

SIGNATURES ALLEGED INVALID ATTACHED TO REFERENDUM PAPER

Evidence Tending to Show Padding in Workingmen's Compensation Case Given.

Circuit Judge Galloway of Salem yesterday took up the hearing of the suit to nullify a referendum on the workmen's compensation law and to enjoin Secretary of State Olcott from placing the referendum on the ballot at a special election next fall.

The suit was brought in the Marion county court, but the hearing was held here because the evidence could be submitted more easily in this city than in Salem.

Charges in Complaint. Among the charges made in the complaint are that 481 signers were not registered, that 300 signers knowingly signed petitions twice, that 200 signatures are illegal because illegible, that 393 are omitted entirely from verification or are incorrectly given in the verification, that 200 or more Portland addresses are fictitious and approximately 300 more are no addresses at all, that 87 gave no addresses, that 154 gave only street intersections, that 126 gave names of towns in Oregon as addresses which were not names of postoffices or incorporated municipalities, and that many more names were invalid for other causes.

Errors Declared Technical. Farrell in his answer sets up that the alleged errors are merely technical and clerical. Secretary of State Olcott in answer said that he had thrown out 610 names as invalid and that the remaining 6176 names were valid.

With but 164 signatures to invalidate to have the petition declared void Attorney Ringo expects to accomplish his purpose and defeat the referendum of the measure.

CITY COUNCIL HAS EXTENDED MEETING

Two hours were necessary this morning for the mayor and city commissioners to handle all of the business of the council. This was one of the longest meetings since the new administration, and was caused by the time taken up by an attorney addressing the members of the council on the defects in the traffic ordinance.

A remonstrance from the J. K. Gill company, against the granting of a saloon license for the operation of a saloon in the new Rose City building at Third and Alder street was granted and no saloon will be allowed there.

An appropriation of $2000 was allowed for the care of department horses. An ordinance creating the position of storekeeper of the municipal building was also passed.

The liquor license of S. Brun, owner of a grocery store at Second and Alder streets, which was found selling liquor in glass by Mayor Albee Monday afternoon, was revoked.

After determining the number of hours which such employees shall work, the conference will make its report to the commission.

Following the receipt of the report the commission will issue a call for a public meeting to be held within 60 days, when the general public may discuss the merits of the wage question.

Seattle Sailors Must Be Punished is Order. Washington, Aug. 20.—Following receipt of the report of a board of inquiry, Secretary of the Navy Daniels issued an order today to punish all members of the fleet who were ordered overruled at the request of Commissioner Dick.

Chaplain Bauer at Springfield. Eugene, Or., Aug. 20.—Philip E. Bauer, chaplain of the state penitentiary and special agent of Governor West, has been carrying on investigations into alleged liquor shipments of Henry Hoff and at Springfield. Mr. Bauer today would give out no information regarding the result of his investigation.

PANAMA DREDGES NOT LIKELY TO COME HERE

Senator Chamberlain Sends Discouraging News to Chamber.

Efforts of the Portland Chamber of Commerce to secure two seagoing dredges now in use on the Panama Canal for use at the mouth of the Columbia when the canal engineers have finished with them probably will not avail, according to a letter received from Senator George E. Chamberlain, this morning.

Secretary E. C. Giltner, who had written the senator regarding the dredges, was informed that the commission will not release the dredges for some time to come anyway. As to the disposition to be made of them afterward, nobody knows.

Senator Chamberlain enclosed a letter from Major F. C. Boggs, a prominent engineering corps from which he quotes: "It will be impossible for me to state at this time what final disposition will be made of the sea-going dredges Caribbean and Culbra. In any event, it is certain that these will not be released for some considerable period and I do not feel disposed to hazard an opinion regarding the probable date."

It is reasonably certain, however, that from present indications the commission will be in a position to dispose of two dredges of 30 inch double suction, with pumps and accessories complete, before the end of this year, and as a matter of possible interest would suggest that this information be conveyed to the Portland Chamber of Commerce.

W. D. B. Dodson, trade commissioner of the chamber, explained that the dredges referred to are exclusively for inside dredging and probably would not be suitable for work on the Columbia River bar.

POSTPONE ACTION ON CAR FARE ORDINANCE

For the present Portland is not to have a reduction in streetcar fares, for this morning the members of the city council decided to defer until October 1, action on the proposed ordinance requiring the Portland Railway, Light & Power company to sell six rides for 25 cents.

This is the direct result of a hearing Monday afternoon at which were present President Griffith of the streetcar company and the members of the council, when Mr. Griffith asked that no action be taken on the ordinance until the correct value of the company's property has been made and submitted to the commissioners. It is expected to complete the work of appraising the property about the middle of September.

The ordinance was introduced before the council two weeks ago by Will H. Daly, commissioner of public utilities, and was to have come up for final vote this morning. Commissioner Daly vetoed the motion deferring action.

