BUTTER PRICE RAISE OF 2 CENTS MADE IN LOCAL MART TODAY

Hot Dry Spell and Usual Late Summer Falling Off in Milk Production Ascribed as Cause—Eastern Butter Prices Also Increase.

The usual late summer raise in the price of creamery butter, that has been pending for a week or more, came this morning, the increase being 2 cents. The advance was made by all Portland creameries and many of the country creameries, it was reported, were following suit. The general price now is 34 cents.

The raise seems to be a natural one, coming as it does with a great scarcity in the butter market. Hardly a pound of butter has come to town in the last two weeks from the out-of-town creameries. The pastures have been drying up and the hot weather caused a much lessened production of milk and cream.

Some of the creamery interests that are fighting the invasion of eastern butter into this territory, declare that the raise was made so that the creameries can profit on the eastern butter that they handle. A 2½ cent raise on eastern butter went into effect this week. This comes, like the local increase, because of the long spell of hot, dry weather. Others declare, however, that the eastern market at the present time is a very small factor in the Oregon creamery business, because this state for a year or more has been very nearly producing its own needed supply and the outside shipments have been meager.

A few days of rain will improve pasture and should that condition take place, it is likely that the increase will only be temporary.

CHEESE MARKET ACTIVE

The local cheese market shows greatly increased activity this week and dealers confidently look for an increase in values before many days. The demand has been exceptionally good, coming as it does after the August slump. Accumulated stocks are being worked off rapidly. Triplets are in special demand, and there is a scarcity in the variety.

FIRST OYSTERS ARRIVE

The first Olympia oysters arrived in the Portland market yesterday morning and they were quickly closed out. The wholesale price was $3.50 per gallon, the shipment consisting of opened oysters. With the increasing scarcity of the product in the Puget sound beds, the fishermen are becoming more and more reluctant to send the shell oysters in the sacks. Many of the young oysters are attached to each mature shell. By doing the shelling at the fisheries, the shells can be thrown back into the water and the young ones attached are not killed.

CANTALOUPES AND SWEETS

A car each of cantaloupes and sweet potatoes from Turlock, Cal., arrived in the local market today and the contents were distributed along the street. The sweets are held for $2.25 a crate with the cants at $1.50@2.

TOMATO MARKET FIRMER

The local tomato market shows a much better tone today, the rain causing better action in Front street dealing. Shipments from up the valley and from local points have been temporarily stopped and it is reported that the showers have caused the ripe tomatoes in many gardens to crack. Boxes were sold today as high as 50 cents.

VEAL DEMAND CONTINUES

The demand for country killed veal holds strong and farmers are receiving 15½ cents for the best stuff. Handlers of product are cleaning up regularly. Top butchered pork demands 12 cents.

NO BLACKBERRY MARKET

Every day there are a few crates of blackberries brought into the local market for sale, but the demand is exceedingly limited and the dealers can hardly dispose of them at any price. The crate price lingers around $1, although the commission man will take almost anything to get rid of them.

SHIPPERS' DAILY FORECAST

Protect shipments as far north as Seattle against maximum temperatures of about 65 degrees; northeast to Spokane, 80; southeast to Boise, 85; south to Siskiyou, 75. Maximum temperature at Portland this afternoon, about 65 degrees.

WHEAT SHIPMENTS QUIET

London, Sept. 4.—Cargoes on passage quiet.
English country markets quiet.
French country markets quiet.

Rather sharp advances in the Liverpool wheat market this morning made effects that were felt in the Portland grain situation today, and the market was firmer. Two local bidders were in the country yesterday, and it is reported that they were offering 70 cents for fortyfold, 68 cents for club, 67 cents for red and 76@77 cents for bluestem. Some sales were closed at those values, and it is believed by some that those prices will prevail for the time being.

One lot of brewery barley was bought by a Portland dealer near Pullman, Wash., yesterday at $27.80. The grain was of exceptional quality, however, and even at that the price is considered high. Both the market on oats and barley is inflated, with indications that the barley is leading the oats in the price making. Practically all the big buyers are sitting tight and waiting for the drop to come a few weeks hence, when the small dealers who are now making prices learn that there is no outlet for all the white barley, and it will have to drop to a feed grade.

