to attend the anniversary participated in the stirring events at "Bloody Angle," "Cemetery Ridge," "Little Round Top" and "Big Round Top," just 50 years ago. Some of them were blue and some gray. They will tell their stories in The Journal Sunday.

The magazine of The Sunday Journal also will contain a number of special battle features, including "A Guide's Story of Gettysburg," a plain, unadorned, but intensely interesting tale of just how the battle was fought.

WOMEN TRIUMPH IN LAST SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL

Protest Against Location of Saloon at East Approach of Broadway Bridge Wins by 9 to 5 Vote.

The last regular session of the old city council today, marking as it did the official farewell to the old forms of municipal government that will give way next Tuesday to commission rule, was itself marked by one of the most unusual scenes that has ever been noted at the city hall.

This was the appearance of probably 200 women, representing many different creeds and conditions, but all being unanimous in protesting against the location of a saloon on the east approach of the Broadway bridge.

More remarkable still, perhaps, was the fact that the remonstrance of the women carried sufficient weight to defeat the establishment of a saloon on the bridge approach. The council voted against the saloon, 9 to 5. The transfer of a liquor license, under such circumstances, has never before met with such opposition and it is doubtful if, in all the history of Portland anything approaching the action of the council today has before been recorded.

Vice Mayor Rushlight called attention to the application of Doane & Ruhnke to transfer their license to the (Continued on Page Two.)

DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS SUSTAINS FREE SUGAR; GROWERS LOSE FIGHT

"Budget System" Discussed and Approved by Underwood; Members Anxious.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Washington, June 25.—The Democratic caucus this afternoon voted to sustain free sugar in the tariff bill.

The Democratic members of the house met in caucus today to discuss the controversy over the "budget system" of controlling appropriations by congress. Majority Leader Underwood presented the budget plan prepared by a special caucus committee, providing for a "special select" committee, composed of the party leaders and heads of the big committees of the house, whose duty it shall be to make the gross appropriations fit the federal revenues. This committee would allot the maximum sums to the regular appropriation committee and present annually a complete fiscal program.

Underwood believes that the senate would be morally bound to observe the limitations of appropriations set by the budget committee.

Several Democrats, it was said, intended to demand that the caucus raise the embargo against any legislation at the present session of congress except the tariff and currency bills and emergency matters.

JUDGE DAVIS BARS FRANK T. COLLIER FROM HIS COURT

Attorney Takes Exception to Direction of Jury in Silverfield Case and Is Ruled Out of Davis' Department.

(United Press Leased Wire.) San Francisco, June 25.—Unable without the sacrifice of her womanhood to earn a living wage in skirts, Eileen Shaw, 16 years old, is in the city jail today here for masquerading in boy's attire in an effort to make a living.

Captured by the police because her longing for a husband and a home, led her to use a matrimonial agency to obtain them, the girl was found working as a bell boy in a local hotel, using the name of "Herbert Emery." Frightened by the questioning of a detective, the girl became confused, admitted her sex, and at the city jail told the story of her struggle.

"My folks live in Humboldt county, Cal.," she is charged today with having been working in Portland, Or. When I came here and tried to get a job the agent at the employment office promised me a place at $20 a month, out of which I would have to pay my own board and lodging.

"But I can't live on that," I told him. He answered brutally, "Well, why don't you do something on the side; all the girls do." So I went away from the place and decided to masquerade as a boy. In this I succeeded, but soon I tired of hard work and longed for the companionship of a good man. I appealed to the matrimonial agency and received a number of answers, but none of them were satisfactory.

Interest of women's aid societies here has been enlisted in the girl's case and attempts will be made to secure a position for her where she can obtain a living wage.

AUTHOR DUNN ADMITS HE STOLE JEWELRY OF FRISCO SOCIETY WOMEN

Allan Dunn Tells Police He Took $250 Brooch and $75 Ring, Pawned Them.

(United Press Leased Wire.) San Francisco, June 25.—Society circles in Berkeley and San Francisco astir by a confession of Allan Dunn, author and clubman, to Chief of Police Volmer, of Berkeley, that he stole a $250 jeweled brooch from a San Francisco woman and pawned it for $75. Dunn has also confessed to a San Francisco officer that he stole a diamond engagement ring from the home of W. L. Busk in San Francisco, and pawned it.

Volmer stated that Dunn would not be prosecuted. Every effort was made to keep the matter from becoming public, friends of the author offering to redeem the jewelry. The brooch was recovered without the identity of the owner being revealed. Pawn tickets for other jewelry were also found in Dunn's possession.

PROSECUTOR WILL BE NAMED TODAY IN M'NAB'S PLACE

Francis J. Heney, Matt I. Sullivan and Thomas Hayden Under Consideration for Special Prosecutor.

WILSON CALLS M'NAB'S RESIGNATION "HASTY"

Attorney General McReynolds Publishes Correspondence Relating to Incident.

(United Press Leased Wire.) Washington, June 25.—A special prosecutor will be appointed today, according to a statement issued at the White House, to take charge of the trials that United States District Attorney John L. McNab of San Francisco resigned his office.

The only instructions to be issued to the special prosecutor, it was declared at the White House, would be to complete the prosecutions immediately. The McNab-Caminetti case, on the calendar in the United States district court in San Francisco July 8, and the Western Fuel case for July 15 in the same court.

The names of Francis J. Heney, Matt I. Sullivan and Thomas Hayden, all of San Francisco, are being considered as special prosecutors. Friends of Sullivan are strongly urging his appointment. At the executive offices it was insisted that the president and Attorney General McReynolds intend to select the prosecutor from the standpoint of his standing at the bar, rather than through political influence.

