

COLLEGE EXTENSION COURSE IN OREGON IS PROVING BIG SUCCESS

At Present 600 People of All Classes Getting Education by Correspondence.

Joseph Schafer, Ph. D., for 13 years head of the history department of the University of Wisconsin, has assumed the duties of general director of the University of Oregon extension division. His office will be at Eugene, Ore., in the building of the extension plan.

Dr. George Bureau, recently of the University of Michigan, has accepted appointment as field organizer and lecturer of the university extension division. His office will be in connection with the Playground and Recreation association and the Oregon Civic League in the Journal building.

The faculty of the extension division includes besides Dr. Rebec, Dr. C. F. Hodges, late of Clark University, Worcester, Mass., who is professor of civic biology; Frederick Frink, C. E., professor of mathematics and engineering by correspondence; Dr. Don C. Somers from the New York Bureau of Municipal Research, who is the head of the new bureau of municipal research at the University of Oregon and lectures on municipal science and practice; Miss Maxella Hair, A. B., secretary of the correspondence study department.

Correspondence Service Is Free. Dr. Schafer, the director, and a number of other members of the regular faculty are devoting time to the handling of correspondence courses and to the giving of lectures in the extension field. This service is given out of hours and without extra remuneration. It is not generally known that some of the members of the university faculty began giving courses by correspondence as long ago as in 1905, making out lesson sheets and sending papers to a considerable extent simply to satisfy the demand for such assistance on the part of teachers and others.

The first of these courses was one in English literature, organized by Professor Herbert C. Howe. It is now presented some 600 students are enrolled in the correspondence department. They represent every county in Oregon and belong to practically every occupation. The department has a most interesting collection of letters of appreciation from teachers, housewives, timbermen, clerks, mechanics and others. One under Dr. Schafer's direction wrote that the work had all been done in a logging camp during the evenings.

Classes Organized in Portland. A movement began last year and now being rapidly developed is that for the formation of study classes guided by professors from the university, who prepare outlines, prescribe books and meet the classes for lectures and conferences at intervals of a week or longer. A number of such classes have been organized among working people in Portland. Three clubs for the study of sociology were recently organized by the head of the sociological department, Professor F. G. Young, in Medford, Ashland and Jacksonville.

The lecture bureau of the extension division receives more calls for lectures than it can fill, it is said. Dr. Rebec is in constant demand for educational and general addresses. Dr. Hodges has instituted assignments with other engagements which require all of his time until well into December. From that time forward there are requests for courses of lectures to be given at various high schools for the benefit of adults, which will keep him fully occupied the remainder of the year.

A feature of these high school courses is the community conferences to be held at their close for one or two days, at which problems of community interest are to be discussed by local men and women and by several representatives of the university. Dr. Schafer will usually participate in these conferences, and Dr. Somers, the municipal expert, is in general demand, as well as Dr. Rebec and Dr. Hodges.

Men Are Well Equipped. Dr. Schafer regards the men in the extension division as among the strongest in the university. He says the university was especially fortunate to secure last year the services of such a man as Dr. Rebec, who was regarded as one of the ablest and most scholarly men in the University of Michigan, and whose lec-

GANTENBEIN CANDIDATE FOR CIRCUIT JUDGE

Dean of Oregon Law School Seeks to Succeed Cleeton.

Calvin U. Gantenbein, dean of the law school of the University of Oregon, announced last night that he will be a candidate to succeed T. J. Cleeton as judge of Department No. 6, Multnomah county circuit court.

Judge Gantenbein served as circuit judge from 1909 to 1913. He came to Oregon in 1874. He was senior major of the Oregon regiment that saw service in the Philippines, and commanded the first battalion of the whole United States army that landed on the islands. He served as adjutant general under Governor Geer and held the office 10 months under the administration of George E. Chamberlain. He is a Republican in politics.

Judge Gantenbein has considered becoming a candidate for a justiceship of the Oregon supreme court. His decision to become a candidate for circuit judge was made after Judge Cleeton of the circuit court announced that he would not be a candidate to succeed himself. In a statement last night Judge Gantenbein said:

"I shall be a candidate for the judgeship of Department No. 6 of the circuit court of Multnomah county. For some time I have considered the advisability of running for one of the four vacancies in the coming election in the supreme court, on which Multnomah county has no representative among the seven members."

During the last few days I have learned from close personal friends of Judge Cleeton, at the present time judge of Department No. 6 of the circuit court, that he would not be a candidate for reelection. Personally, I would prefer at the present time to be a circuit judge rather than a justice of the supreme court, because in case of election I could live in Portland, instead of being a resident since 1874, instead of changing my home to Salem.

"I served on the circuit bench for this county from July, 1909, to January, 1913, and would refer anyone interested in my judicial record to my fellow judges who served with me, to the litigants, attorneys, jurors and witnesses who served in my department during the six and one half years of my service."

"I was asked the question as to my candidacy a few days ago and I made the answer then that I did not intend to be a candidate to succeed myself," said Judge Gantenbein last night. "The statement still stands good. I have made no plans for the future."