POLK SPUD CROP IS POOR

Vines Smaller With Less Acreage and Moles and Gophers Do Much Damage.

(Special to The Journal.)

Independence, Or., Sept. 4.—According to the growers the potato crop in Polk county is not a success this year. The vines are smaller than last year, there is a smaller acreage, and gophers and moles did much in destroying the growth. Some growers claim that a blight affected somewhat the growth of the potato crop in their sections.

The Burbank potato is probably making the best showing at present. Early potatoes yielded well as a general rule, and the price was at the average figure.

Last year potatoes were so plentiful here that some patches were left undug, while others dug the crop and fed it to hogs and cattle during the winter.

HOP GROWERS REFUSE TO LISTEN TO 17 CENT BIDS

(Special to The Journal.)

Aurora, Or., Sept. 4.—There is absolutely nothing doing in the new crop among the hop dealers here. They have orders at 17c, but the growers will not listen to such figures.

The rains are likely to do little damage to hops, if not long continued. The worst feature of the rainy weather is the discouragement of the hoppickers, whose camps are not the most comfortable places imaginable. A few have returned to Oregon City and Portland until fair weather.

REPORTS SPUR WHEAT

Bullish Report on Coarse Grain With Good Foregin News, Stimulates.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—With bullish reports on corn as a spur to the wheat market, that grain took an upward advance towards the last in the trading today that landed it ⅞c higher at the finish, with the high mark on top when the pit operations closed. December wheat moved up to ¼, while the gain in September corn amounted to 1½c, closing at 77½c. Trade was stimulated by strong Liverpool cables and speculative buyers were active on the South American market strength and the aspect of the northwest markets towards the early spring movement.

TRANSACTIONS ARE DULL

Little Domestic News to Cause Changes, Though Rail Holdings Liquidate.

New York, Sept. 4.—Today's stock market had a sagging tendency and only a moderate rally was made in the afternoon. There was little domestic news of import to sway the market either way, although there was genuine liquidation in New York Central, Pennsylvania and New Haven stocks. The speculative element worked on the selling side of the market and seemed to be encouraged by the action of the prices. The disposition to reduce long lines has become pronounced on the part of recent buyers owing to the European tendency to favor the selling side because of active preparations now under way to arrange for the conversion of the large floating debts of the Balkan states and Turkey into fixed obligations. This, it is feared, will produce hardening tendencies in money rates on the other side.

The market opening was active and a shade lower.

GROWERS DISAPPOINTED

Aurora Yards Were Deceptive, but the Quality Is Excellent —Many Pickers.

(Special to The Journal.)

Aurora, Sept. 4.—Growers here are disappointed in the way the hops are coming down this year. While the quality is fine, the quantity is much less than was anticipated before picking began. The appearance of the yards has been deceptive, say the growers.

There are, however, some cases in which old yards have turned out big crops. One owned by A. W. Keil, where picking is finished, yielded to the extent of 183 boxes per acre.

Pickers have been plentiful up to this time. Quite a number of growers here will begin to pick as late as September 5. There have been no reports of business being done here in the new crop.

Receipts were very light at the North Portland yards today, and this, coupled with the fact that the Wednesday shipments were all cleaned up before the close last night, made for a dull trade. One lot of hogs from Idaho was disposed of this morning at a $9 value, but the grade was not of the best and the price is no indication of the true market value for tops.

A number of sales of steers were made yesterday afternoon at $7.75. This stuff was almost entirely fancy, but the stock was closed out as it came, and as there were some culls in the bunch, a top value was not made. Indications are that the market for cows is 25@35 cents weaker. The dry spell and this time of the year makes it a necessity for many of the ranchers to turn their milkers into beef cattle and the market has been receiving quite heavy runs of the female stock.

At Chicago today hogs opened 5 cents higher and the market held firm with cattle and sheep steady.

