

KINDLY BREEZES COOL VETERANS A GETTYSBURG

Cooler Weather Makes Reunion Safer Than Had Been Feared; 30,000 Already Are on the Grounds.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Gettysburg, Pa., June 30.—Thirty thousand veterans of the Civil War spent today living over again the terrible battle of 50 years ago, when General Meade and General Lee turned their legions southwards from the hills of Gettysburg.

The physicians attending the old soldiers were apprehensive, but the veterans all say it is not nearly so hot today as it was 50 years ago. General Bennett Young, commander-in-chief of the Confederate Veterans, was escorted today to headquarters by a detachment of blue and gray veterans. General Alfred Beers, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, is already on the ground.

Only two hours a day will be devoted to any set program, the physicians fearing the veterans might not be able to stand a longer strain. The first formal function will take place this afternoon when residents of Gettysburg will receive the survivors of General Joe Wheeler's cavalry and Buford's Union Cavalrymen.

Two veterans already have succumbed to the heat, and 50 others are prostrated. Everywhere on the famous battlefield little knots of blue and gray veterans excitedly fought over the battle. The formal program commemorating the anniversary of the battle will be started tomorrow when the reunion of regiments, brigades and army corps which participated in the battle will take place.

This afternoon the surviving nurses of the battle held a reunion in the home of Mrs. Salome Stewart, and numerous old soldiers called to pay tribute to the seven gray haired women. General Hunter Liggett of the United States army, commanding the camp, named General Simon Bolivar Buckner, ranking surviving officer of the Confederacy, as his chief aide.

Several special trains from the far west arrived today, one bearing the veterans of Washington state. Boy Scouts took care of their baggage, and automobiles and other vehicles carrying the visitors to the tented city on the battlefield. Many of the veterans from the west, however, declined to use the conveyances, preferring to walk. A cooling breeze swept the plain this afternoon and suffering from the heat was much less than had been feared.

At least 22 governors of states are expected to attend the reunion.

RUSHLIGHT DECLARES KELLAHER MAY STAY

Dan Kellaher can stay on the public docks commission as long as he likes—provided, of course, that it is agreeable to the new city commission. Anyway, Mayor Rushlight won't remove him before retiring from office.

"I asked Kellaher to resign and he didn't. If he wants to stay that badly, he can. I shall not remove him," said the mayor this morning. "If Kellaher has any intention of remaining, he has not made it known so far and there are mighty few hours left for him to do so. Evidently, it's a pretty safe assertion that 'Common User Dan' will be among those present on the docks commission after the new administration takes office. He was appointed by Mr. Rushlight a year ago.

Guaymas Reported Captured.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Douglas, Ariz., June 30.—Guaymas has fallen, according to the constitutionalist fight here. "Everything is in our hands," was the cryptic message received from Guaymas by way of Hermosillo. No confirmation of the report has been received.

Cave-in Drowns 3, Buries 4.

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Cleveland, Ohio, June 30.—Three laborers were drowned and four others buried beneath tons of debris in the cave-in of a sewer today. It is feared that the entombed men are dead.

Juggling Two Pairs of Glasses

is often to indicate old age. Our Kryptok Invisible Double Vision Lenses obviate the need for two pairs of glasses by combining all ranges of vision in one pair. And because the lens is ground from one piece there is nothing to distinguish Kryptoks from a single lens.

We have had the pleasure of fitting many of our patients with Kryptoks in Shur-on mountings. Possibly the logic of Kryptok lenses appeals to you. If it does, we wish you'd come in.

THOMPSON
OPTICAL INSTITUTE
Second Floor Corbett Bldg.
FIFTH AND MORRISON STS.

WESLEY HAS POWER OVER PICKERS

State Board of Control Has No Authority Over Convicts Who Go Into Other Counties to Work on Roads.

(Salem Bureau of The Journal.)
Salem, Or., June 30.—The state board of control can have no authority over convicts sent into other counties to work on the public highways. This authority rests entirely in the governor. According to an opinion rendered today by Attorney General Crawford, the governor has absolute control in such instances and may extend his "honor system" as far as he likes.

