

NEW GAS-ELECTRIC CAR IS GIVEN THOROUGH AND SUCCESSFUL TEST

H. W. Ewbank Jr. and wife boarding new car, a picture of which is shown below.

The Ewbank gas-electric car had a thorough and successful tryout yesterday afternoon on the Southern Pacific Portland-Hillsboro line. The car made the run from Portland to Hillsboro, and although capable of generating 250 horsepower, at no time on the heaviest grades and sharpest curves was more than 24 horsepower required. Even on the Fourth street grade, where the track rises four feet in a hundred, only 24 horsepower was used in pulling the 25 ton car along at a good rate of speed.

About 20 passengers, including D. W. Campbell, superintendent of the Southern Pacific line, and H. H. Forney, chief air brake inspector of the S. P., accompanied the officials of the Ewbank Electric Transmission company, builders of the car, on the trip. Robert Straborn, president of the Portland, Eugene & Astoria, who also made the trip, expressed himself as being highly gratified with the tryout of the car.

The car is the invention of H. W. Ewbank Jr. and was built at the shops of the Ewbank Electric Transmission company on East Water street.

Coach is standard steel.

It is a standard steel coach, 87 1/2 feet long and weighs 110,000 pounds. The chief feature of the Ewbank invention is the fact that no electric power is generated that is required for the pull, and that the power can be increased or reduced, as required, instantaneously. The car is built like an ordinary trolley car, except that it has no overhead trolley taking power from a wire, the power being generated by a gas engine located in the front of the car. Each track is equipped with its own motor and the electric power is transmitted directly to each set of wheels. For fuel a cheap distillate is used which is said to cost about 7 cents a gallon, as compared with gasoline at 12 cents a gallon. Recently this car made a 62 mile run on the Mount Hood line, using less than a half gallon a mile, which at 7 cents a gallon would make the cost of fuel for the trip less than 25 cents.

transmission system used on this car, claims that his invention will revolutionize transportation throughout the world.

Many Inquiries Received.

Prior to coming to Portland four years ago Mr. Ewbank was associated with Thomas A. Edison of New York, from whom he has received much encouragement in his venture. Mr. Ewbank has been at work developing his invention and in building this and two other cars of a smaller type, for the past four years. He and his associates, many of whom are well known Portland bankers and business men, have expended between $50,000 and $100,000 in perfecting his invention and in building the car which went through a successful test yesterday afternoon.

The Ewbank company has had inquiries from railway companies all over the world asking for information about his invention. The Westinghouse Air Brake people have had expert electricians here watching the progress of the invention as applied in this car and others built by the Ewbank company for the past two years.

Search for Survivors Fails.

Queenstown, Oct. 15.—After searching in the vicinity of the spot where the Valturno burned, the steamship Cymric returned today to report that nothing was seen of the lost vessel's two missing lifeboats. It was considered certain that they were swamped.

American and German competition have paralyzed the Welsh tin industry and caused the closing of 100 mills.

PATROLMEN ACCUSED OF HUNTING IN CITY

Game Warden Finley Complains Against L. K. Evans and C. F. Frey.

Motorcycle Patrolman L. K. Evans and Patrolman C. F. Frey, of the police department, were notified this morning by Deputy Constable Hunter to appear before District Judge Dayton to answer charges of hunting within a game preserve. The complaint against the two officers was filed yesterday afternoon and was signed by Game Warden W. L. Finley.

Last Sunday morning the two policemen went hunting in the Woodstock district and shot at birds within the city limits, according to the complaint. Under the statute the confines of an incorporated city are game refuges. One bird was secured. Woodstock citizens complained and Game Warden Finley took it up.

Evans, in addition to being a police officer, is also a special deputy game warden under Warden Finley, and if convicted is liable to more severe penalties than Frey. Both if convicted will be subject to fine and imprisonment in the county jail. They also violated Mayor Albee's order to enforce the law governing shooting within the city limits, if the charges prove true.
