

JESSE B. IRVINE DIES AT ASHLAND AFTER A VERY BRIEF ILLNESS

Pioneer Who Had Taken Active Part in Upbuilding of the State.

(Special to The Journal.) Ashland, Oct. 12.—The remains of the late Jesse B. Irvine, whose death occurred here yesterday morning, leave here this afternoon for Corvallis, where the funeral will occur at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Death was the result of a stroke of apoplexy which Mr. Irvine was seized last Wednesday afternoon. With his daughter he had arrived in Ashland but 10 days previously, to spend the winter. He was unconscious from the time of the stroke, and died without regaining possession of his faculties.

Mr. Irvine was an Oregon pioneer of 1852. He crossed the plains with a company of about 75, and was captain of the party. By agreement, members of the company filling the position for two weeks alternately.

After arriving in Oregon, he settled in Salem, but later engaged in mining in the vicinity of Jacksonville, returning from there and settling in Seio in 1854.

There he engaged in the mercantile business in which he amassed a fortune, a portion of which was swept away in the financial disturbances of the early '70s.

In 1880 he engaged in the drug business in Brownsville, and later went to Sprague, Wash., where he resided for 10 years. The last 18 years of his life were spent in Corvallis, where he died.

At all times, and wherever he lived, he was prominently identified with the public and political life of the community.

He was born in Kentucky January 13, 1821, and in his earlier political affiliations was a Democrat. He voted for Lincoln in the latter's second race for the presidency, and thereafter remained a Republican, frequently taking part in campaigns as a stump speaker, at which he was aggressive and versatile.

He was a devoted member of the Presbyterian church, and was buried with the honors of Masonry in which he has held membership for nearly 50 years.

Other surviving children are: George W. Irvine, of Montana; Nora French, wife of County Judge French of Enterprise; Mrs. Emma L. Brusha of Pendleton and B. F. Irvine of Portland.

ATTACK PROVES FATAL TO TIMOTHY WOODRUFF

Timothy L. Woodruff.

New York, Oct. 12.—Ex-Governor Timothy L. Woodruff died yesterday, following a paralytic stroke received while making a political speech two weeks ago.

From the time of his first entering politics, as a member of the executive committee of the Young Republican club of Brooklyn in 1851 until the time of his death, Mr. Woodruff was more or less of a political power.

In his later years his power had waned somewhat, but he was still actively interested in affairs political. It was while speaking in favor of the fusionist ticket in New York at the old Cooper Union that he was stricken down.

Timothy Woodruff was born in 1828, in Connecticut. At the age of 10 he was deprived by death of both his parents, but previous to this, his father had represented Connecticut in the house of representatives and before he had reached his teens young Woodruff had tasted of the political life at Washington.

He first entered business with Whitton & Co., now the Worcester Salt company, and later became a member of the firm. His other business activities were the establishment of the Maltine company, of which he was treasurer, the warehouse business and paper manufacturing.

He was also a director of the Hamilton Trust company, and the Mechanics Exchange bank, and president of the Smith-Premier Typewriter company.

In 1896 he was elected lieutenant governor of New York state and served three terms. Following this he made chairman of the Republican state committee, and it was in this capacity that he wielded his strongest power.

He occupied his position as chairman to within a few years ago. In his business ventures, Mr. Woodruff amassed a fortune of several million dollars. His first wife having died, he was again married in 1905 to Isabel Morrison, on the same day that his son, John Woodruff, entered into the bonds of matrimony.

Mr. Woodruff was noted as a strong personal speaker and a leader of men. He was a tactician of the first rank and this, combined with his engaging personality, won for him the large following which made his political activities a possibility.

TRAVELERS' FRANCHISE IS SOUGHT BY MANY

Traveling Man, Actors, Sailors and Other Itinerants Want Chance to Vote.

(Special to The Journal.) San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 12.—A plan to enfranchise 500,000 voters, consisting of traveling salesmen, actors, sailors and men who are away from their homes a big percentage of the time, has been formed by Leon Meyers, a salesman for a large New York firm. Meyers has been a traveling salesman for a great many years, and has not been able to cast a vote for so long that he has forgotten what a ballot looks like.

"Traveling salesmen, actors and sailors are practically men without a country," said Meyers. "There are 500,000 voters in the United States who are disfranchised from the greatest right of a citizen, by the present system."

Traveling salesmen are an intelligent set of voters and would be a great factor in settling many questions if they had the power of the ballot. We see, hear and observe, and for that reason we are able to vote intelligently upon any question of national interest."

Meyers has a plan that is similar to the certified check system. The voter registers in his ward, district or precinct, and is given a form signed in the registration office where he registers.

The traveler gets one portion of the slip and the registrar gets the other. Just before the election he receives a ballot, marks it and mails it to his home town, with the identification slip on the outside of the envelope.

The vote is sent to his precinct and cast as secretly as if he were there in person.

The plan proposed by Meyers has received the endorsement of and the promise of assistance from Champ Clark, Theodore Roosevelt, Josephus Daniels and other party leaders.

ANGLER FINDS FISHING FINE

W. J. Thomas and his "string" of beauties, which he caught in the Sandy river.

Catching fish is an easy matter if you know how to go about it, according to W. J. Thomas, a bricklayer, residing at 141 Sixty-second street, northeast. Mr. Thomas belongs to the Anglers' club. He has just returned from the Sandy river where he hooked 15 fine specimens of trout in an hour's time, using a spoon hook. He reports fishing better now than ever before this season on account of the recent heavy rains which have raised the water in the mountain streams.

His catch, which consisted of salmon trout and steelheads, was made at a point two miles above the Sandy bridge, where the Bull Run pipe line crosses the river. The fish measure from 14 to 16 inches.

MRS. BUSCH NOW ONE OF WORLD'S RICHEST WOMEN

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 12.—With the death of Adolphus Busch, Mrs. Lily Busch, his widow and principal beneficiary, will become, with Mrs. E. H. Harriman, Mrs. Russell Sage and Mrs. Henry Green, one of the richest women in the world. The Busch estate is estimated between $50,000,000 and $70,000,000.

The body of the aged brewer will be brought here from Germany, where he died. Burial will probably be in the old Busch and Anheuser lot in the Bellefontaine cemetery.

The Anheuser-Busch brewery was closed Saturday.

DEBS CANCELS HIS COAST TOUR; HEALTH BROKEN

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Eugene V. Debs has been compelled to cancel his lecture dates on the Pacific coast on account of a physical breakdown. It was announced at national headquarters of the Socialist party, and has retired to a resort for a complete rest.

Socialist leaders, discussing the coincidental loss to their movement of Debs, the German of William D. Haywood, the U. W. W. leader, who collapsed under a nervous strain and of Debs, attributed the breaking of all three to the long continued strain of active leadership.

Debs had just finished paying a $25,000 "honor debt" of the defunct American Railway Union, according to socialist leaders, by lecturing nightly for years. It was this work that caused his breakdown.