The attorney general laid down this rule for the direction of the board of control in regard to authority over the convicts since the enactment of the new board of control law. The board is given authority in all matters where the convicts remain under the immediate jurisdiction of the prison officials, but the governor has sole authority beyond. He held that the sending of convicts out to work "anywhere" came in a sense under the governor's pardoning power, which the legislature cannot restrict. He held that such acts were in a way a commutation of sentence.

This leaves the question as to whether the board or the governor has authority over the convicts when sent to other state institutions for employment, further interpretation, as the attorney general's opinion does not say whether in such cases the convicts remain under the immediate jurisdiction of prison officials or not.

The extent to which the "honor system" may be put into effect depends on this question, as the governor has stated that hereafter no convict would be employed at other state institutions or elsewhere away from the prison except under the honor system, without guards.

The last delay in the construction of the magnificent scenic highway along the Columbia river from Portland to Hood River was removed this morning, when the members of the county board of commissioners signed the contract between the county and the O. W. R. & N. company covering encroachments of the road on the company's right of way. A. C. Spencer, attorney of the company, signed the contract for his company and took it with him to secure the signatures of the proper company officials.

With this contract signed it is now possible to begin construction at once, and as the contract gives but three years in which to complete the road, construction will be rushed. Camps for the county prisoners who are to work on the road have already been established and Road Supervisor Chapman will collect tools and materials at once. The money for the road is already available. Multnomah county will build the portion from Portland to the eastern boundary of the county and Hood River county is already building its portion.

All of the commissioners were highly pleased to have the contract finally signed. Commissioner Holman said he was especially pleased to have a hand in the work of building the road, as in 1852 Benjamin Huntington, his maternal grandfather, with a party of immigrants, lost a large number of cattle and horses because it was impossible to drive them overland to the Willamette valley, as the trail was impassable. The cattle and horses were left at The Dalles and died from exposure to storm.

"I believe the road should receive a name which will be in keeping with its grandeur and will become known throughout the world," said Mr. Holman. "I would be glad to have suggestions from any interested enough to send them in."

SLAYER OF HER CHILD CANNOT EAT OR SLEEP

(United Press Leased Wire.)
Salt Lake City, Utah, June 30.—Mrs. Minnie Eckman, confessed slayer of her daughter, Frances, whose body was found concealed in a trunk in Ogden, has neither eaten or slept in the jail here since Saturday, when she was arrested. The woman cannot eat, has no appetite. She declares that after chloroforming her child last Thursday night she tried to die in the same way but failed. She probably will plead insanity.

AD CLUB STARTS AFTER UNLAWFUL ADVERTISERS

The first of a series of charges to be filed against proprietors of stores or agents of concerns was made today by the committee on advertising law and ethics of the Portland Ad club. In a complaint filed in municipal court the Famous Clothing company of 165 First street advertised $10 all-wool women's garments for $4.98, when such advertising was false, it is charged. The case will be heard in the municipal court.

The filing of the complaint today is the beginning of a fight undertaken by the Ad club to do away with all false, false and misleading advertising and to press the charges against those who violate the law in this respect.

FATHER, AS LAWYER, DEFENDING OWN SON

The spectacle of a father defending his own son who is under indictment for embezzlement occurred in the prosecution of Harold R. Butler today in the morning in Circuit Judge Kavanagh's court. H. Butler, now an attorney of Seattle but formerly a resident of this city, is the lawyer. He is assisted by Attorney H. Lindquist, of Seattle, and Attorney L. E. Reeder, of Portland. Young Butler is charged with having converted to his own use $275 belonging to Margaret B. Gamble, Mrs. Gamble, white-haired and beyond middle age, retained Attorney Fred Bondurant to assist Deputy District Attorneys Hammerley and Jones in the prosecution.

COMMISSIONERS GIVEN TO DIRECT PLAYS OF ROSE FESTIVAL

Non-Partisan Man Will Act as President; Architects Will Aid in Making Future Carnivals Attractive.

A commission of 12 prominent citizens presided over by a nonpartisan president of unquestioned integrity will direct the Rose Festival of the future, a recommendation from the executive committee of the civic and business organizations as formulated at a meeting in the Commercial club at noon today is adopted.

