

Social and Personal

"A"ND what is so rare as a day in June? It is enough said. The rare days will come later and the society columns will be a little fuller for a few days of rain at this season of the year. There is no incentive for the summer exodus. Incidentally, it is just as well, for the phrase is overworked. What with nothing but "winter exodus," "holiday exodus," "Lenten exodus," "Easter exodus," and "summer exodus" all over and over again, as the seasons roll around, it is just as well that it rains and they stay in town and make merry.

Mrs. Shaw Guest of Honor.

Mrs. Louis Fulton Shaw complimented her mother-in-law, Mrs. Willis Ross Shaw, of St. Paul, who is her house guest for a month or six weeks, with an elaborate appointed bridge Friday afternoon at her home in Irvington.

There were 12 tables at cards, the highest honors going to Mrs. J. C. Costello and Mrs. Harry Thompson. The consolation prize went to Mrs. Southard Cutting.

Yellow and pink made an unusually effective color scheme and was carried out in the minutest details of score cards and table covers. The yellow daisies and pink roses were arranged about the rooms.

Mrs. Louis Fulton Shaw was charmingly attired in a white lace robe fashioned over pink chamois.

Mrs. Willis Ross Shaw was beautifully gowned in tulle embroidered with lace and coral trimmings.

Assisting the hostess were Miss Laura Korrell, Miss Ida Shaw, Miss Gladys Gilles, Miss Charlotte Chaloupka, and during the refreshment hour Miss Mabel Stone and Miss Bernice Rodgers sang a number of delightful songs.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Liddle will leave Portland July 7 for a six weeks' journey through the eastern states, stopping at Chicago, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Washington, D. C., Philadelphia and New York. Mr. Liddle goes to Chattanooga, Tenn., as representative of the Oregon Electrical Contractors' association, of which he is president, and will attend the convention of that body of the National Electrical Contractors' association in annual session at Chattanooga on July 15 to 18. The national body represents the entire electrical contracting interests of the United States, and it is the intention of the western delegates to bring the convention to come to the Pacific coast in 1915. The convention was held last year at Denver, Colo.

M. Wachsmuth, the first man to transplant eastern oysters in Willapa harbor, visited his son, Louis Wachsmuth, the well known local oyster man. The elder Wachsmuth now resides in Oysterville. He has been retired from active business for a number of years. Despite the fact that he is 71 years old, he is hale and hearty. Mr. Wachsmuth came to the Pacific coast on a sailing vessel when a small boy. He was wrecked at Newport, Or. He remained in this section and afterwards engaged in shipping native oysters from Newport to San Francisco. Subsequently he helped form a company at Oysterville and engaged in oyster trade with the California city for many years.

CHRIST CALLED MODEL CITIZEN

Citizens Are Product of Law-makers and Rulers, Says Rev. J. H. Bennett.

Rev. James Hardy Bennett, pastor of the Union Avenue church, last night discussed Christian citizenship, giving a comprehensive view of the average citizen of the day. He held primarily that as are the lawmakers and rulers so are the citizens. For text, he quoted from Paul, "Now therefore ye are no longer strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints and the household of God."

"The city of Ephesus was cosmopolitan," he said. "Strangers and foreigners from every nation under heaven were common and numerous. They were not readily received and made citizens by the Ephesians. But they were freely received into the Christian church and given all the privileges of the kingdom of God. Hence the aptness of Paul's statement in the text.

"Kingdom of God; the model of civil government." As is clearly taught in this and other scriptures, the highest and only perfect model of a government is that exhibited in the kingdom of God. The object of God's government is to produce a citizenship worthy to dwell as subjects of the divine commonwealth.

"The purpose, then, of civil government is to produce good citizens. When our citizenship is right, the end of government will have been met.

"God is Model."

"The character and efficiency of the rulers is the first essential element in the production of good citizens. No government will ever produce a citizenship of higher worth than the average character of its rulers and lawmakers. God is the model for those who bear rule. We must ever keep in view that larger conception of God which regards him, not only as the God of the church and of heaven hereafter, but as the God whose eye is over all nations, and whose power is at their disposal if they are right and set for their downfall if they are wrong. When all of our rulers and office seekers shall come to look upon positions in civil government as trusts from God to be fulfilled according to his command, and for which they must be accountable to him, our citizenship will rapidly rank with those who are of the household of God.

"Law is the second principle affecting citizenship. Law ought to be equitable just and fair, and all that is right, defining and enforcing the right.

"Where Laws are Defective." "The government has no right to make laws which are contrary to the laws of God. The legalizing of such a business as the liquor traffic, for example, is manifestly wrong. It is from every viewpoint a violation of the law of God, which is over all nations. The central, and greatest weakness of our government today is the fact that our laws foster and protect many things for which there is no warrant, but condemnation in the law of God. If our citizenship is ever to be freed from oppression, wrong, and crime, vice, and brought up to a standard of peace, plenty and happiness we must see to it that the law of God is taught in our schools and made the model in our legislatures.

