

WALLA WALLA WHEAT HARVEST IS OVER AND PLOWING IS TO BEGIN

Farmers Are Awaiting Rains for Fall Work—Planting Likely to Prove Heavier Than Year Ago Because of Better Yields.

Walla Walla, Wash., Sept. 13.—Now that the last stray field of wheat in the higher levels of the Walla Walla valley has been garnered, and hauling is nearly completed, the farmers of this section of the state are looking forward to a heavy precipitation that will plow the ground in good condition for fall plowing.

There have been comparatively few sales during the past week, even though prices have shown a slight upward tendency, and the deal closed have been of a small nature, the majority of the growers still holding on for higher figures. Club now is selling for 70@71 1/2, with some slight prospects for an increase during the coming week.

The weather for the 1913 harvest has been, according to all farmers, the most ideal experienced here in many years, but one or two light showers having fallen since the first grain was cut. The roads now are in a better condition, due to the heavy hauling of the past three weeks, that the farmers are anxious for the spring sowing. It is said, will be in fine condition for plowing with a heavy rain, and as soon as the soil is sufficiently moistened the work will be started.

It is the general opinion of farmers near this city that the acreage of fall sown grain this year will be considerably larger than was seeded last fall, because of the fact that the fall sown grain harvested had every advantage over the spring sown, and will give a better average yield throughout the country.

crop around Eugene is beginning to come in, the growers and dealers are beginning to realize that the crop this year is heavier than for several years past. Ed T. Bushnell, who has a small yard of 25 acres just across the river from the city, reports a yield of over a ton to the acre, whereas an ordinary crop has been from 1000 to 1500 pounds to the acre. In an ordinary year he picks his crop in three days, but it is taking between five and six days this year. Similar reports come in from other yards. The Springfield Walker yard of 15 acres on the street line between Eugene and Springfield, has yielded 2500 pounds to the acre, which is above the average. From larger yards, which have not yet finished picking, also come encouraging reports.

The scenic grandeur of the Wallowa Lake region was appreciated in full measure recently by a camping party which included Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Isie and Dr. and Mrs. H. R. Foster of Clarkston, Wash., Miss Florence Gambell of Portland, and Russell French of Enterprise, Or., who enjoyed an outing in this neighborhood under the guidance of Zachary Humphreys of Joseph, Or. Each member of the party returned enthusiastically over their outing experiences in this northeastern section of the state which is said to rival Switzerland from a scenic standpoint.

CROOK COUNTY HARVEST Operations Well Under Way and Some Fair Yields Reported.

Prineville, Or., Sept. 13.—The grain harvest is well under way in Crook county, most of the dry land crops have been reaped in this vicinity and many machines are operating in the Culver, La Monte and Madras districts. While the crops are reported light in many districts, there are several notable exceptions where yields of 25 to 28 bushels of wheat per acre have been reported. These crops are grown by the farmers who employ methods of summer tillage, the importance of which is being realized more and more each year in this part of the state. It is estimated that better farming methods will double the yield of wheat in this part of the state during the next five years. The harvest of wheat and other grain crops on irrigated lands has just commenced and will be as good as the average yield. Farmers are selling considerable wheat locally, the mill paying 70c, while like prices prevail at Bend, Redmond and Madras. There will be at least twice as much grain fed to hogs in this locality this fall, and many farmers will feed chopped wheat and barley to dairy cows.

over the northwest but there was no claim that any damage was done on either side of the line. Elevator interests were on the selling side of December and May the last hour. The market for oats futures were barely a fraction better than the low point for the day. This trade follows readily any display of weakness in corn. Shipping sales were reported at 200,000 bushels. Farmers are holding, big and little, was the order of the day in the provision trade. Brokers reported selling of scattered holders the early months during the morning. Later there was selling pressure in January and May which appeared to be for packing interests.

the agitation has been so long continued and the possibility of the adverse tariff so often considered from every point of view that the wool growers have resigned that could have been expected. It still is possible, for some change to be made in the bill in conference but it seems to be taken for granted that the senate date for the wool and woolen rates to go into operation will prevail. That the conference will reverse the action of the senate regarding the duties on tops and yarns is recognized as a forlorn hope.