A feature of the meeting was the proffer of Edgar M. Lazarus, president of the Oregon chapter of the American Institute of Architects, of the unremunerated advisory services of a commission of five architects in the architectural and artistic features of the festival.

It was indicative of the new policy of the professions in Portland to be definitely helpful in public matters. It was agreed that the general meeting of the committee appointed by organizations to reorganize and establish the Rose Festival should be held, not next Thursday as previously announced, but a week from next Thursday, in order that invitations to organizations thus far unrepresented in the deliberations may have time for acceptance. Invitations will be sent to Harry McAllister, chairman of the committee.

Detail matters, such as the recommendation for the appointing of a manager to have charge of preparations, raising the festival to four days, financing the festival by tax, organizing the city to raise money if not secured through taxation, were ordered laid on the table for later consideration. C. V. Cooper presided today. The following organizations answered roll call: Rotary club, John T. Dougal; East Side Business Men's club, H. C. Caley; Portland Auto club, R. F. McComb; Press club, Wilbur E. Conant; Transportation club, E. W. Mosher; Realty Board, J. Fred Larson; Board of Governors, Commercial club, C. S. Jackson; Executive committee Commercial club, B. S. Josselyn; Elks, Dr. T. L. Perkins; Shrine, John Burgard; Moose, Charles Ackerson; Rose Festival association, R. W. Hoyt; Employers' association, C. A. Whittemore; Manufacturers' association, David M. Dunne; Greater Portland Planners association, Marshall N. Dana; Retail Grocers' association, A. A. Trempe; Retail Merchants' association, E. J. Jaeger; Hotel Men's association, L. Q. Swetland; Rose society, J. A. Curran; Royal Rosarians, O. C. Bortmeyer; I. club, M. G. Winstock; Progressive Business Men's club, W. F. Ross; Theatrical Manager association, George L. Baker; Portland Motor Boat club, C. V. Cooper; and the club, H. Atkinson; American Institute of Architecture, Edgar M. Lazarus.

The meeting today was conducted in an orderly manner, and half a dozen policemen were present to see that no rowdiness or violence was attempted. The police were called to the scene by factory officials, who declare that the 150 women now at work in the plant opposite the factory, and speakers regularly relieve each other in addressing the crowd, which today numbered probably 200. Most of them were men, members of the I. W. W., although a few of the girl strikers were present picketing the factory.

The meeting today was conducted in an orderly manner, and half a dozen policemen were present to see that no rowdiness or violence was attempted. The police were called to the scene by factory officials, who declare that the 150 women now at work in the plant opposite the factory, and speakers regularly relieve each other in addressing the crowd, which today numbered probably 200. Most of them were men, members of the I. W. W., although a few of the girl strikers were present picketing the factory.

In addition to the exhortations of the speakers, printed banners, advising the girls to keep on striking, are being carried around in the vicinity of the factory. Among the legends printed upon the banners are:

"Forty cents a day is what makes prostitutes. Girls demand a living wage."

"Don't be a scab. Strike! We will feed and take care of you."

"We'll not pick up a scab. Where is Governor West?"

The company operates its factory between five and six months every year during the berry season and cans fruits and vegetables. Generally from 150 to 200 women pickers are employed, dependent upon the supply of materials. The piece work system is followed—that is, every worker is paid a stated price for so much work and they are paid for what they do. The men work in the canning department, the office force and foreman are paid regular salaries.

The factory open at 7 o'clock in the morning and closes at 5:30 in the evening. The men work about 30 hours a week for lunch. Under the piece work system each picker can work as long or as short a time as she pleases.

Many Not Satisfied.

Careful inquiry shows that the majority of pickers are not depending solely on the factory for their livelihood. Among them however are a number of girls and old women who are absolutely dependent upon their toil for their support. In age the pickers range from girls 14 and 15 to old women 60 and over, many on account of their age can earn at best only a small wage during the berry season.