PARENTS AND TEACHERS WILL ACT AS HOSTS

The "fountain room" at the Oregon Hotel will be the scene of a big reception to be tendered by the Parents and Teachers association to City Superintendent of Schools L. R. Alderman and Mrs. Alderman, the members of the school board and the principals and teachers of the city schools. The reception will begin at 8 o'clock. Brown's orchestra will furnish music during the evening. Presidents of the various circles of the association will assist on the reception committee.

Parents are always busy and thought-producing. Dr. Hodges, he says, is a scientist, not merely national, but international, reputation. Both of these men are in the work primarily for the love of it, says Dr. Schafer, and because they have the real missionary spirit, and Dr. Somers, who is just arriving in Eugene, comes with a similar description of personality from W. H. Allen, director of the New York Bureau of Municipal Research.

The summer school, which is made a part of the extension division in the fund for maintenance, which also is under Dr. Schafer's direction, is believed to have amply demonstrated its value, especially to the teachers of the state. Noted men have been secured as lecturers next summer, among them being Dr. Frederick J. Turner, of Harvard, ranked as America's foremost exponent of American history from the western standpoint. Professor Stockton, of Princeton, and Professor H. D. Sheldon, of Pittsburg.

JEALOUSY OF ADMIRAL GIVEN AS MOTIVE FOR POISONING BY HIS WIFE

Two Women Called to Testify That Mrs. Eaton Was Jealous of Husband.

(By the International News Service.) Plymouth, Mass., Oct. 18.—The state today introduced testimony in the trial of Mrs. Jennie May Eaton for the murder of her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, in support of the prosecution's contention that Mrs. Eaton's jealousy of her husband formed the chief motive for the crime.

The testimony was offered by Miss Grace Byram Howard of New Bedford, Mass., a young woman who was formerly a neighbor of the Eatons at Ashippin, and Miss Jessie R. Callamore of North Hanover, Mass., who was also a neighbor of the admiral's family.

Miss Howard identified a letter written to her by Mrs. Eaton in which the writer asked Miss Howard to write her a letter saying that Admiral Eaton had flirted with her (Miss Howard) during church services. The letter was dated August 13, 1909. The witness testified that the admiral had never winked at her or flirted with her in any way, and that the contrary had been a perfect gentleman.

Miss Callamore testified that Mrs. Eaton had asked her to appear in court and testify that the admiral had allowed her on several occasions. The witness said that the admiral had, so far as she knew, never tried to flirt with her or any one else.

Dr. Joseph G. Frame, who attended Admiral Eaton during his illness, testified that he was summoned to the Eaton home March 7 and when he arrived there he found the admiral "suffering excruciating pains." The witness said the admiral explained that he had eaten too freely of fresh pork the night before and the admiral wanted "no more fresh pork for Joseph."

Dr. Frame said Mrs. Eaton telephoned him at 5:30 the next morning and said her husband was dead. She seemed uncertain as to the exact time death occurred, but finally placed it at 5 o'clock. He said:

"I could not understand why the admiral should have died, for when I saw him the day before he did not appear to be dangerously ill."

FIRST MUNICIPAL CONCERT WILL BE HELD NOVEMBER 9

Plans have been about completed for the holding of Portland's first winter municipal popular priced band concert in the Gipsy Alley auditorium, Chapman and Taylor streets. The date of the first concert has been set for Sunday afternoon, November 9, with another Sunday, November 23.

The first concert will be given by W. E. McElroy's band, while the second will be under the leadership of A. DeCaprio. A charge of $2.00 will be made for admission, which amount is to be collected by the city, to help defray the expenses. If these two concerts are successful, a series will be given during the winter.

'CHILD LOOKS LIKE ME,' INSISTS LIEUTENANT

Slingsby Says He Is Puzzled How Anyone Can Claim Child Is Substitute.

(By the International News Service.) San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 18.—"So many untruths have been told about us, so many slurs have been cast upon the Slingsby name by persons whom we had every reason to believe were our friends, that I am weary as well as wary about discussing anything pertaining to the so-called substitution case. How anybody can say today is not my boy puzzle me, especially in view of the marked resemblance to me which the boy bears."

This statement was made today by Lieutenant Charles R. Slingsby, who, with his wife, is in San Francisco conducting a fierce legal battle to disprove the charges of relatives that the 3 year old baby which Mrs. Slingsby claims was born to her in 1910, is a changeling and not the heir to the Slingsby millions.

Depositions in the case have been taken by the British consul during the past week and the hearing will be continued Monday. Evidence intended to show that state birth records were altered in the Slingsby baby substitution case was offered today when the taking of depositions before Douglas Young, British vice consul, was resumed. It came with the examination of Dr. W. F. Snow, secretary of the state board of health.

Dr. Snow submitted the birth records certificates on which it was alleged the name of Chas. Edward Eugene Slingsby was scratched out by officers of the health board, he said, and that of a baby born to Miss Lillian Anderson substituted. The change was made, snow said, when Dr. W. W. Fraser of Westerville admitted that he had made a false record of parentage, that the child did not belong to Mrs. Slingsby, but in reality was the illegitimate offspring of a high school girl of Santa Rosa.