HEAVY PEAR CANNING WITH BURGLARIES OF THE BURLESQUE KIND

On One Occasion Gallant Policeman Shoots Colleague in Leg; "Spirit" Gets Silver.

Eugene, Or., Sept. 13.—More than a thing of a million peaches have been canned at the cannery of the Eugene Fruitgrowers' association, and the biggest run on pears in the history of the association closes this evening. Monday the association will begin drying prunes. It is said that the crop this year is the largest in years. It is expected that 3,000,000 pounds of prunes, green, will be dried and packed and shipped at the cannery during the next few weeks. These two crops, most of which is already sold, will net the growers over $125,000.

PARISIAN POLICE COPE WITH BURGLARIES OF THE BURLESQUE KIND

On One Occasion Gallant Policeman Shoots Colleague in Leg; "Spirit" Gets Silver.

Paris, Sept. 13.—Three comic burglaries have occurred during the week here. Three burglars were surprised in an attempt to break into a house in the Baubourg du Temple and tried to escape. Two of them succeeded, but the third was confronted by Mme. Amaga, the occupant of the house. He implored pardon, saying that he had taken refuge in the house as he was pursued by Apaches. The woman professed pity for him and hid him in a bed. The man fell in with the idea without suspicion, and two minutes later Mme. Amaga returned with a couple of policemen and gave him in charge. At Dijon when M. Charles, a shopkeeper, returned home in the night he heard noises which he took to be caused by burglars. He ran for the police and with them reentered the house. One of the policemen, however, was so irritated whether from fear or the prospect of promotion is not stated—that he fired too soon and shot his colleague in the leg. The while the policeman was being taken to hospital the "burglar" was discovered. The man who had alarmed M. Charles was the snoring of his servant in the next room, and what annoyed the policeman most was that she slept through it all. The third case has a spiritualistic setting. M. and Mme. Masser, living in the Rue Croix Nivert, in Paris, declared that since the death of their only son two years ago they had been in the habit of conversing with him. The other evening, while they sat in darkness, waiting for the spirit to appear, they heard a noise in the next room. They waited in vain for the spirit to manifest itself, and got up to go to bed with the concluding thought that it had been there, although it had not spoken to them. Before retiring they looked into the dining room next door, and what they saw shook their faith in spiritualism. Everything of value had been removed by the "spirit," whom the conjurer declared had rushed past her on the stairs carrying a well filled bag.

This curious fish, which has 53 brilliant light organs on either side of its body, which itself shines like a mirror, has been named the tador. It was hauled to the surface by the trawler Endeavor, and will be placed on exhibition at the Australian museum at Sydney. More than 100 other entirely new varieties were obtained; and the specimens inhabiting these submarine depths being more or less luminous. Several fish of a jet black color, with a skin like velvet studded all over with scintillating encrustations of bluish light were also obtained, some being shaped like a pair of bellows.

GERMANY WORRIED OVER ARMY OF UNEMPLOYED

Berlin, Sept. 13.—With an unprecedented army of unemployed to assist, feed and shelter, government and municipal authorities and the charitable organizations are being driven to looking forward to the coming winter with more than usual dread. Not in many years has there been so many unemployed in the summer. As winter nears this number is swelling rapidly. Knowing from experience that unemployment and hunger tends to create disorder among the masses, the state and municipal authorities are already casting about to create work and increase the facilities of the homes for the homeless. Eugene Smith, a social employment officer, tells the other side of the story. Political unrest, the Balkan war and the financial and industrial situation, has had a most depressing effect upon the labor market. Few visitors to Berlin with its beautiful streets, flower covered balconies, dresy crowds and gay night life would suspect that hunger, misery and wretchedness could exist here. A visit to the night shelters, refuge homes and employment offices, tells the other side of the story. The book is being distributed broadcast free of charge, in full of photographic reproductions showing how these unseen forces are being used all over the world, and how thousands upon thousands have developed powers which they little dreamed they possessed. PARIS POLICE FACING A BURDER MYSTERY; WEALTHY MAN SHOT

Victim's Pretty Wife Insists Husband Committed Suicide—Riddle Puzzles Sleuths.