Judge McGinn Says He is Not Hungry. "Believe me I will not starve, and believe me I will not suffer," declared Judge McGinn in commenting on the fact that he has fasted for the past 17 days, and intends to keep it up indefinitely.

"Starvation does not enter into this at all," he said. "I am not hungry, and food is no temptation. I will fast till I get well."

August 3 Judge McGinn partook of breakfast. Since then solid food has not passed his lips, and his liquid refreshment has consisted of Bull Run water, supplemented occasionally with lemon juice, and one glass of grape juice. As a flesh reducer Judge McGinn believes in the fast cure, as he has already lost over 25 pounds, and the scales tall of weight gains each time he consults them.

The cure is being taken on the advice of a Finnish physical instructor. Judge McGinn has studied and read concerning the cure for several years.

Lane and Chamberlain Found to Stand High. (Special to The Journal.) University of Oregon, Eugene, Or., August 20.—Few United States Senators are more highly respected in Washington, D. C., than are Senators Harry Lane and George Chamberlain. Such is the declaration of President P. L. Campbell of the University of Oregon, who returned yesterday from Washington and other eastern points, where he has sought to select a new instructor for the University. He also has been solicited, prominent congressmen spoke not only in complimentary terms of the Oregon senators, but referred to specific instances of good these senators were doing, quietly, but earnestly for their nation.

President Campbell had an audience with President Wilson while in Washington.

3-STATES HIGHWAY IS SLOGAN AT EUREKA

Eureka, Cal., Aug. 20.—With Governor Johnson of California opening the proceedings, more than 100 delegates from the three states of the Pacific coast met here today at the first of the "Three States' Good Roads Rally." Governor Lister of Washington, who is president of the convention, was introduced by Governor Johnson, and the Washington executive received an ovation.

Governor West and other members of the Oregon delegation were expected to arrive this afternoon. After Governor Johnson had finished a brief speech, striking at the outset the keynote of enthusiasm which dominates the convention and announcing his stand for a great highway connecting the three states, Governor Lister assumed the gavel. He addressed the convention under the title of "The General Necessity for Good Roads," and scored heavily with his argument.

A big mass meeting is planned for tonight with Governor Johnson and Governor Lister as the principal speakers.

Stockholders Investigate. "When the stockholders found that the store, instead of making money, was actually losing, investigation was started to ascertain the cause. The books revealed that in one case an indebtedness of something like $1500 had been incurred, although the manager was forbidden to go into debt beyond the actual amount of the paid in stock, which at that time amounted to $1275.26.

"We also had difficulty in getting from the manager monthly reports. After pressing Mr. Voelker for such report, I finally obtained one which did cover the months from July 15 to January 31. In one instance we found that, according to the books, one wholesale grocery firm had been paid more than $200 above the amount it was entitled to.

"Inquiry revealed that the discrepancy was made because a voucher pertaining to the transaction, had not been entered in the books. Further investigation revealed that the dividends we had declared were unwarranted by the actual financial status. Efforts to get a satisfactory explanation of some of these irregularities were made, but in some manner the questions asked were either evaded or ignored.

Meeting With Creditors. "The association finally met with the creditors to arrange, if possible, a basis for a settlement with the idea of continuing the business of the store. Some of the creditors were willing to give us time, while others refused to grant this privilege. An attachment was served,

WOMEN SAY HITCHINGS PEEPED THROUGH WINDOW. Attorney J. "Hat" Hitchings was arrested last night for peeping in a window at Sixteenth and Columbia streets.

When the case was called for trial this morning in the municipal court, Hitchings asked to have the case go over until Thursday. This was allowed.

Shortly after midnight, the police received call from a woman that a man was peeping in her bedroom window. Patrolman Schiller found Hitchings at Fourteenth and Columbia streets. Three women identified the lawyer as the man seen at the home. Hitchings claims the arrest grows out of an officer's grudge against him.

PEACE CONFERENCE IS OPENED AT THE HAGUE. The Hague, Aug. 20.—More than 800 delegates assembled in the Ridderzaal here today for the opening of the twentieth universal peace conference. The congress will continue several days and is held under the patronage of Prince Henry of the Netherlands.

Two days of committee meetings will precede the regular sessions. About 50 American delegates are present. Andrew Carnegie also is expected to attend the conference.

COOPERATIVE STORE PEOPLE TO FIX BLAME FOR CONCERN'S BREAK

One Stockholder Believes That Poor Management Brought Concern to Bankruptcy.

Stockholders in the First Mutualist association store, which opened its doors at Albina avenue and Shaver street one year ago under encouraging conditions, and which closed last July, are interested today in the outcome of the bankruptcy proceedings which have been instituted to liquidate an indebtedness of nearly $2000.

