

CROWDS WHICH VISIT GRESHAM FAIR NOTE MANY IMPROVEMENTS

New Buildings Are Filled With Choicest Stock; Premiums and Prizes Valuable.

Gresham, Or., Sept. 15.—When the first crowds began to swarm into the grounds of the Multnomah county fair today at the opening of the display at Gresham, many new things appeared for their instruction and enjoyment. The two new stock pavilions facing Main street were filled with the choicest cattle and horses, the agricultural pavilion, remodeled to afford an unbroken view of all the exhibits was fairly crammed with the choicest products of the soil. At lunch time, the new eating house, arranged on the cafeteria style, had about all the patronage it could well care for.

The fair which opened today is the seventh annual display held at Gresham. The state, through the county commissioners, has appropriated $2500 in premiums and Portland merchants have donated many special prizes. Eight granges are competing for $1200 in prizes, the highest being $225, and the result is a grange exhibit that occupies a large portion of the agricultural hall.

One of the features of the fair this year is the display of poultry and agricultural products of the children. This is a direct result of the school garden contest movement and the school work in poultry and animal industries.

Thursday will be Portland day at the fair and a special delegation of east side improvement clubs will make the trip by automobile. Members of the Portland Commercial club and the transportation committee will be in the east side contingent will leave the Clifford hotel in automobiles at 12:30 p. m.

To handle the crowds expected at the fair, cars will leave First and Alder streets every 30 minutes by way of the Mount Hood and Estacada tracks. Extra equipment will be put on in the afternoons to take care of the throngs who expect to attend the racing events.

NEW CHURCH FUND IS INCREASING RAPIDLY

Amount Nears Sum Needed to Begin Work on First Methodist Edifice.

Progress in the campaign to raise funds to build the proposed new First Methodist church at Twelfth and Taylor has reached such a point that Rev. Benjamin Young, the pastor, declared today he could almost "see the suburb of victory."

The plan of the church people is to secure $50,000 with which to start construction work. Dr. Young explained that the church has considerable property, but this is not immediately available for turning into cash, though it may be drawn upon after the work has started.

Dr. Young announced at the morning church service Sunday that $20,000 had already been secured, 40 of the church members having contributed it. Pledge slips were distributed and $5000 more was promised, with so many outstanding slips that the pastor now believes there will be no danger in going ahead with the work.

Plans for the new building have already been virtually adopted, and with the raising of the $50,000 needed to begin construction, nothing is expected to stand in the way of a speedy completion of the new edifice.

Some talk of using the material in the present structure for the building of mission churches in various suburbs has been indulged in, though no decision has been reached. It is pointed out that a number of smaller churches might appreciate the gift of material as much as cash which the mother church probably would be called upon to contribute as the mission congregations develop.

O-W-R & N CITY TICKET AGENT NAMED

F. S. McFarland Is Appointed and W. A. Ross Assigned to Union Depot.

Officials of the O-W-R & N have formally announced the appointee to the city ticket agency of their road and connecting roads in Portland. F. S. McFarland, who will begin his duties to-morrow, leaves the Union depot office and W. A. Ross, formerly assistant general passenger agent of the Great Northern at Seattle, will take his place.

It has been known for some time that McFarland was to take the city ticket agency, but the question of a successor at the Union station was what held back the formal appointment. The Union station officials were confronted with the problem of finding first of all a man competent to take over the business, and secondly one who would be acceptable to all the roads that use the terminal.

This was no easy task and much delay was entailed. Mr. McFarland until two years ago was employed in the Union Pacific offices in Omaha. Transferred to Portland, he at once took charge of the depot office. The taking up of his new position tomorrow marks the second anniversary of his residence here in Oregon.

For some months, Mr. Ross, who served his railroad apprenticeship with the Great Northern, has been employed by the Northwestern Electric company under W. E. Coman, himself a former railroad man.

The new appointments are echoes of the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific merger dissolution. When the split was made, C. W. Stinger, in charge of the joint office of the two roads in Portland, was made city ticket agent of the Southern Pacific and the corresponding position with the O-W-R & N. Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line was left vacant with Earl D. Walker as acting agent. Mr. Walker will not be displaced by the new arrangement.

AD CLUB TO BANQUET OREGON RIFLE TEAM

Addresses by Civic and Military Men Will Be Feature of the Day.

The Oregon rifle team, winner of honors from all other states, will be itself honored at the luncheon of the Portland Ad club in the Hotel Portland at noon tomorrow. Major L. A. Bowman will be chairman of the day. There will be remarks by President C. H. Moore of the club, and addresses by General W. E. Pinzer, Colonel C. H. Martin, A. L. Mills, president of the First National bank, and Lieutenant Commander Harvey Beckwith of the Oregon Naval Militia.

All members of the Ad club have been invited to be at the depot tomorrow at 11:30 a. m. to welcome home the victorious rifle team from camp Perry, Ohio. Concerning the rifle shooting competitions there is an announcement which reads:

"The object of these competitions is to promote the art of rifle shooting among the different states of the union. They were started in 1903 at Fort Riley, Kan., and have been held consecutively until last year, when complications prevented their being held. Oregon sent her first team in 1905 and thereafter each year except 1910.

"Competing annually are the teams from the U. S. infantry, U. S. cavalry, U. S. navy and U. S. marine corps, with their unlimited men from which to draw and with almost unlimited time in which to train them. So seldom does a state team finish ahead of any of the service teams, that it is a common saying that they are in a class by themselves.

"Oregon finished ahead of two of these teams in addition to winning over every other state of the union. Considering the resources of states like New York with 15,000 men from which to draw a team, or Pennsylvania with 9000, or many more of the eastern states, our showing is not less than marvelous."

McClellan saved the life of a woman who had been precipitated into a lake. She was crossing the water in a small ferry, and was sitting in a covered buggy behind a spirited horse. The animal became frightened and backed the rig into 25 feet of water. McClellan threw off his coat and plunged in.

The woman grew desperate in her struggles, and came very near getting her rescuer in a death clutch. The young man managed to break her hold, however, and in the second attempt he obtained the proper grip on the struggling woman, and managed to get her safely to shore. The woman was rendered unconscious from the effects of her experience, but was restored to her senses. The horse was drowned.

Young McClellan did not seem to consider that he had done anything remarkable, but those who witnessed his act say that if anyone is entitled to a medal for his bravery, that man is McClellan.

The rescuer is employed by Richard Chilcott.

ALL HEROES DO NOT GET CARNEGIE MEDALS

Young Man Rescues Woman at Imminent Risk of His Own Life.

All heroes do not get into the moving pictures, neither do they wear Carnegie medals.

But according to the facts as related about the heroic rescue of a woman from drowning by John McClellan, aged 21, of Green Acre farm, Yamhill county, the young man is qualified for both distinctions.