They are paid at present 15 cents for stemming and grading a box of cherries which averages about 37 pounds to box. Each cherry must first be stemmed then examined and placed in the proper receptacle set aside for the three grades. It is a slow process and the women declare it hinders them. The men work a quarter to two hours and a half to finish a box.

As the boxes are filled without weighing some of them contain more cherries than they should although it is said an effort is made to have the boxes average the same.

Friday morning when the cherry picking was started the factory was paying only 10 cents a box. After three hours work about 40 girls and women were earning between five and eight cents an hour and marched in a body toward the office. Meeting Superintendent L. M. McPherson the leaders are quoted as saying:

"We can't make anything at that price. We have got to have more money."

McPherson studied a moment and then declined to consider the proposition. Forthwith the girls took their hats and walked out.

Agitators Appear.

They told friends of theirs of the strike, and complaints were made to one of the local branches of the Socialist party. Immediately agitators were sent over to the plant, and to prevent meetings began. The agitators were joined later by I. W. W. speakers, who have for the most part been the authors of the inflammatory addresses made.

On Saturday night one of the Socialist speakers passed through the plant collected $100 which was turned over to a "strikers' committee" to assist the girls.

"The girls went out for a living wage," said one of the Socialist speakers addressing the crowd today. "Forty cents a day is hardly to be considered a wage. Many of these girls and women are self supporting, and such conditions make for white slavery. We demand an investigation of labor conditions right here in Portland, and let us not look to West Virginia, to give our sympathy and make inquiries."

Speeches similar in character marked the entire street meeting this forenoon. One of the girls on strike, who refused to give her name because she was afraid of blacklisting, said:

"During the strawberry season we got along all right and had no complaint to make. The factory paid us 1 cent a box for stemming the berries and any of us could make a dollar a day and a few, the fast pickers, made as high as $2 and $2.50."

"The factory is clean, and seats are provided for us while we work. The bosses all treated us respectfully. But we could not stand for the price they wanted us to work on cherries. They started us at 10 cents a box and the box was filled to overflowing. Some of them I am sure contained 40 pounds of cherries. It took anywhere from an hour and a half to two hours and a half to stem and grade them. At that rate we could not make over 80 cents a day working full 10 hours."

COMMISSIONERS GIVEN TO DIRECT PLAYS OF ROSE FESTIVAL

Non-Partisan Man Will Act as President; Architects Will Aid in Making Future Carnivals Attractive.

A commission of 12 prominent citizens presided over by a nonpartisan president of unquestioned integrity will direct the Rose Festival of the future, a recommendation from the executive committee of the civic and business organizations as formulated at a meeting in the Commercial club at noon today is adopted.

A feature of the meeting was the proffer of Edgar M. Lazarus, president of the Oregon chapter of the American Institute of Architects, of the unremunerated advisory services of a commission of five architects in the architectural and artistic features of the festival.

It was indicative of the new policy of the professions in Portland to be definitely helpful in public matters. It was agreed that the general meeting of the committee appointed by organizations to reorganize and establish the Rose Festival should be held, not next Thursday as previously announced, but a week from next Thursday, in order that invitations to organizations thus far unrepresented in the deliberations may have time for acceptance. Invitations will be sent to Harry McAllister, chairman of the committee.

Detail matters, such as the recommendation for the appointing of a manager to have charge of preparations, raising the festival to four days, financing the festival by tax, organizing the city to raise money if not secured through taxation, were ordered laid on the table for later consideration. C. V. Cooper presided today. The following organizations answered roll call: Rotary club, John T. Dougal; East Side Business Men's club, H. C. Caley; Portland Auto club, R. F. McComb; Press club, Wilbur E. Conant; Transportation club, E. W. Mosher; Realty Board, J. Fred Larson; Board of Governors, Commercial club, C. S. Jackson; Executive committee Commercial club, B. S. Josselyn; Elks, Dr. T. L. Perkins; Shrine, John Burgard; Moose, Charles Ackerson; Rose Festival association, R. W. Hoyt; Employers' association, C. A. Whittemore; Manufacturers' association, David M. Dunne; Greater Portland Planners association, Marshall N. Dana; Retail Grocers' association, A. A. Trempe; Retail Merchants' association, E. J. Jaeger; Hotel Men's association, L. Q. Swetland; Rose society, J. A. Curran; Royal Rosarians, O. C. Bortmeyer; I. club, M. G. Winstock; Progressive Business Men's club, W. F. Ross; Theatrical Manager association, George L. Baker; Portland Motor Boat club, C. V. Cooper; and the club, H. Atkinson; American Institute of Architecture, Edgar M. Lazarus.

