

Social and Personal

BEAKING of motor trips and outings in general brings to mind an unexpected little story that was told by a young man, Johnny, who is an office boy at one of the large drug stores in the city.

He was hastening with an invalid's chair across the new Broadway bridge in answer to a hurry-up order at the store during the hot weather last week. An invalid had the doctor's permission for an outing and was querulously awaiting the arrival of the chair. Johnny had been told to get there immediately if not sooner.

The sun's rays were hot, with a capital "H," and Johnny found it a hard pull up the long western approach of the bridge. The top reached, Johnny rested, seated himself for want of a better place in the offending chair and tanned his blistered and tortured face with his hat.

Then came the ingenious thought, like all brilliant thoughts, when his spirits were lowest—"Ride" whispered the inner voice. "Why should you walk?" With eager hand he pulled the lever hard at the peddle and off he went; to be sure it was slow moving and hard work, but nevertheless he moved. A little further down the bridge he paused for breath.

A fine old man had just reached the top of the incline in time to see the noble efforts of the supposed invalid. His heart went out to this young man so bright and full of hope, he thought. A pity to see one so young in that state of helplessness. With a big hearted impulse he took a few long strides and reached the invalid, just about the time our hero was deciding to get out and push it again. "Young man," he said with a benevolent smile, "let me give you a little help across the bridge. We seem to be going the same way; he added by way of excuse for his intrusion. Invalids are always sensitive, he thought.

Johnny didn't fall out of the chair, but Johnny, with a pucker and even pitiful little smile he said, "O, thank you, sir; you are so good," and Johnny sat back and shut his eyes in peace.

They made fair time over the bridge and part way up East Broadway when Johnny saw his number coming on the next house.

"I will stop here," said Johnny, thankful like, to the kind man, "and I can't thank you enough."

Not at all, said the man, bearing with him the Christian charity. "It was a great pleasure."

Hot as the day was and hard as the pull had been the man continued to smile in happy self-satisfaction all the way home—and so did Johnny!

Complimenting Mrs. Hayman and Miss Florence Kohn.

Mrs. S. Hayman of New York, who is spending the summer here with Mrs. S. Lipman and Miss Florence Kohn, a regular bride to be, were the guests at a luncheon Saturday given by Mrs. Leon Hirsch and Mrs. Ludwig Hirsch at the Meier & Frank tea room.

In point of originality and beauty, the luncheon was one of the most delightful affairs of the kind which has been given this season.

A long table seated the 19 guests. A scheme suggesting rural scenes was carried out in the table decoration, depicting first, a summer lake resort, with a row of cottages, a row of trees, a morning plunge from a good sized rock which, with little stones, outlined the bank of the lake. Nasturtiums seemed to grow up from about the banks and trailed about the table and into the water.

The beach scene was no less real effective. Sand piles for the baby dolls to play in, a tiny sand fort under progress of construction by two enterprising looking doll boys, a row of screening a pair of sweethearts, and all the little sights to be seen by the sea and sea waves were cleverly arranged in miniature form.

The country scene was represented by a doll farm house, with a row of the door steps, cattle and horses behind pasture bars, pigs, chickens, ducks, and all sorts of farm stock, even to the miniature trees and flowers in little old fashioned flower pots. A busy road, strewn with pebbles, led to the door steps, and a tiny automobile was "honking" its way home. At another side of the house a vegetable cart was ready for market. Quantities of water lilies, nasturtiums and moss outlined the length of the table.

Those who circled the board were Mrs. Hayman, Miss Kohn, Miss Mary Louise Feidenheimer, Miss Mae Hirsch, Miss

JUVENILE MARKET DOES HEAVY BUSINESS AGAIN

Demand Great for Vegetables Grown by Youngsters; Pies and Cakes Also.

With two stalls loaded down with vegetables, jellies, candies, cakes and notions the Juvenile Public Market opened for business bright and early this morning in the Yamhill Public Market, First and Yamhill. They had conducted the market at Stark and First street up to Saturday night.

The youngsters, who are working under the direction of Mrs. E. M. Douglas, secured the stalls rent free from attorney J. A. Strowbridge, who, believing that he could help the youngsters along, gave them permission to use the stalls until January 1 without cost provided they keep the counters well stocked.

This morning half a dozen children were clerking behind the vegetable counter learning the rudiments of salesmanship. A booming business marked their efforts today and Mrs. Douglas says that supplies will continue to come in for several months yet.

All produce sold has been raised by children who soon will organize the Juvenile Market and elect officers.

For the purpose of keeping the market going through the summer, a number of school boys and girls have begun planting late vegetables such as tomatoes, peas and cabbage.

On the counters this morning were all manner of produce ranging from lettuce, carrots and cucumbers to cabbage, cherries and pie plant.

In a second stall, jellies, cakes, pies and articles of needlecraft, all made by children, are on display.

ABSENCE OF MEMBERS PREVENTS MEETINGS

New Roads and Highways Committee Will Hold No Sessions at Present.

The roads and highways committee, one of the three committees recently appointed by the county commission as advisers, did not meet this afternoon as scheduled, because three of the five committeemen were out of the city.

The committee consists of W. W. Cotton, G. S. Jackson, S. Benson, W. B. Fechenheimer and Samuel Hill.

