

SCHOOL LUNCH SERVED FOR NICKEL, NO ONE GOES HUNGRY

Top—Mrs. Ward, chairman of the luncheon committee at the Arleta school, labeling beans for hundreds of boys and girls. Youngsters getting their fill of beans, gingerbread, bread and butter. Bottom—Children in line for lunch.

High Cost of Living Problem Solved in Part, at Public School.

By Marshall N. Dana. I have seen the hard-fisted bread-line of the hungry and the impatient expectancy of gnawing stomachs reflected on pinched faces...

It was 11:30 o'clock and the school doors swung open. A hundred tiny racers darted at top speed toward a tiny cottage a minute's run away. Up the walk they dashed. Every tiny flat held a coin.

But there really wasn't much noise except of shuffling feet and over-crowded spoons. Before each was set a bowl of bean soup and two thick slices of bread and butter...

Each gave place as soon as lunch was finished, for outside the door was another crowd of line of older children. In the incredibly brief space of 45 minutes in two very small rooms more than 200 hungry children were satisfied.

The Arleta school luncheon is neither a philanthropy or a charity. It is a cooperative effort of the parents, teachers and the school board.

The feeding of the children centered in a building secured by the school board, and altogether unfitted and inadequate, relieves the noon-day lunch responsibility of mothers and many homes.

The Arleta school is patronized by people living in a somewhat scattered district with about 200 children bring their lunches.

The house was cleaned, kalsomined and fitted with lunch counters by the school board.

difficultly was for want of table room. "There is scarcely room to feed 50 pupils at one time.

"The difficulties encountered in this undertaking are not many or insurmountable. The first was in the way of equipment.

labor of cooking can be met by serving the present bill of fare for 5 cents. Perhaps a little better knowledge of markets or a little ready cash might enable the committee to serve a better lunch for the same price.

PROHIBITIONISTS WILL MAKE FIGHT IN 1914

W. C. T. U. Will Join With Party Regardless of Action of Anti-Saloon League.

Next year has been chosen for the biggest prohibition campaign in the history of the state of Oregon.

With the action of the Presbyterian Synod Friday in resolving to enter into a state-wide prohibition campaign whenever all the organizations interested were agreed as to the year, the Prohibition party is practically assured of the church's support.

Hopes were never brighter in Oregon prohibition circles, according to the officials at the party's headquarters.
