IN EARLIER DAYS

By Fred Lockley.

"My brother, Sidney H. Marsh, came to Forest Grove in 1852," said Professor J. V. Marsh, as we sat in his library at Forest Grove. "He was the president of Pacific university for many years. In 1867 I came to accept the chair of Latin and Greek. I found when I got here that my chair was a useless one. There was room on it not only for Latin and Greek, but also for mathematics and English and numerous other branches."

"I was born in Vermont in 1836 and I have put in more than 50 years as a teacher. After 40 years of teaching here at Pacific university I retired and my associates and former students gave me a beautiful Bible. It is called the 'Bishop's Bible' and was printed in 1608. It cost several hundred dollars, and while I greatly appreciate it, I appreciate even more these three vellum sheets on which the names of the donors appear with their corial message of good will."

"I receive a pension of $1000 a year from the Carnegie fund for retired teachers. My monthly check of $83.33 comes in very handy."

"I know all the old-timers, among them Elkanah Walker and his wife, early missionaries with Dr. Whitman, and Rev. J. S. Griffin, another early missionary."

I visited the home of the late Alvin Brown, who founded Pacific university at Forest Grove. Mrs. Brown was born in 1780 in Massachusetts, married a minister, who, after a few years, left her a widow with two baby boys. She had no money, so as soon as possible after her husband's death she secured a position as school teacher. In 1837 she moved west, settling in Missouri.

Orus Brown, her son, came to Oregon in 1843. In 1845 he returned for his mother. They started in the spring of 1846. Few emigrant parties endured more hardships than did this party. Mrs. Brown was 66 years old, but stood the trip better than the others. A sample page from her journal gives an idea of the hardships required of the pioneer women:

"The Indians killed and robbed Mr. Newton, but did not kill his wife. We traveled for a few days and came to the foot of the Calapoos mountains. The children were near starving. Mr. Pringle tried to shoot a wolf, but he was too weak and trembling to hold his rifle steady. They all cried because they had nothing to eat. Our scanty provisions were all gone. Many tears were shed by all of the party save one. Through all my sufferings in crossing the plains I have not once sought relief by shedding tears, nor thought we should not live to reach the settlements. On Christmas day at 3 p. m. I entered the house of a Methodist minister the first house we had set foot in for some months. We settled at Salem. Every cent of my cash capital was a Spanish 6 1/2 cent piece. I bought three needles with it, traded some of my clothes to a squaw for buckskin made gloves and sold the gloves for $20."

Mrs. Brown went to Tualatin Plains to stay with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Clark. In March, 1848, she started a school in a log schoolhouse. Children were sent to the school from all over the valley, so Mrs. Brown boarded them. Of this time her journal says:

"I now had 30 boarders of both sexes and ages from 4 years old to 21. I managed them and did all the work except the washing. That was done by the scholars. In the spring of 1849 we asked for trustees. Eight were appointed. In 1851 I had 40 in my family and mixed with my own hands 3423 pounds of flour in less than five months. Mr. Clark gave the trustees a quarter section of land. Our town has been incorporated two years and at the last session of the legislature a charter was granted for a university to be called 'Pacific university.' The president and professor are already here from Vermont. The teacher and his lady for the academy are here from New York. I have labored for myself and the rising generation. I have not quit hard work. I own a nicely furnished white frame house that I rent out at $100 a year. I have eight town lots worth $150 each. I have eight cows and a number of young cattle. The cows I rent out for their milk and half their increase. I have rising of $1000 cash due me; $400 of it I have donated to the university, besides $100 I gave to the academy. This much I have been able to accumulate by my own industry, independent of my children, since I drew 6 1/2 cents from the finger of my glove."

MISS EDNA BAXTER IS FOUND IN RIVER

Eugene Girl, Sister of U. of O. Instructor, May Have Died by Accident.

(Special to The Journal.)

Eugene, Or., July 10.—The body of Miss Edna Baxter, who mysteriously disappeared from home Tuesday evening, was found at 10 o'clock this morning at the bottom of a deep hole in the Willamette river by Sheriff Parker and a number of other men, who had been searching all night and all morning in the supposition that she had either fallen or jumped purposely into the river. Miss Baxter was the daughter of S. R. Baxter, and was aged 23 years. She was afflicted with palsy, and on account of her condition and the serious illness of her father, she brooded a great deal, and it is possible she took this means of ending her sufferings.

After she was missed Wednesday evening her hat was found in the mill race near where her body was found. It is believed it fell into the water as she crossed the dam separating the race from the river, and that she immediately walked down the path leading to the water's edge and plunged in; or it may be that, on account of difficulty in walking, she stumbled and fell in. Notwithstanding her almost lifelong affliction and peculiar appearance, she was very bright; but her trouble and her father's condition seemed to have affected her mind to some extent. She was a sister of Mrs. C. W. Converse, with whom she and her father resided. Mrs. Converse's husband is an instructor in the University of Oregon.

According to a French scientist, potassium must be added to the list of radioactive substances.
