The Labor day parade was well handled today by Grand Marshal Oscar W. Horne and his aides, and much credit for today's splendid showing is due to the interesting program...

In directing the march Mr. Horn was assisted by the following: T. J. Joseph, Joseph McGuire, A. E. Hall, E. Mc Bride, Joseph Reed, Harry Gurr and J. D. Knauss.

Long before the order, "fall in line," was issued, those who participated in the parade gathered on the side streets that intersected Third between Morrison and Jefferson.

There was very little delay and the hands of the clock had barely passed the third hour when the line was formed at Third and Salmon and the procession was under way.

At the field those participating in the parade were admitted by one gate and the general public through the Stott street entrance.

Long before the first number of the afternoon program, the baseball game between the Carpenters and Bricklayers began, the grandstand was filled by the holiday crowd.

Following the contest a number of interesting athletic events, ranging from a fat man's race to a 50 yard dash for children was scheduled.

Band, grand marshal and aides, baseball team, bricklayers, plasterers, building laborers, cement workers, sheet metal workers, plumbers, marble workers, carpenters, structural iron workers, electricians, plumbers, painters, band metal trades, including machinists, molders, patternmakers, blacksmiths, boilermakers, stationary firemen, engineers, elevator constructors, hoisting and portable engineers, miscellaneous trades, including butchers, bakers, barbers, tailors, sign painters, moving picture operators, label trades section, including cigar makers, garment workers, printing trades, book binders, band, restaurant workers, waterworks, firemen, brewery workers, pile drivers, shipwrights, teamsters, journeymen horse-shoers, carpet and shade workers, cooper, and shingle weavers.

MODESTY AND X-RAY SKIRTS INCONSISTENT SAYS DR. BROUGHER

Former Portland Pastor Declares No Women of Right Character Will Wear Them.

Preaching from his former pulpit in the White Temple, last night, Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher of Temple Baptist church, Los Angeles, sounded a warning for modesty in dress and against the X-ray hobble skirt.

Dr. Brougher also addressed a large audience in the morning. Among his remarks at the evening service, he said: "It was Huxley who said: 'If some great power would agree to make me always think what is true and do what is right on condition of being left to a sort of clock and wound up every morning, I should immediately close with the offer.'

"The infinite desirability of always being good and the infinite difficulty in attaining such a state make life a terrible struggle for the most of us. I think that we should like to come in touch with a power that could do for us what Huxley wished for himself, but not many of us would be willing to be turned into a sixty-cent alarm clock in order to attain that result. It is not necessary that we should be.

"Without being turned into a clock God has given to man a revelation of the principle by which he may ultimately attain the desired ideal. The only sin that has power over a man is the sin that he loves. If a man is master of appetite and passion and desire, he can live in a world of sin, be good and happy, and even have a lot of fun. There is not much fun going to hell; there is lots of fun going to heaven.

"Some people are going to hell so fast they can't even see a scenery, but people who love clean things, pure things and bright things, can master the propensities to evil and find their highest enjoyment in doing things that are good. It is nevertheless true that the process of changing a man's nature, so that he will become a true love honey instead of being a spider and loving poison, is not clearly understood.

Character Grows. "Jesus Christ and the New Testament writers have given us certain principles that will work out absolutely, if given a chance. Character will grow according to law just as certainly as corn grows according to certain fundamental principles. I believe the Bible gives a formula which, if followed fearlessly and persistently, will result in a perfect character, surely as any result is guaranteed by the laws of nature. There is an inner law of transformation as well as an outer law. Paul said 'Be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind.' Let us notice then the process of this inner law.

"First—Ye must be born again. Jesus Christ said to Nicodemus that the process of developing character must begin with a new birth. The divinity of Christ partook of our humanity; our humanity must partake of his divinity. This is not accomplished by good resolutions. A ship at sea has good difficulty with its engine. Pushing at the mast will not drive the ship. There must be a remedy applied to the engine at the heart of the ship. When the spirit of God changes the heart of a man and sets him at work on things that are good, then he may begin to grow into a perfect character. This change of nature does not come by mere reform. A little white-headed boy had his hair shaved close to his head, and his old bald-headed grandfather said: 'Charlie, you are not bald, but I have the roots left.'

Clothes Count Nothing. "It is character that counts, and not clothes. The world makes a great deal over the question of clothes. No modest woman would ever think of retaining a reputation for modesty and, at the same time, wear one of the modern X-ray hobble skirts. No woman of the right sort of character would want such a skirt. People are judged by the things they like.