By William Philip Simms.

Paris, Sept. 13.—A bullet in his brain and five others in various parts of the torso, principally in the back, the body of millionaire Leon Poeskes was found by the police shortly after midnight, in the dining room of a bed in the richly furnished home, 37 Rue Falderbe, in the aristocratic suburb of Saint Mandé.

The police today are still trying to solve the riddle. How did the rich man come by his death? Was he murdered by someone from the outside? Did he commit suicide, as his pretty wife, who was in the room at the time, insists? Was he shot by the latter as he lay asleep at her side? Or did he rise to attack a stranger and gory phantom, which he often said followed him, and thus die by his own hand, by accident?

To complicate the situation Mme. Poeskes was expecting the arrival of the stork on about the 21st of the month. Could she, she asks, no matter what the provocation, slay the father of her child at such a time? The police believed she could, and arrested her on suspicion, locking her up in the prison of St. Lazare, where here baby, christened Marie, was born. On account of the wealth and social prominence of the principals, the affair is likened to the Steinhil murder mystery which was followed by the trial and acquittal of Mme. Steinhil, the artist's wife. Another such trial is a certainty, for in spite of Mme. Poeskes' protestations of innocence the police claim to have a strong case against her.

On the night of June 23, 1912, Mme. Poeskes told the police, "my husband and I went to bed around 9:30. Shortly before midnight—I knew the time by what happened afterwards—I was awakened with a violent start by the noise of a pistol shot at my side. I thought my husband was in the grip of one of his terrible hallucinations and instinctively I sprang up to defend myself. I remember feeling the revolver against my hand which was gripping his; of a little struggle; of more pistol shots, while my husband's arm was twisted back of him. Later I discovered the firearm in my hand and I unloaded it; then, in a daze I telephoned for help."

This is the wife's story in a nutshell. She has told it over and over again and cannot be shaken in any of the details. Her face, framed in a wealth of Bernhardtian hair, has been described as being of perfect type of the sweet, primitive Italian seen in the paintings of Bernardino Luini. The Poeskes family formally charge the wife with the murder.

JUDGE DECIDES CASE BY BIBLICAL CLAUSE

Fort Smith, Ark., Sept. 13.—Henry C. Read, mayor of Fort Smith, under the commission form of government is likewise police judge. He is a leader in church work and his Bible has become a greater factor in deciding cases than the laws.

Their numbers disturbed by the nightly worship of the Holiness band, residents of an eastern district of the city appealed to the authorities for relief. The result was the arrest of Parson Bowers, leader of the band.

Bowles declined to take the oath when arraigned in court, declaring it was against the teachings of the Bible. He stated that the Holiness belief was based on the whole Bible, and they believed every word of it.

Mayor Read then took the Bible, and turning to the sermon on the mount, read Christ's admonition not to be like the scribes and Pharisees, who made loud prayers, but to pray secretly.

The Magnetic Girl How She Compels Others to Obey Her Will.

100,000 Copies of Remarkable Book describing peculiar psychic powers to be distributed Free to readers of the Oregon Journal.

"The wonderful power of Personal Influence, Magnetism, Fascination, Mind Control, all that you will, can surely be acquired by everyone, no matter how unattractive or unappealing," says Mr. Elmer Ellsworth Knowles, author of the book entitled "The Key to the Development of the Inner Forces." The book lays bare many astounding facts concerning the practices of the Eastern Yogi, and describes a simple though effective system of controlling the thoughts and acts of others; how one may gain the love and friendship of those who might otherwise remain indifferent; how to quickly and accurately judge the character and disposition of an individual; how to cure the most obstinate diseases and habits without drugs or medicines; even the complex subject of projecting thoughts (telepathy) is explained. Miss Josephine Davis, the popular stage favorite, whose portrait appears above, declares that Prof. Knowles' book opens the door to success, health and happiness to every mortal, no matter what his or her position in life. She believes that Prof. Knowles has discovered principles which, if universally adopted, will revolutionize the mental status of the human race.