Financial embarrassment of the concern, according to J. A. Randall, 145 Graham avenue, a stockholder, is attributed to mismanagement. An exorbitant salary list and injudicious buying are held responsible, in part, for the failure. The business began under flattering auspices, and the stockholders were at first highly pleased with the showing. Based upon the encouraging reports of the manager, R. J. Voelker, 902 Mississippi avenue, the board of directors, says Mr. Randall, declared dividends as high as 8 per cent. The money thus paid to the stockholders may now have to be repaid to the creditors, according to the association's attorney, Isaac Swett.

Manager May Be Held. Effort will be made, it is intimated, to hold the former manager responsible for his bond in the sum of $2000. Action in this regard depends upon the attitude of the creditors.

One of the causes of the present entanglement is said to be unbusinesslike bookkeeping. Investigation by an auditing committee disclosed vouchers for his bond in the sum of $2000. A big mass meeting is planned for tonight with Governor Johnson and Governor Lister as the principal speakers.

Explaining the present tangle, Mr. Randall said that he is regretted that the cooperative enterprise, which began under such flattering auspices, should be wrecked. For the year that we were in business the store actually sold $32,940 worth of goods on the cash basis.

"The gross profits earned up to May 31 should have been, according to the books, $2826.23. But the total expense for the same period mounted up to $2742.26. Deducting $42.94 for depreciation, we find that the store closed its doors with an indebtedness of more than $1900.

"When the stockholders found that the store, instead of making money, was actually losing, investigation was started to ascertain the cause. The books revealed that in one case an indebtedness of something like $1500 had been incurred, although the manager was forbidden to go into debt beyond the actual amount of the paid in stock, which at that time amounted to $1275.26.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA SURVIVOR RELATES STORY OF THE WRECK

Vessel Went Down Very Fast; Rigging Falls With Climbers In It.

Juneau, Alaska, Aug. 20.—David Cowen of Vashon Island, near Seattle, one of the survivors of the wreck of the State of California in Frederick sound, Sunday morning, when about 40 lives were lost, told his experiences today, as follows: "The ship struck hard. She listed first this way and then that. The captain steered for the shore. It seemed just a little while. The bow sank. The whole ship was going down. I noticed some mules in the hold; I looked again and there was only water where the mules had been. But I heard them scream.

"The hatchways had not been battened down since leaving the cannery, and the rush of water drove all manner of freight out of the holds. "I jumped for the rigging. Someone else jumped, too, and fought with me for foot and hand holds. I looked down, and saw the whole superstructure of the ship rise. It was the air pressure below.

"Then the masts fell, and the rigging came crashing down. A mast fell across a lifeboat full of people. It threw several of them into the water. I saw some faces—a vanishing band. "The ship settled with a rush. Before I knew it I was in the water, under my lungs burning. When at last I came up—the suction had held me down so long I almost gave up hope—I was tangled in the wreckage. I kicked myself loose. I looked about for my companion in the rigging. He was gone. I swam a little way and a lifeboat picked me up."

Hans Johnson was in the engine room. In the staterooms above him men and women were springing, dazed from sleep, from their berths and beating frantically on locked doors which they had no time to open. Big Blonde Johnson's eyes are still glazed with fear and his mighty chest still heaves with emotion as he tells the story of how, by curious chance, he did not die.

"We got the signal 'Full speed astern,'" he said. "That means danger. 'Not much,' I think. Then the water comes in, not slow. It come fast, and my knees, to my chin. "I jump for the ladder and so do the others. We get up just in time. When I got on deck something—explosion, maybe—throw me overboard. The ship break in two. Something hit me on the head. I grasp it, and it is a spar. I hang on a long time, and by and by a lifeboat come."

AGED RANCHER HURT IN FALL FROM WAGON

J. R. Reed, an aged rancher living back of Pullon, was thrown from his wagon this morning and dragged more than 100 feet, when his horse ran away at the end of the Pullon corral. He is at the Multnomah hospital, internally injured.

The rancher had been to the city with farm produce, and was returning home. The horse is one that has been in the family for 12 years, this being its first runaway.

At a sharp turn a half mile south of Pullon, Reed was thrown from the seat, his foot caught in a strap hanging from the rear of the wagon, by which he was dragged. The Red Cross ambulance took the man to the Multnomah hospital.

MAN MAKES HIS BED IN A TAR BARREL AND WAKES ANCHORED

Frank Scott, a deck hand on the steamer Tahoma, went to sleep in a tar barrel last evening at Ash and First streets. He awoke anchored in the tar so safely that it required three patrolmen to cut him free. Scott was taken to the police station, dressed chiefly in his hat and necktie, as all the other clothing had been cut in shreds to get him out of the tar.

Patrolmen Ennis, Horton and Schiller were the officers that rescued Scott from the tar barrel. Patrolman Schiller found him wiggling in the barrel. The other officers were called from the station to assist in the rescue. After a few hours in jail, Scott was allowed to go home.