"People who like such things will not be happy, of course, if they are compelled to deny themselves the gratification of such vulgar frivolous desires. In gaining this mastery they must submit to the influence of God's spirit to work upon their hearts and minds. There is also an outer law, he said. 'We all, with unveiled face, beholding, as in a mirror, the glory of God, are transformed into the same image from privilege to glory.' We do not have the privilege of physical sight in beholding the purity of life and character of Jesus Christ so we must look into things that reflect that purity and thus get the inspiration to be what he would have us be.

Words Reflect Inner Nature. "We behold the purity of his life and character in his words. Words are a reflection of our inner nature. I realize my thoughts by my words. If we spent as much time reading the New Testament as we do primping before the ordinary mirror, our characters would be more beautiful than our clothes.

"We behold the glory of Christ's character in His acts. I see Him at the wedding turning water into wine and I am inspired with His kindly thoughtfulness. I stand with Him beside the sick bed and behold the glory of His tenderness and compassion.

"I behold the glory of His life and the purity of His character, a character without a flaw, a life without a fault and yet in perfect and profound sympathy with lost humanity. 'As I reflect upon the purity, the sweetness, the gentleness, the holiness, the perfection of his character, I feel the warmth of his spirit transforming my own life and I would love the things that He loves and be what He would have me be. 'Changed, controlled, mastered by His spirit, then I may be good and be happy.'

Diversified Farming Successful. John Jackson of Condon talked about the growth of the Tri-County fair, which will be held in his home town this fall. The fair is a result of the diversified farming campaign which has been carried on in Wheeler, Morrow and Gilliam counties during the past two years.

"It's been wonderfully successful, that diversified farming plan," said Mr. Jackson, and the Tri-County fair will show what has been done.

Charles S. Miller, one of the leading business men of Fossil, came in about the same time. He was full of enthusiasm over the railroad extension proposed by the Harriman lines between Condon and Fossil, a distance of 20 miles as the crow flies, but over 30 by the survey.

"The survey was just completed yesterday," said he. "They tell me the worst grade is but 3 per cent. That railroad will mean everything in the way of development to Wheeler county."

Dean J. A. Bexell of Oregon Agricultural college, who just returned this morning from three months spent in the east, came in and helped C. C. Chapman and Alfred Black welcome some of the visitors. "No eastern city does so much for its trade territory as Portland does," said the educator. "I found no other city so clean, so cool and so well lighted as Portland. No other state has presented dependable facts and scientific information so popularly and attractively as Oregon in the immigration book. These reflections make me reach the conclusion that there isn't anything anywhere quite so good as what we have."

J. R. Durphy registered from Spokane and Ira G. Boyce from John Day. A. E. Greiner of Echo paused on his way to the morning ball game long enough to say, "The visit of Secretary of the Interior Lane to Umatilla county was most fortunate. It left us believing that he will do the right thing by all of us."

L. J. Bourtales, a young business man of Florence, at the mouth of the Stullaw, said that encouraging progress is being made on the construction of the railroad from Eugene to Coos Bay. C. W. Mellinger of Veneta and Arthur Levy of North Yakima registered during the morning.

Informal Parade Tomorrow. There will be a sort of informal commercial parade tomorrow. The business houses will devote themselves to the entertainment of the buyers. The visitors in their turn will have the best opportunity in the city's history to learn how the stocks have been built up and what are the advantages in the way of variety of selection, honesty of treatment and plus-quality of merchandise in trading in Portland.

The list of business houses to be visited shows in a way to interest Portland people how many different enterprises invite patronage. Candy, saw-mills, spices, trousers, harness, phonographs and pianos, pure pork sausage, rubbers, bread, groceries, clothing, coffee, gloves, and a hundred and one other things are on the list.

Generosity governs the features of entertainment. Each visitor is made for two weeks a member of the Commercial club with all its privileges, also of the Y. M. C. A. Buses are provided to the Columbia and People's theatres. A long perforated ticket, for all the world like railroad transportation, entitles the lucky guest to come to the Commercial club reception tonight and the smoker tomorrow night, the Wednesday luncheon of the Ad club at the Hotel Portland, the Oaks, the Union Meat company luncheon, the banquet Thursday evening and the assembly in the club under the auspices of the Credit Men's association later in the evening.

Garrett is AFRAID OF SHORTAGE OF CARS. Chicago, Sept. 1.—A shortage of freight cars in many parts of the United States this fall was predicted today by W. A. Garrett, vice president of the Chicago, Great Western Railroad company. Garrett issued a statement asking shippers to cooperate with the railroads by not taking advantage of the full free time allowed for loading and by giving immediate notice when cars are loaded, in an effort to minimize the congestion of freight, he says is sure to come.