There must be first pure, unstinted loyalty, a proper recognition of the authority. This is scriptural, for the powers that be are ordained of God and if they are, they deserve and merit support.

Devotion to the Commonwealth.

"The real patriot is devoted to the commonwealth, its preservation and expansion, its honor and peace. Tennyson well expressed this in his 'Ode to the Duke of Wellington,' when he said: 'Yea, let all good things await 'Till who cares not to be great, 'But as he saves or serves the state.'"

"The man Christ Jesus is the model citizen. All may reach his standard of manhood, if the principles expressed in the law of God are followed. If men will be men, as Jesus was a man, and 'live by law acting the law they live by,' our citizenship here will be right and we will obtain citizenship with the saints and in the household of God.

"What know we greater than the soul? 'On God, and God-like men we build our trust.'"

LIGHT LUNCHEONS

By Oscar Tschirky.

Cornmeal Crackers.—Put one pound of cornmeal into a basin and work in two tablespoonsful of warmed fat or butter, then mix in half a pound of sugar and pour in gradually half a breakfast cupful of milk and add enough wheat flour to form a stiff dough. After kneading well, allow to stand for two or three hours in a warm place. Take up small pieces of the dough about the size of walnut, shape them like shells, brown them in boiling fat and serve on a dish with a folded napkin.

Dutch Currant Bread.—Beat two eggs with half a teaspoonful of salt till they are very light, add a pound of flour and the very slowly, a third of a cup of milk, making a light batter. Add now three quarters of a pound of currants, four ounces of chopped lemon pulp, half a cup of butter, melted, and a cake of yeast dissolved in a little water. Let it raise one hour, then bake in a bread tin, buttered and slightly sprinkled with flour, one hour in a moderate oven.

Egg Biscuits.—Sift two cups of flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt and a table-

DEAL WITH MEN AS INDIVIDUALS

This is Modern Tendency, Declares Rev. Mr. Thomas of Woodlawn Church.

At the Woodlawn M. E. church yesterday, the pastor, Rev. Louis Thomas preached a helpful sermon on "Individuality in Religion." He said in part: "Nicodemus became so selfish that he was in seeking a private interview with Jesus. The present tendency is to deal with men as individuals. Wise parents know they must study the individuality of each child in the family. The successful teacher while instructing the whole class remembers the peculiar needs of each member of the class. The true physician carefully studies his patient and adapts his treatment to the case."

"The modern spirit demands that in the administration of justice, the law be interpreted to suit the merits of each case. This was the method of Jesus, who while he laid down great general principles in his sermons to the multitudes, also made ample provision for individuality.

"Nicodemus was 'so' mistaken in his views that he needed a reconstruction of his life. The rich young man had unconsciously become so selfish that the master prescribed the practice of charity and the discipline of poverty. The humble, penitent, sinful woman is given sympathy and encouragement. The trouble with the Pharisees lies deep and Jesus probes to the heart. One is served by faith, another by hope, another by developing the ethical nature."

"The modern church can teach the broad principles of life from the pulpit, but in the final analysis men must be dealt with as individuals. Some need new environment, some work, some rest. One needs the deep brood, another inspiration and sympathy. Many need ethical training; all need the quickening of the natural desire after God and righteousness. Happy is that pastor who is sought out by the modern Nicodemus in a quiet hour they may deal with the individual need of the soul."

YOU gain a double advantage by doing your buying at this store. First, the advantage of lower prices with a larger, better assortment of goods to select from. Second, the valuable advantage of "S. & H." Green Trading Stamps. There is nothing miraculous in the fact that we can give BOTH lower prices and "S. & H." Stamps. The explanation is clear and simple: Giving the stamps attracts a very large number of purchasers and materially increases our volume of sales. Larger sales gives us greater purchasing power. Larger purchasing power, as all understand, enables us to buy cheaper. As we buy cheaper, we sell cheaper. Thus the "S. & H." Stamp, in a sense, pays for itself in the volume of trade it brings us. The immensity of the volume of this business you can judge by the fact that more "S. & H." Green Trading Stamps are distributed in ONE DAY than all other trading stamps together in the ENTIRE YEAR. SYMBOLIC of opportunities offered to the masses of Portland, there stands at the corner of Washington and Tenth this sign! While it is one of the finest electric signs in the West, yet the store and the service that it represents make it even more prominent.

Built upon the principle that the extension of credit, upon a business basis, should extend down to the final consumer, there has grown an immense merchandising organization that reaches from Mexico to Canada. It took thought and keen insight into economic conditions to work out a plan such as that of the Eastern Outfitting Company.

We want to show you that we conduct our credit department upon the same sound basis as does every bank or manufacturer. We want to convince you that it is a service you deserve, not only from us, but from every other retailer. In this service we are first.

Come in and ask us about this service. Better still, come in and open an account tomorrow.