CONDITIONS LOCALLY AND ABROAD INDICATE HOP PRICE ADVANCE

New York State and European Reports Show Slump in Yield Estimates — Valley Growers Disappointed With Yields So Far.

Hop Belt Forecast.

The weather bureau forecast for western Oregon issued today, predicts rain tonight and Friday with southwest winds for western Oregon.

Reports from valley points received today indicated that while the rain had stopped at most points, it was still too wet for the pickers to get out in the hop yards. Portland buyers were figuring on a very firm market when anything in the way of a crop movement starts. Reports received from valley points in the last few days, when enough picking has been done so that an estimate can be formed, indicate that the yard owners are disappointed, and that in some cases the yields are much lighter than they were a year ago.

A dispatch received from New York today says:

"The continental market is firmer and higher, and the estimates are being reduced. Ten days ago the crop in New York state was estimated at 40,000 bales, and today's estimate places the yield at 23,000 bales. Early New York hops have been sold for 30 cents a pound. Weather indications point to the fact that the Oregon crop will be reduced, and dealers who sold Oregon hops short at 13@14 cents are very excited and trying to buy at 18@19 cents. A few of the samples that have reached here of early bales show very fine quality, and it is generally believed among the trade that as soon as these samples reach London English dealers will be eager buyers."

A number of samples from around Salem have been brought to Portland by dealers, and the quality shows much better than last year.

HOP YIELD LIGHT

Less Than Most Conservative Estimate Near Sheridan.

(Special to The Journal.)

Ballston, Or., Sept. 4.—With all yards showing a lighter yield than even the most conservative of the yard men anticipated, the harvesting of the hop crop is well under way in this vicinity. Picking was started last Saturday, but was interrupted Tuesday on account of the rain and has not since been resumed.

In the J. H. Bell and Newbill hop yards the same crews are covering in two days what it took three days to cover last year. Other large yards reporting decreasing yields are the Peter Hanson and Victor Grower places nearer Sheridan. C. H. Brooks reports that his maximum output cannot exceed ⅝ of last year's crop. The dry weather has produced a fine quality and so far there is no danger of vermin.

AMATEUR SINGERS TO BE GIVEN A CHANCE

Commercial Club Planning a New Departure in Entertainment Line.

Early next week the Portland Commercial club is planning to begin what might be termed an amateur cabaret.

The idea originated with the house committee, which has long thought the orchestra and professional entertainment of dinner guests was not sufficient. And so it will give amateur singers and players a chance.

The plan as tentatively outlined is to have the amateur entertainment three evenings a week during the dinner hour. John S. Beall, chairman of the house committee, is extending an invitation to the local musical talent generally to file names, addresses and full descriptions of their "stunts" with the secretary of the club as soon as possible, that the idea may be executed without delay.

"A move of this kind would give the patrons of the dining room a little diversity of music from what they are accustomed to," said Mr. Beall today. "Besides, there are a lot of people in Portland who have talent, but have never been properly introduced to the public, especially the younger people and those who have not the means to advertise themselves properly. There are a number of children in Portland from 12 years up who are talented in various classes of music, and they certainly should have a chance to get before the public."

POLICE BAND'S DRUM MAJOR PASSES AWAY

Hank C. Wilson Contracted Tuberculosis Two Years Ago, Apparently Better.

Hank C. Wilson, member of the Portland police department and drum major and one of the organizers of the Police band, died this morning at Natron, Or., from pulmonary tuberculosis. Wilson had been ill about two years, but up till about two months ago showed improvement.

About a year ago Wilson secured a leave of absence for several months to go into the mountains for an open air treatment. He went to Natron where a brother is living and the outdoor life showed good results. A few weeks ago he came to Portland to serve on the force a few days in order to renew his standing in the department, and this gave the disease a fresh start. He hastened to the mountain camp about a month ago.

Wilson was a large, powerful man and a Spanish war veteran, having been a member of the band that enlisted for duty with the Second Oregon when it was ordered to Manila. He is survived by the widow and several relatives here.