FALSE ARREST MAY WORK PRISON REFORM

Woman Confined Two Days in Tombs Declares Conditions to Be Terrible.

New York, Oct. 18.—For 48 hours Mrs. Frances Lavy, a delicate and refined woman, was confined in a cell in the Tombs, under false arrest, and she says that she will devote the rest of her life to prison reform.

The arrest of Mrs. Lavy was a case of mistaken identity. She was identified by Mrs. Marie Masseuse, of Philadelphia, as a Mrs. Van B. Nichols, wanted for embezzling $6000 several years ago. Mrs. Lavy was fashionably dressed, in an exclusive hotel, when she was arrested, but that made no impression on the detectives. They seized her and hurried her to a Tombs cell, where she was forced to remain for two days and nights before she could obtain a hearing in a police court. Then she was promptly discharged.

"It was terrible," Mrs. Lavy said. "First, I am going to do all I can to bring about an improvement in our jails, and then I am going to see if some legislator will not introduce a law fixing a penalty for false arrest. I am wholly innocent, but I am a stranger in New York and could give the detectives no proof but my unsupported word that I was not the woman they thought. They were insolent and rough, and I was defenseless. People who cause arrests like that, and people who make them, should be prosecuted."

"The Tombs is unspeakable. It is none too clean, and the food is hardly fit to eat. The stinking smell of some disinfectant that is constantly used takes away one's appetite, even if the food were good."

Mrs. Lavy has filed a suit for $50,000 damages against the Philadelphia woman who caused her arrest.

Football at Oregon City.

Oregon City, Or., Oct. 19.—The Oregon City High School football team was defeated by Captain Brushmaker's Washington High School team yesterday by a score of 13 to 6. For the Portlanders, Lapham made two touchdowns and Strowbridge kicked a goal.

IS FATALLY WOUNDED BY BEAUTIFUL WOMAN

San Francisco Advertising Solicitor Shot Down in Office by Disappointed Girl.

San Francisco, Oct. 18.—J. D. Van Baalen, a special advertising solicitor and former resident of Duluth, Minn., was shot and probably fatally injured today by Miss Leah Alexander, a beautiful young woman, with whom he is said to have kept company for several months. The shooting occurred on the third floor of the Chronicle building and was witnessed by a score of persons, who did not dare go to the man's rescue because of the wild manner in which the young woman flourished her smoking weapon. Five shots were fired by Miss Alexander, four of them taking effect in Van Baalen's body.

Just prior to the shooting occupants of offices adjoining those occupied by Van Baalen heard the couple quarreling. A moment later there was a pistol shot and Van Baalen rushed from the office only to fall in a heap as he reached the elevator. Rushing up to him, Miss Alexander placed the revolver against his body and emptied the remaining chambers of the weapon.

In a statement to the police, Miss Alexander said Van Baalen had left his wife for her and had promised to marry her. Several days ago, she said, he told her he wanted nothing more to do with her and she decided to kill him. Mrs. Van Baalen, according to Miss Alexander, is now residing somewhere in the east.

HUGE GUSHER BURNS AS FAST AS IT IS FLOWING

Taft, Cal., Oct. 18.—With a flow of 100 barrels an hour, oil well No. 21 of the Kern Trading & Oil company came in here early today and within an hour caught fire. It is now a roaring, blazing pillar of fire and smoke.

A gusher was expected, but it was not believed the oil bearing sands would be reached for several days and the drillers were caught unprepared. No effort has been made yet to extinguish the fire, which probably will burn for weeks before it can be controlled.

MILLER'S HOTEL AT BANKS IS DESTROYED

Proprietor Recently Failed to Get Renewal of Liquor License.

Banks, Or., Oct. 18.—Miller's hotel, the principal hostelry in Banks, burned about 10 o'clock last night. It was a well known and popular wayside inn, with accommodations for 50 guests or more. John Miller, the proprietor, had just been through a strenuous local "wet or dry" campaign, in which he failed on a plebiscite petition to get his license renewed for a hotel bar, the county court holding that such petition must have a majority of legal voters as signers. Miller had renewed his application on a new petition which is still pending.

However, both sides unite in sympathy for Miller in his loss, which is $4000 or $5000. Insurance is understood to be $2000.

The fire is supposed to have started from a partition back of the kitchen range, which in German fashion, was built in the back of the main room, which, besides kitchen, served also as dining room, parlor and hotel office.

Miller's family was ready to retire when the fire was discovered. So rapidly did it spread that Miller had only time to start the pump and connect the hose of the private water system attached before the roof was a mass of flames.

The Banks fire department was instrumental in preventing the fire's spread to adjacent buildings. The apparatus consists of a force pump and a quantity of hose with which streams were kept playing upon the front of the Fryer residence, across the street, by men sheltered from the heat by improvised wooden screens. Windows across the street were broken by the heat.

The fire department is composed of some 20 citizens of the town. What Banks now needs above all else is a public water system. Good water can be obtained, it is said, from the hills to the north by a six mile pipe line.