Kinebaugh Drops Inquiry. Satisfied with the announcement that the McNab-Caminetti and Western Fuel company cases will be pressed immediately, Representative Kinebaugh of Illinois said today that he would not insist on action upon his resolution directing the house rules committee to investigate the reasons which prompted United States District Attorney John L. McNab to tender his resignation to President Wilson, because he was ordered by Attorney General McReynolds to postpone the trials of these cases.

Representative Kahn of California, who introduced two resolutions calling upon the attorney general for all the documents bearing on the cases, still thinks the house should demand that the papers be produced.

"I think the entire correspondence ought to be published," Kahn said today. The statements issued at the White House contain only excerpts from this correspondence. The house is entitled to the full letter files. I shall appear before the judiciary committee tomorrow and urge a favorable report on my resolution. The people should know the evidence in the cases, which might show the motives which caused the order of their postponement, and (Continued on Page Thirteen.)

SNAKES ONLY FOOD OF MEXICAN SOLDIERS

(United Press Leased Wire.) Nogales, Ariz., June 25.—That the Mexican federal soldiers above Guaymas are reduced to a state of starvation because of food and are forced to eat snakes, is the report received here today. The rebels are reported to have cut off the federal base of supplies. Fighting still proceeds around Guaymas. It is said that a smallpox epidemic in the insurgent camp partially equalizes the lack of food on the federal side, and that the fighting has again become desultory.

UNITY AMONG CITIES IN ZONE OF GREAT WATERWAY NOW SLOGAN; JOURNAL'S STAND BRINGS INSTANT REPLY FROM MANY PARTS WHICH WOULD BE BENEFITED BY IMPROVED COMMERCIAL CONDITIONS IN THIS SECTION.

Breathing a spirit of unity and cooperation, telegrams and letters arriving at The Journal office show how simple a matter it would be to unite all the Columbia region into a compact body to fight for abolition of the discriminatory grain rates to which Columbia points are now subjected. If only the big commercial bodies of Portland would lead in such a movement.

These letters are brought out by the publicity in last Sunday's Journal respecting Columbia river points and the possibilities that surround them. They show that there never was a time when it would have been so easy to effect a permanent Columbia river organization, comprising all the communities along the river, the purpose and object of which would be to abolish the artificial and discriminatory railroad rates, and the other barriers by which rival ports are proceeding with the spoliation of Columbia river commerce. Following are a few of the letters:

Compliments Editorial in Journal. Vancouver, Wash., June 25.—To the Editor of The Journal—I wish to compliment you upon your splendid editorial in last Sunday's Journal in respect to the Columbia river. Few people realize what the near future will bring the Pacific coast when the numerous vessels are reaching our port direct from the old world and the Atlantic coast.

What country will receive advantages from these improvements more than that land adjacent to the Columbia river? We thank you very highly for your mention of the opportunities open to Vancouver.

J. W. SHAW, Secretary Commercial Club. Method Called Good One. Vancouver, Wash., June 25.—To the Editor of The Journal—I think the method adopted by The Journal of advertising the Columbia river and the surrounding country, particularly as set out in the issue of June 22 and prior issues, is indeed a good one. The Journal, in my estimation, is to be congratulated upon the excellent issue that is published last Sunday. It seems to me that the matters and things therein set out relative to the Columbia river are (Continued on Page Seven.)

I. W. W. LEADERS RUN OUT OF TOWN AT MARSHFIELD

Two Hundred Citizens March to Jail, Get W. J. Edgeworth and Wesley Everett, Conduct Them to Launch.

BOAT RUNS TO LOWER BAY; PAIR SENT UP BEACH

Later Fred Roberts Is Taken From Jail and Handled Similarly.

(Special to The Journal.) Marshfield, Or., June 25.—Two I. W. W. leaders were conducted out of town by citizens amid a big demonstration here this morning. W. J. Edgeworth, a local leader of the order and Wesley Everett, who has been prominent in the I. W. W. work, the two men.

Most of the stores closed from 9 until 10 a. m. At the Chandler hotel a procession was formed and 200 men marched down Front street to the city jail where the two members of the I. W. W. had been confined. B. F. Jones, a merchant, carried an American flag at the head of the procession. The organization had been quietly planned and only those who took part knew what was to take place.

At the city jail the column halted and several men went inside, and brought out the two I. W. W. leaders with a man on each side. The two were lined up behind the flag bearer and marched to Market street and to the wharf.

While a gasoline boat was being landed there was a halt, during which time the two men were furnished with a bag of food procured from a restaurant and a package of tobacco. About 40 of the men in the parade went on board the boat with their prisoners, who were allowed to stand on the deck for a few moments. Edgeworth said that if such was the wish of the people it was all right with him. Before going on the boat he said he was not afraid of any man in the crowd.

As the boat was leaving the wharf the two men were ordered in the cabin, and R. A. Cople, proprietor of a dry goods store, led the singing of America. The boat was run to the lower bay and the (Continued on Page Two.)

TEN KILLED IN WRECK OF C. P. R. EXPRESS

(United Press Leased Wire.) Ottawa, Ont., June 25.—At least 10 persons were killed outright when the western express on the Canadian Pacific railroad, loaded with immigrants, was wrecked this afternoon three miles west of Ottawa. Four coaches plunged down a steep embankment into the Ottawa river. It is reported that 10 bodies already have been recovered and the total fatalities are feared to have been heavy. The accident was caused by spreading rails.

Railroad officials said the fatalities will not exceed 15, and that not more than 20 were injured. The 10 bodies recovered were all those of foreigners who occupied two colonist cars. The train carried passengers who arrived in this country on the Allen liner Pretorian, which left Glasgow June 15.