The meeting today was conducted in an orderly manner, and half a dozen policemen were present to see that no rowdiness or violence was attempted. The police were called to the scene by factory officials, who declare that the 150 women now at work in the plant opposite the factory, and speakers regularly relieve each other in addressing the crowd, which today numbered probably 200. Most of them were men, members of the I. W. W., although a few of the girl strikers were present picketing the factory.

The meeting today was conducted in an orderly manner, and half a dozen policemen were present to see that no rowdiness or violence was attempted. The police were called to the scene by factory officials, who declare that the 150 women now at work in the plant opposite the factory, and speakers regularly relieve each other in addressing the crowd, which today numbered probably 200. Most of them were men, members of the I. W. W., although a few of the girl strikers were present picketing the factory.

In addition to the exhortations of the speakers, printed banners, advising the girls to keep on striking, are being carried around in the vicinity of the factory. Among the legends printed upon the banners are:

"Forty cents a day is what makes prostitutes. Girls demand a living wage."

"Don't be a scab. Strike! We will feed and take care of you."

"We'll not pick up a scab. Where is Governor West?"

The company operates its factory between five and six months every year during the berry season and cans fruits and vegetables. Generally from 150 to 200 women pickers are employed, dependent upon the supply of materials. The piece work system is followed—that is, every worker is paid a stated price for so much work and they are paid for what they do. The men work in the canning department, the office force and foreman are paid regular salaries.

The factory open at 7 o'clock in the morning and closes at 5:30 in the evening. The men work about 30 hours a week for lunch. Under the piece work system each picker can work as long or as short a time as she pleases.

Many Not Satisfied.

Careful inquiry shows that the majority of pickers are not depending solely on the factory for their livelihood. Among them however are a number of girls and old women who are absolutely dependent upon their toil for their support. In age the pickers range from girls 14 and 15 to old women 60 and over, many on account of their age can earn at best only a small wage during the berry season.

They are paid at present 15 cents for stemming and grading a box of cherries which averages about 37 pounds to box. Each cherry must first be stemmed then examined and placed in the proper receptacle set aside for the three grades. It is a slow process and the women declare it hinders them. The men work a quarter to two hours and a half to finish a box.

As the boxes are filled without weighing some of them contain more cherries than they should although it is said an effort is made to have the boxes average the same.

Friday morning when the cherry picking was started the factory was paying only 10 cents a box. After three hours work about 40 girls and women were earning between five and eight cents an hour and marched in a body toward the office. Meeting Superintendent L. M. McPherson the leaders are quoted as saying:

"We can't make anything at that price. We have got to have more money."

McPherson studied a moment and then declined to consider the proposition. Forthwith the girls took their hats and walked out.

Agitators Appear.

They told friends of theirs of the strike, and complaints were made to one of the local branches of the Socialist party. Immediately agitators were sent over to the plant, and to prevent meetings began. The agitators were joined later by I. W. W. speakers, who have for the most part been the authors of the inflammatory addresses made.

On Saturday night one of the Socialist speakers passed through the plant collected $100 which was turned over to a "strikers' committee" to assist the girls.

"The girls went out for a living wage," said one of the Socialist speakers addressing the crowd today. "Forty cents a day is hardly to be considered a wage. Many of these girls and women are self supporting, and such conditions make for white slavery. We demand an investigation of labor conditions right here in Portland, and let us not look to West Virginia, to give our sympathy and make inquiries."

Speeches similar in character marked the entire street meeting this forenoon. One of the girls on strike, who refused to give her name because she was afraid of blacklisting, said:

"During the strawberry season we got along all right and had no complaint to make. The factory paid us 1 cent a box for stemming the berries and any of us could make a dollar a day and a few, the fast pickers, made as high as $2 and $2.50."