As soon as a quorum is present the first meeting of the committee will be called, organization will be effected, a chairman elected and it will take up its duties of studying road and expenditure methods.

A quorum of the advisory budget committee met yesterday for the first time and elected Joseph N. Teal as chairman. The committee took the first steps toward the formation of next year's budget by requesting the commissioners to have all heads of departments submit estimates of departmental expenses for 1914. The members of the committee are Joseph N. Teal, C. C. Colt, Carl S. Kelly and Henry Reed. H. L. Pitcock had been selected as a member but he said he could not attend.

The health advisory committee has held one meeting and Dr. L. H. Hamilton was elected chairman. Other members of the committee are Drs. A. C. Smith, K. A. J. McKensie, H. C. Jeffords and A. J. Gray.

LAUNDRY MAN COMPLAINS COMPETITION IS UNFAIR

H. A. Edick, laundryman, at 672 Junior avenue, today made a complaint to the police that other laundrymen in his part of the city are trying to force him into a combination with them to regulate prices. After continued refusal to join the other laundrymen, Edick complains they have placed solicitors in the field to discourage his customers.

It is charged that paid agents are going from house to house seeking to discourage patrons from using the Edick wet wash laundry. In this way it is planned to so cripple his shop that the proprietor will join the combination.

PALMER LUMBER MILL FIRE LOSS IS $420,000

Insurance Policies Cover Big Percentage of This; Dry Kilns to Go In.

(Special to The Journal.)

La Grande, Or., July 30.—Construction of a dry kiln to handle much of the lumber output, thereby reducing the quantity of lumber that hereafter will be required to be stored in open yards, will be commenced immediately by the George Palmer Lumber company, which Sunday night lost $500,000 feet of dry lumber by fire. Orders were placed yesterday for a dry kiln plant and construction of the plant began today. It will have a four-room equipment and will process lumber for shipment or retail use with great dispatch.

The insurance men will spend several days adjusting losses caused by the fire and last night the company officials prepared official estimates of the loss. The fire consumed $500,000 feet of lumber, according to checks made by the company, which is valued at $375,000. The loss to the yards, tracks and rails amounts to $45,000, bringing the total loss from the fire to $420,000. This is largely covered by insurance. Orders were placed today by wire for a shipment of two cars of steel and supplies needed in the yard service.

The sawmill was closed down for annual repairs at the time of the fire and

PORTLAND HAS THEM BEATEN, HE ASSERTS

Deputy United States Marshal William McSwain, after taking a look at Coney Island, a peep at Boston, a glimpse at Kansas City and a flash at Denver, returned to his desk this morning absolutely certain that the northwest is a desirable place to live. He had gone to Portland, Maine, with a federal prisoner charged with concealing the assets of a bankrupt, and, of course, he never having seen New York, made a triumphant entry into the nation's eastern metropolis.

"They can have their city if they want it," said the wanderer. "The people there remind me of the pig who was boss of his sty. When he got out feeling he owned the whole earth, he soon scuttled back in disgust. That's the New Yorker, and that's why the Gothamites see the sun rise over the Williamsburg bridge and set over in Hoboken."

Mr. McSwain missed all the hot weather in the east, traveling just a day ahead of the weather on both trips.

Are You Missing Pleasures?

What do you know about the surrounding country near Portland? Have you driven an automobile to Mt. Hood, or any of the many places of interest located near this beautiful city? The only way to take your family to these places is by automobile, and if you don't happen to own one at the present time, turn over to the classified department of this paper and find the "Automobile" column, and surely among the many bargains there you can select one that you can afford to own. Henry B. Dewey, former superintendent of schools at Tacoma, is a guest at the Multnomah. Professor Dewey is here in the interest of a publishing house, to attend the meeting of the school board, which will meet tomorrow to decide on the school books to be used next year. "While I live in Tacoma, I believe that Portland is the handiest place for me to call headquarters, so I am always at home here," he said.

"With the courts sustaining the bond issue at Grants Pass for the road between our city and Illinois valley, the work of building that road will be pushed at once," declared E. D. Van Dyke, a business man of Grants Pass, who is at the Imperial. "This road, as far as Illinois valley, is the first unit of what will ultimately be a line to Crescent City. This road will tap some of the finest farm and orchard lands in the west and will open up a copper district that has been declared by experts to be equal if not superior to the great copper mines of Montana."

A drill team of 13 women under the direction of Mrs. C. J. Hinds of San Jose, who represents the Women of Woodcraft, arrived this morning in Portland and has taken apartments at the Imperial. The team is here to attend the convention of the Women of Woodcraft which will be held here.

Charles S. Sargent, Bayard Thayer and Charles E. Stratton are members of a party of Boston business men who are at the Multnomah. The men are taking a leisure jaunt throughout the west looking over business prospects.

Hood River apple growers are predicting an unusually prosperous year, according to Oscar Vanderbilt, director of the Apple Growers' association of Hood River, who is visiting in Portland today.

"We are arranging to make an attractive display at the National Shippers' convention to be held at Cleveland, Representative growers left yesterday en route to the east to attend the convention and study market conditions in general," said Mr. Vanderbilt. "Wilmer Sieg, sales manager of the North Pacific Fruit Distributors, and J. W. Davidson, president, will attend the meeting of the distributors at Spokane today. At Spokane they will be
