YOUTH CHARGED WITH ROBBING PEANUT WAGON

When taken into custody, Clark had a .22-caliber revolver and a burglar's flash light. The peanut wagon belongs to G. M. Beeler. The wagon had been left in a vacant lot at First and Montgomery streets. Patrolman Nye saw Clark in the wagon at 2 o'clock. Dr. Wells' visit in this city concludes a trip through the east and in Europe, where he visited the hospitals to secure new ideas. He said that he had found none in any part of the world that excel those of Portland. They are up to date in every respect, he says. In fact, he was amazed at their degree of perfection.

Dr. Wells was highly pleased with the World's Christian Citizenship conference and declared that the benefit Portland has derived from the addresses that were made there was more than compensation for the outlay of money required to bring the conference here regardless of what it cost.

During his visit, Dr. Wells and his family have been the recipients of numerous receptions and other social functions.
