MAP ISSUED ONLY FOR ONE OREGON FOREST

There is a great deal of difference between the Oregon forest and the forests of Oregon, and officials of the United States Forest Service are making haste to say so. Two weeks ago an incursion report was circulated to the effect that the forest service had ready for distribution a new map of the "forests of Oregon."

ASSISTANT FORESTER TO COMPILE BOOKLET

Shirley Buck, assistant district forester of the United States forest service, has started the compilation of a new booklet on spark arresting devices for steam engines of all kinds. Spark arresters are very important mechanical features tending for the safety of the forests and there is much controversy over the kinds that are the best. Two years ago Mr. Buck had a publication of this kind and later, in request for spark arresting devices that had proven successful under practical use were described. A number that have been equally successful to have been invented since that time, however, and Mr. Buck thinks that his old publication is obsolete. The demand for the books is large.