"The factory is clean, and seats are provided for us while we work. The bosses all treated us respectfully. But we could not stand for the price they wanted us to work on cherries. They started us at 10 cents a box and the box was filled to overflowing. Some of them I am sure contained 40 pounds of cherries. It took anywhere from an hour and a half to two hours and a half to stem and grade them. At that rate we could not make over 80 cents a day working full 10 hours."

"When we asked for more money the superintendent refused to give it. We struck them. There was nothing else to do. Many of the pickers are married women who come down to make some side money. Lots of them have to help support families and a few depend upon their jobs entirely for their support. Just after we quit, the official raised the scale to 15 cents a box. They had to or practically every one of the girls would have walked out."

COMMISSIONERS GIVEN TO DIRECT PLAYS OF ROSE FESTIVAL

Non-Partisan Man Will Act as President; Architects Will Aid in Making Future Carnivals Attractive.

A commission of 12 prominent citizens presided over by a nonpartisan president of unquestioned integrity will direct the Rose Festival of the future, a recommendation from the executive committee of the civic and business organizations as formulated at a meeting in the Commercial club at noon today is adopted.

A feature of the meeting was the proffer of Edgar M. Lazarus, president of the Oregon chapter of the American Institute of Architects, of the unremunerated advisory services of a commission of five architects in the architectural and artistic features of the festival.

It was indicative of the new policy of the professions in Portland to be definitely helpful in public matters. It was agreed that the general meeting of the committee appointed by organizations to reorganize and establish the Rose Festival should be held, not next Thursday as previously announced, but a week from next Thursday, in order that invitations to organizations thus far unrepresented in the deliberations may have time for acceptance. Invitations will be sent to Harry McAllister, chairman of the committee.

Detail matters, such as the recommendation for the appointing of a manager to have charge of preparations, raising the festival to four days, financing the festival by tax, organizing the city to raise money if not secured through taxation, were ordered laid on the table for later consideration. C. V. Cooper presided today. The following organizations answered roll call: Rotary club, John T. Dougal; East Side Business Men's club, H. C. Caley; Portland Auto club, R. F. McComb; Press club, Wilbur E. Conant; Transportation club, E. W. Mosher; Realty Board, J. Fred Larson; Board of Governors, Commercial club, C. S. Jackson; Executive committee Commercial club, B. S. Josselyn; Elks, Dr. T. L. Perkins; Shrine, John Burgard; Moose, Charles Ackerson; Rose Festival association, R. W. Hoyt; Employers' association, C. A. Whittemore; Manufacturers' association, David M. Dunne; Greater Portland Planners association, Marshall N. Dana; Retail Grocers' association, A. A. Trempe; Retail Merchants' association, E. J. Jaeger; Hotel Men's association, L. Q. Swetland; Rose society, J. A. Curran; Royal Rosarians, O. C. Bortmeyer; I. club, M. G. Winstock; Progressive Business Men's club, W. F. Ross; Theatrical Manager association, George L. Baker; Portland Motor Boat club, C. V. Cooper; and the club, H. Atkinson; American Institute of Architecture, Edgar M. Lazarus.

The meeting today was conducted in an orderly manner, and half a dozen policemen were present to see that no rowdiness or violence was attempted. The police were called to the scene by factory officials, who declare that the 150 women now at work in the plant opposite the factory, and speakers regularly relieve each other in addressing the crowd, which today numbered probably 200. Most of them were men, members of the I. W. W., although a few of the girl strikers were present picketing the factory.

The meeting today was conducted in an orderly manner, and half a dozen policemen were present to see that no rowdiness or violence was attempted. The police were called to the scene by factory officials, who declare that the 150 women now at work in the plant opposite the factory, and speakers regularly relieve each other in addressing the crowd, which today numbered probably 200. Most of them were men, members of the I. W. W., although a few of the girl strikers were present picketing the factory.

In addition to the exhortations of the speakers, printed banners, advising the girls to keep on striking, are being carried around in the vicinity of the factory. Among the legends printed upon the banners are:

"Forty cents a day is what makes prostitutes. Girls demand a living wage."

"Don't be a scab. Strike! We will feed and take care of you."

"We'll not pick up a scab. Where is Governor West?"

The company operates its factory between five and six months every year during the berry season and cans fruits and vegetables. Generally from 150 to 200 women pickers are employed, dependent upon the supply of materials. The piece work system is followed—that is, every worker is paid a stated price for so much work and they are paid for what they do. The men work in the canning department, the office force and foreman are paid regular salaries.

The factory open at 7 o'clock in the morning and closes at 5:30 in the evening. The men work about 30 hours a week for lunch. Under the piece work system each picker can work as long or as short a time as she pleases.

Many Not Satisfied.

Careful inquiry shows that the majority of pickers are not depending solely on the factory for their livelihood. Among them however are a number of girls and old women who are absolutely dependent upon their toil for their support. In age the pickers range from girls 14 and 15 to old women 60 and over, many on account of their age can earn at best only a small wage during the berry season.

They are paid at present 15 cents for stemming and grading a box of cherries which averages about 37 pounds to box. Each cherry must first be stemmed then examined and placed in the proper receptacle set aside for the three grades. It is a slow process and the women declare it hinders them. The men work a quarter to two hours and a half to finish a box.

As the boxes are filled without weighing some of them contain more cherries than they should although it is said an effort is made to have the boxes average the same.

Friday morning when the cherry picking was started the factory was paying only 10 cents a box. After three hours work about 40 girls and women were earning between five and eight cents an hour and marched in a body toward the office. Meeting Superintendent L. M. McPherson the leaders are quoted as saying:

"We can't make anything at that price. We have got to have more money."

McPherson studied a moment and then declined to consider the proposition. Forthwith the girls took their hats and walked out.

Agitators Appear.

They told friends of theirs of the strike, and complaints were made to one of the local branches of the Socialist party. Immediately agitators were sent over to the plant, and to prevent meetings began. The agitators were joined later by I. W. W. speakers, who have for the most part been the authors of the inflammatory addresses made.

On Saturday night one of the Socialist speakers passed through the plant collected $100 which was turned over to a "strikers' committee" to assist the girls.

"The girls went out for a living wage," said one of the Socialist speakers addressing the crowd today. "Forty cents a day is hardly to be considered a wage. Many of these girls and women are self supporting, and such conditions make for white slavery. We demand an investigation of labor conditions right here in Portland, and let us not look to West Virginia, to give our sympathy and make inquiries."

Speeches similar in character marked the entire street meeting this forenoon. One of the girls on strike, who refused to give her name because she was afraid of blacklisting, said:

"During the strawberry season we got along all right and had no complaint to make. The factory paid us 1 cent a box for stemming the berries and any of us could make a dollar a day and a few, the fast pickers, made as high as $2 and $2.50."

"The factory is clean, and seats are provided for us while we work. The bosses all treated us respectfully. But we could not stand for the price they wanted us to work on cherries. They started us at 10 cents a box and the box was filled to overflowing. Some of them I am sure contained 40 pounds of cherries. It took anywhere from an hour and a half to two hours and a half to stem and grade them. At that rate we could not make over 80 cents a day working full 10 hours."

"When we asked for more money the superintendent refused to give it. We struck them. There was nothing else to do. Many of the pickers are married women who come down to make some side money. Lots of them have to help support families and a few depend upon their jobs entirely for their support. Just after we quit, the official raised the scale to 15 cents a box. They had to or practically every one of the girls would have walked out."

PRESIDENT TO BE RESPONSIBLE FOR CURRENCY BOARD

It Will Not Be a Bi-Partisan Body, Nor Will Members Be Appointed for Life, Says Wilson.

Washington June 30.—President Wilson today said he was determined to be entirely responsible for the makeup of the proposed currency board. He will not make the board a bi-partisan body. He thinks the currency measure should be a political question and will back the bill as it stands framed now, as was also made plain that he does not favor appointment for life for members of the board.

The president considers the Caminit-Diggs white slave incident is closed, believing that he did his full duty